TTC is dark action and SoL. Right up my alley. It just ticks the categories I was looking for. Harumi on the other hand is basically a smug self-insert who is repeatedly shown to be perfect at everything she does despite being a normie.

Anyway, I'm mostly annoyed about some of the cuts, and the implications of some gems being put in the same category as the worst sort of dross.

Whatever I'll just sleep on it or something.

One more thing before we fall off board:

We've done and are still doing a ton of work on the wiki lately, writeups are now neatly separated as per the announcement. The bigger ones are also actually present on their own pages, where you will find they are much easier to read than they were in individual pastebins:

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 03/17/15(Tue)11:11:27 No.38765255 Archived

You decide to stay quiet. You don't even react to Kyuubey's offer - you simply cross your arms over your barely-concealed chest, glaring down at him in cold, stony silence. Projecting as much venom in your stare as you possibly can that even your Dolls - those looking up at you after they've done their share of eyeballing your mutant cat bastard boss - are slowly and visibly getting freaked out. Some of them even slowly trying to inch out of your glaring range.

Hell, you're doing it enough that it's even working on the Incubator itself, something that has never happened before and frankly would have made you grin if you weren't too fucking pissed to.

His tail, which should be flicking lazily from side to side right now, is ramrod straight, the thick cloud of white fur covering it bristling in a clear sign of agitation. His tiny shoulders tense, with that slightest bit of hunch that cats get when they think they're about to be backed into a corner. But the biggest tell that you can't help but notice - the biggest sign that you're actually managing to freak your mutant cat bastard of a boss - is the fear in his eyes, something you thought you'd never see in those perfectly-round orbs of glistening crimson.

You're scaring him. You're actually scaring an Incubator.

>>38765255

Well, to be fair, he's doing a good job of keeping it under wraps, tells notwithstanding. And when he finally speaks to break the silence, his voice is clear and level - impressing you just a bit more, but not improving your mood any.

"I see. Very well, then, Matsuda." Your Incubator nods. "Please give me your report on what happened during the Prophet Mission. Beginning from your teleportation into the Akashic Realm to your arrival back in Headquarters."

Alright. Time to let the fucking cat out of the bag, so to speak.

It feels like ages since you've done this before. Funnily enough, you're actually starting to get nostalgic about it.

How do you tell Kyuubey what happened during the Prophet Mission?

[]Tell him everything that happened, while keeping some details for yourself. Especially the bit with the Transcendent One.
[]Tell him everything, from start to finish, leaving nothing out.
[]Ask him what he thinks happened instead.

[]Tell him everything that happened, while keeping some details for yourself. Especially the bit with the Transcendent One.

There are only two possibilities. Either, the Incubators aren't equipped to deal with The Transcendant One, and leaking this back through the old cat network is valueless.

Or they ARE prepared to deal with her, which is arguably worse, since if they're going to strike at her, they are pretty much going to have to go through us.

Long story short, I don't see any advantages in involving the cats in this.

Besides being a high security R&D facility, we weren't the Warmaster at the time. And he told us about it as soon as it became relevant. What, should he list for us every single high security facility that the Officio owns, without us asking for such information?
>Didnt tell us what the facility contains.
Again, we weren't Warmaster yet, and he was more concerned with having us undergo the procedure than telling us everything about the place, which we didn't ask about.
>Didnt tell us what the procedure contains.
We didn't ask, and the people better able to explain would have been Kharn and Souji, who didn't bother to explain it either. And why should they? They're not bound by medical ethics, and why should they bother telling it to someone who'll forget it after the operation anyway?
>Didnt tell us about all the stuff that Malal little flying skull revealed to us.
All of that was classified and sealed by Malal, and we didn't ask QB about the things that the skull talked about, so how could he lie about them? There's a mountain of things that Chiaki has forgotten; should QB tell us about every single thing we missed instead of focusing on the tasks at hand?

How would him telling us about the Siberia facility and the Procedure have made sense when we were just another Vindicate with no top-secret clearance and with no Golden Weapon?
Or when he was in the middle of researching the Golden Weapons?
He told us about Siberia and the Procedure when it was ready to be used and he had things prepared to send us. Telling us before then would have made no sense, especially as we hadn't asked about any of it, if there was a secret lab or if there was an operation that could contain the Golden Weapkns' Corruption.

This is a different situation, since he's asking for everything that happened. We are being asked for everything.

Probably coming across as rather hypocritical on this, I admit.

But near as I can tell this is a discussion on the essential definiton of the word 'discussion', which actually is an absolute with the ability to be right/wrong about it.

I personally see what I'm doing as less 'attempting to convince' and more as 'providing information to people'. I'm not trying to /convince/ them they're wrong, I'm trying to let them know that they, by the absolute definition of the thing we're discussing, /are/ wrong.

2+2 doesn't equal 5, and the definition of 'discussion' doesn't include 'trying to convince someone that your views are correct'.

"Good for nothing, please be careful!"

"Do not fall for his tricks!"

"Remove incubator REMOVE INCUBATOR!"

You silence your Doll Collection's chirped warnings with a shake of your head - the gesture causing Kyuubey to blink - and it's with a tired sigh that you recount the events of the Prophet mission in full. From start to finish, leaving nothing out. ...Nothing, except the bit about what happened between you and Sayaka. He doesn't need to know about that just yet, and...well, you did manage to bring her back from the brink.

You just hope that the blue-haired Eversor didn't listen to the massive stick still stuck in her ass and spilled her guts to Kyuubey after she brought you to your Silent Room.

...Anyway. You tell Kyuubey all the events you can accurately recount - including the bit where you met the Transcendent One for the first time, before waking up inside the Akashic Realm proper. From your meeting up with Kyoko, and then with Wendy and the Red Culexus - to synching back up with Mami and finally getting to Oriko, your retelling takes you what feels like a couple of hours, with Kyuubey nodding every now and then to cue you to continue.

It's at certain points of your account that you spot more of his tells showing - and rather unsurprisingly, they're all the bits when you're talking about the Transcendent One. You even saw his fur bristle as you described that horrible bitch's wings - wings that are now sprouting from your own back and folded into skeletal pinions.

When you finish with your arrival - and Yuma's death - it's here that you see yet another side of your Incubator that you never thought you'd see, or even want to see: Kyuubey being...well, sad, as far as you can tell. His tiny shoulders, having been tensed earlier, falls in a slight droop, along with his head bowing a fraction of an inch. And when he speaks, it's with a fatigued sigh - a fatigue that didn't speak of physical exhaustion as much as it did a mental one. The sigh that someone who was tired of expecting the worst not to happen when it already had.

"...I see. Thank you for your report, Matsuda, and for your honesty." Kyuubey looks up at you, some of the fear and trepidation gone from his eyes, replaced with something approaching...well, trust. "You have been a bit more forthcoming with certain details in your debriefings as of late, even though I can still sense that you're keeping something from me." You open your mouth to protest this, but he shakes his head. "And no, before you ask, I am not reading your mind. You have your own tells, just like anyone else, and they do give you away. Although I must admit it's a bit difficult to read your body language at the moment, considering your new...accoutrements."

Oh. The wings. ...Yeah, they can be a bit distracting.

"Yes, those." Kyuubey nods. "...As for those details that you've kept from your report, I will allow you to use your own discretion on when and where you may want to divulge them to me. And know that I am always available for you to do so at any time, unless I am attending an All-Hands at the First's Headquarters, in which case you may wait until I've finished cowering inside my tower before telling me."

...What? He's letting you do that? ...Why? What's the catch?

>> ☐ Deculture 03/17/15(Tue)13:34:23 No.38766967

>>38766954

"Catch?" The Incubator blinks as he looks up at you, before shaking his head. "...Oh, I see. No, Matsuda, there is no 'catch' as you so crudely put it, while implying that I'm trying to entrap you in some manner." He gestures to your wings with an ear appendage. "You've obviously gone through a very traumatic mission - I daresay one of the worst so far in your career - and you are still sorting details out for yourself."

He pauses for a moment before continuing. "Add to that, allow me to apologize to ask for your debriefing mere hours after your return. Officio regulations state that a day or so after the operation has formally concluded is the customary time to wait before a debriefing, especially in operations such as the one you came back from, but..." He looks away, letting out another sigh. "...I needed to get as much information as I can. My priority was to put together a clear picture of exactly what happened, and what caused you to be in this state."

That's...uh. Well.

Kyuubey's explanation certainly makes sense, and his apology, while unexpected, is making you feel a bit better about being thrown into a Silent Room right afterwards.

Only a little bit, though. You're still sore over that.

Anyone would still be sore over that.

"In any case, Matsuda, I have a few questions about the information you've just passed on to me. If I may count on your honesty a bit more?"

Yeah, of course he would, wouldn't he? You suppress the urge to smirk and instead nod, giving him leave to ask you his questions.

"Very well. This...Transcendent One." You blink as you hear him speak the name with just the tiniest pause of hesitation. "Do you believe her, Matsuda? Do you believe what she told you, when you refused her offer of a way out of all this? About the events that will occur if you continue on this path that you're on?"

...Hnh. That's...you weren't expecting that question to come from someone like Kyuubey.

You recount what the Transcendent One promised you. About how you would have everything torn away from you - everything you value, most of all the people you hold dear the most - until there is nothing left but the road you're on.

And that Tomoe Mami would be the person to betray you first.

Fuck if you're telling that to Kyuubey, though. That's...you don't even want anyone to hear about that. If there's anything your winged self was lying about, it's certainly that.

Tomoe Mami would never betray you. She wouldn't. That shit's impossible.

How do you respond?

[]No. Why the fuck should I believe her? I don't even trust myself to leave a bottle of Kong unsupervised for too long.
[]...I don't know. Maybe. If it does happen, it won't exactly be a surprise. I'll just have to make do with what I have left, finish the job in front of me, and then go home.

From thread 246
>You grumble something approaching of an affirmation, and the raven-haired banshee's smile grows wider - almost resembling the crescent-moon grin of the doll-like things that she'd sent after you.

"Green hair is the dange--" She starts, but immediately holds up a hand as you make to blow her brains out. "Wait. No. That's not what I wanted to say. I apologize. That came out of nowhere."

...Then what the FUCK did she want to say, then?! You snarl down at her, unable to keep the rising anger from your own voice.

She looks at you pointedly, before shaking her head. "If you proceed down on this path you've chosen for yourself, all the things that you hold dear will be taken away from you. Your friends will become your enemies, and your enemies will be the ones you turn to for aid. You will lose everything, piece by piece, person by person, until you are left with nothing but the road you're traveling." The monster looks up at you with your own eyes. "And of all the people who will abandon you, Tomoe Mami will be the one to betray you first."

...No. You shake your head, allowing a smirk to curl your lips. You've heard of that before. If she's looking to fuck with your head, then she'll have to try something else. That kind of thing is impossible--

"Is it really?" The black-haired devil pulls herself forward with her hands, the ragged stump of her leg making a disgustingly-wet noise as it slops against the pool of blood leaking from it.

"Both of us know what kind of person Tomoe Mami is. What kind of Magical Girl she's become. Do you really think she won't step in once she realizes just what is happening to you? Once she realizes your role in all of this? Once she sees what you're about to become?"

So this is something that I realized last night: As Warmaster, we had the authority to punish Kharn by forcing her to get married. Technically, we could punish anybody in our Officio for a severe infraction by saying they have to date/engage/marry so-and-so. We have the authority. We're the godddamn warmaster. Anything we do is still better than what Kharn would have done.

What's more, this kind of backstory can give rise to all kinds of wish, from the selfish, to ones based around violence and revenge and even to truly altruistic ones, meaning a few of them might become Culexi.

It is well known that the very short people are easily given to much greater evils than the taller ones, as they compress all the fury, resentment, anger and other suchlike emotion into their much smaller frames, thus upsetting the humours to a vstly greater degree.

It is therefore easy to see that Tall Madoka (otherwise referred to as "Malal") and Terribly Short Madoka (also known as "The Blessed Lady", "Pinky", "Evil Given Form" and "Oh Gods Please No Stop Aaagh My Soul Noooooo") are, respectively, working towards a good end through otherwise brutal means and pure, undiluted suffering in every conceivable form.

Research has not yet determined what particular brand of omnicidal evil Rea Ashford cleaves to, but it is only a matter of time.

You lift your bared shoulders in a shrug. Honestly? You don't know. You're not even sure if what you saw was a hallucination rather than the real thing, what with how absolutely fucked the Akashic Realm is.

Then again, if it does happen, well... You allow yourself a small, self-deprecating smirk here. It won't exactly be a surprise, will it? You're surprised it hasn't happened already. Or if it has, then it hasn't bitten you in the ass yet.

But even if that prophesy does come to fruition, you're not going to let it stop you, no. You'll make do with what you have left, finish the job in front of you, and then go home.

Kyuubey is silent for a few moments, before he replies. "...That's surprisingly pragmatic of you, Matsuda. So you mean to tell me that even when you've lost everyone and everything, you'll continue on the path you're on? To finish what you've taken upon yourself with the Golden Weapons, and the Witch called Faust?"

...That's what you said, right? You wince as you suddenly get a craving for cigarettes, but clamp down on the temptation as you nod towards the Incubator. So long as you're still alive, it wouldn't matter much if you lost everything. You'll get this thing done, no matter what you have to do. You'll get it done, and then, after all of it, you'll slink back to whatever hole in the wall you consider home.

And THEN, you'll drink yourself stupid.

You're looking forward to that.

...I see." Kyuubey nods. "Something for me to consider, surely." He looks to the side, as if deep in thought - before speaking again. "Another question, then, if you'll be so kind, Matsuda.

You nod as you pat down your dress, trying your luck with finding a cigarette through the scandalous mess of feathers and silk. Wincing as you feel the craving of filling your lungs with smoke when you obviously don't have any cigarettes to fill them with.

"Why did you give your Soul Gem to Ahriman?" At this, you hear something approaching disbelief in Kyuubey's words. Disbelief and incredulity.

You open your mouth to snarl your reply - you KNEW he was going to ask that question - when Kyuubey raises an ear appendage again.

"Do not mistake my bewilderment for scorn or judgment, Matsuda. I simply wish to know why you chose to hand over something as important as your own soul to the main objective of the mission itself - someone who had proven herself time and again unstable enough to send over packages containing body parts."

It's here that the Incubator tilts his head. "I won't bombard you with reasons why you shouldn't have, because I'm sure you're familiar with most of them. I'm talking about the reason that compelled you to do something like that, and end up like this."

He gestures towards your wings again.

How do you respond?

-Who is the person who told us to wake up in Midori illusion, to not take the procedure in Siberia and also called us a fool? You know, the mysterious number on the mobile phone -Will we be able to discover who prepared the ambush to Murderface that nearly had Kharn killed with the black knives?

The Second and Fourteenth Incubators basically run their Officios that way, so quite implementable.

That said, that's a very different environment, too. It'd probably be a hard sell to actually mash people together here and tell them to kiss. Pitching the idea of taking DNA samples to Coobie and creating supersoldiers...

Not a clue! Though the fact that there are some terrible cosmic forces involved is not news to him, and the bulk of the reason we ended up in the condition we're in is because of our questionable gem-related decisions anyway, so I don't feel like the difference would be enormous in this conversation. People are always mad about one choice or another. The actual number of choices that have been as stupid as people make them out to be have been fairly low.

But yeah, I feel like being as honest with Coobie as is reasonable is overall the better choice, because for the most part he's been astonishingly straight with us and willing to work with us. Even as triggered as he was, for example, he came to talk with us and get the full story before making any rash decisions.

Hopefully we told him enough that he'll trust we have a good reason for omitting the Sayaka bit.

The mere fact that a random Callidus used it - after a ton more callidus died there, mind you, and she just happened to be the one to get Kharn's back - suggests that while it may be the same thing Ahriman is using, it's a tool that is produced somewhere. There are three places in the setting where tools are produced, and it's definitely not a Fourth thing. So you're left with crazy german, crazy gypsy, or someone just using the work of either.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 03/20/15(Fri)11:14:24 No.38825833 Archived

Why DID you give Ahriman your Soul Gem, anyway? Even to you it sounds fucking insane, and you're the one who did it. Who in their right mind would hand their Soul Gem - the one single kill switch that all Magical Girls have, with a guaranteed 100% permanent success rate - to a main objective that had been, only moments ago, sending waves upon waves of hostiles at your direction?

What kind of demented reasoning can overcome the common sense of NOT handing your Soul Gem over to someone who had been commanding bodies and souls to kill you on sight, in her skyscraper headquarters in the middle of HELL ITSELF?

But you know the answer to those questions, of course. The answer to the first is obvously you and your winged, cocktail dress-wearing ass, now stuck in a Silent Room with only a bunch of creepy fucking dolls and your own mawkish conscience for company. The second, well...

"Ahriman promised me the truth," You tell Kyuubey in a low murmur. "She promised to show me who I really was, and she needed my Soul Gem to do it." You gesture to your dress for emphasis, the motion also making your wings bristle briefly behind your back. "...Can't really say she was lying about it, even if she did try to kill me afterwards, because..." You gesture to yourself again, for lack of anything else to say.

>>38825833

"...I see." Kyuubey replies after a long, contemplative silence. "You wanted the truth. You wanted it enough that you deemed the threat of having your Soul Gem destroyed in an act of deception by Mikuni Oriko as an acceptable risk. As such, you handed your Soul Gem over to her, in your own volition. Am I correct in my summary of the events leading to your transformation, Matsuda?"

You nod after a moment. That's...yeah, that's pretty much on the spot.

Kyuubey is silent again, his eyes boring into yours with an intensity you've never seen before. Another moment passes before he lets out a heavy sigh, and he glances towards the doors leading out of your Silent Room.

"...In this moment, I'm reminded of a certain piece of dubious wisdom from one of my brothers." The Incubator murmurs finally. "The Sixth, specifically. He's a unique sort, you'll understand when you meet him - but he has quite the opinion about knowledge that none of my brothers share nor agree with. Nor I, at first, until I realized just what he really meant by it."

He looks up at you once more. "He always maintained that there is such a thing as too much knowledge. That there are some things you needed to be ignorant about to survive. To function. To keep your sanity."

You blink at this. That's...well. That's the first time you've heard of an Incubator saying something like that, and from your experience, they've always been voracious little fuckers when it comes to information.

"I'll take that as a compliment and a shining appraisal of my species in general, Matsuda." Kyuubey remarks wryly, before continuing. "But yes, my brother kept that line of thinking, and I believe he keeps it still. We all thought he was a simpleton then, but thinking about it now..." He nods at you. "...Perhaps he wasn't as simple as we think he is."

"You do know where I'm going with this, don't you, Matsuda?"

Jesus Christ. Of course. You're not that fucking stupid.

You narrow your eyes down at your Incubator and nod. You have a few theories clanging about in your head, some plausible, others so far-fetched they could almost be considered nonsensical, even insane - and you're tempted to give voice to some of them, just to see how he'd react.

But instead, you simply speak the one theory that stood out among all the rest. The one that had never left you once it manifested there and stuck itself into the meat of your mind like a splinter.

"You know who Akemi Homura is." The words leave your lips in a growl, the cooled anger inside your chest simmering to a dull heat once more. The dolls around you stiffening to attention, porcelain heads swiveling around to stare at you from the dimly-lit darkness.

Kyuubey nods. "Akemi Homura, yes." He says the name like a curse, even though his voice never changes from its politely-condescending tone. "Now, before anything else, I--"

So he LIED to you, then. You snarl this as you step forward, making the Incubator flinch at your sudden movement. The mutant cat bastard LIED to you about no one having that kind of name when you asked him to look into it!

"Technically, no." Kyuubey replies, his voice trembling just a bit more as he makes the herculean effort to check his retreat and step forward. "I didn't lie, Matsuda. Not as such. There is no Akemi Homura registered in any existing Officio, nor named as such anywhere else in the world. So I wasn't lying--"

BULLSHIT! You're not falling for that kind of loophole! Fucking Incubators...! You glance around for something, anything to use to break Kyuubey's skull open. Knowing full well that you'd only be having him transfer to one of his spare bodies, but you don't care - it's been a long fucking day for you and killing something probably would help.

"Matsuda." Kyuubey cuts through the pink haze of anger clouding your sight, and you blink down at him just as you raise what looks like a broken table leg. "I told you the truth. There is no Akemi Homura registered in any Officio - nor does she appear in any public record. In this, I was correct."

...But then, how...? Why?

Your Incubator looks up at you before shaking his head. "The Akemi Homura I know of and chose not to tell you, Matsuda, is someone that my entire species - for lack of a better term - fears. A malevolent divinity that had very nearly wiped us and our civilization out in the seething, roiling tides of her own hatred." He pauses here for a moment, seemingly searching for the right expression to use. "A winged monster who hides under childrens' beds to prey upon them when they sleep, a cautionary tale used by parents to make their young behave."

What? Like some sort of boogeyman?

"Broadly, yes." Kyuubey nods. "The difference being that we know she's real, and when she returns - in the flesh, with carrion wings and in midnight clad, as you do now - we are tasked in using any and all resources in our disposal to enact revenge. Revenge for our world of origin, and those lives lost in her wrath."

...But that means--

"Yes." Kyuubey nods. "Once any of my brothers discover that you are now Akemi Homura reborn, Matsuda, we are undone. The rest will rally around that brother and strike with monumental force, here and now, to permanently remove you as a threat. And knowing how some of them are admirably thorough in their tasks, no doubt the entire Officio will also be murdered for the grave sin of harboring the Archenemy in its walls, and I will meet my end, executed via atmospheric immolation."

He chuckles, here. A soft sound, almost melancholic. "Dying as a shooting star. ...There are worse deaths, I suppose. My older brother, Sanbey, always wondered how it'd feel."

Shit. That's...that's fucked up.

Everyone? They won't even let anyone from the Ninth off? It's not their fault you turned out like this--

"We pride ourselves as a meticulous sort, Matsuda. We rarely leave any loose ends untied." Kyuubey shakes his head again, sounding way too calm for someone who'd just described, in full detail, how his own organization would be completely slaughtered just for the sin of being in the same Officio as you. "To be fair, I would do the same, were I in their place. Nothing personal about it, it's just how it goes."

...Jesus.

How do you react?

[]What if you turn me in yourself? Would that help any?

So? The Incubators were unable to do shit about Pinky already and her Griefseed is floating in space near the moon.
Homura is a reality bending eldrich monstrosity, ~~aka a Mature Witch~~ Trying to attack Akuhomu or Pinky would be like trying to declare war on god himself. Whatcha gonna do against someone who can bend time & space? You could start yelling at clouds as well, it would have the same effect.

You shake your head in pale-faced, wide-eyed disbelief. You had an inkling things were going to be a bit screwed up with your transformation, but you didn't think they would be THIS fucked. The Ninth Officio Assassinorum purged down to its last Magical Girl? Just because you took a fucking gamble at trying to figure out who you really are, and ended up with a slutty cocktail dress and a pair of freaky wings?

Everyone murdered because of you. Rea. Misaka. Sayaka. Wendy, even though she's from another Officio - they're not going to check in mid-slaughter, it's probably enough that she even knows your name.

Kyoko. Mami. Midori.

Christ. No. You're not...this fuckup of yours isn't--

You shake your head again, furiously this time, before whirling to face Kyuubey. Snatching the cat up off the floor with both your gloved hands and glaring straight at him.

He's got a plan, right? You snarl at him, immediately hearing - and inwardly cringing - at the desperation in your voice. He's got to have a plan for this. The little fucker always has a plan--

You stop here. Kyuubey is...well, he's shivering in your grip. Much like a kitten would when handled by a stranger. The sensation strange enough and unexpected enough to make your words die in your throat.

You'd call it cute, if it wasn't for the fact that the shivering thing is in fact an alien and your boss.

"Of course I have a plan, Matsuda." Kyuubey replies after a moment's hesitation, a hesitation overcome by need. "But first, please put me down. It'll be much easier for me to explain everything with all four feet on the floor than--"

--than being held up in the air like some fucking plush toy?

"...Yes. Now, if you please." You can't help but chuckle at this, despite yourself, and you obey a moment later. Giving him a pat on the top of his head as he gets settled in. He recoils at this too, his eyes blinking up at you with an air of offended dignity as a shiver runs down his small, feline body.

"Right. Yes. Thank you, Matsuda." He clears his throat a moment later, before continuing. "Now, as for what I plan to do, it's a relatively simple plan as plans go."

And that is? You can't help but think the worst, here - that either he'd offer you up to one of his older brothers, most likely the First, in an attempt to save the rest of his Magical Girls. Or better yet, maybe him doing it himself - having the entire Ninth spring up and commit Regicide. ...Or in this case, Warmaster...cide?

But yeah. THat would be the most logical thing to do.

No, wait. That would be the most INCUBATOR thing to do.

No loose ends, no questions, no nothing.

But instead of that, the answer your Incubator gives you makes you wonder just how much that 'insanity' thing with his brothers has affected him.

"To make sure that no one else knows about the changes you've gone through." Kyuubey replies simply, quietly. "To keep those in the know confined to no more than the personnel you were with at the time of the operation, and a handful of others who will assist in concealing your...mutations." He nods at your wings.

"Once we've worked out a method of continuous and automatic concealment with reliable contingencies, then operations will resume as they always have, but with a few key changes that I will have to refine and formalize first."

You stare down at him in silence, your brow furrowing as you frantically try to make sense of all the business speak. It takes you a considerable amount of time to finally lock everything into place. And when it does, you look down at him again, completely and utterly shocked.

\>But yeah. THat would be the most logical thing to do.

Throwing oneself upon the mercies of incubators does not strike me as a great idea, and no-one should know that better than an incubator.

He's not...he's not going to do the Incubator thing. He's not going to have you thrown out, or exiled, or killed. He's not even going to act in self-interest.

He's actually going to help you. Kyuubey is actually going to try and hide you from the other Officios - but in plain sight, rather than simply being taken out of the equation. A solution would have to be found first, though, something to continuously conceal your transformation - but when it's found--

"Yes. It'll be business as usual. You'll be allowed to leave this Silent Room and perform your mandated duties as Warmaster of the Ninth Officio Assassinorum." Kyuubey nods. "Again, with a few minor policy changes I'll have to look at, to see if they're already feasible, as well as finding a reliable method of concealment."

Right. Right. And how is he going to find that method? You're not sure if anyone has actually done something like this. You know, trying to conceal some eldritch wings without cutting them off. Or maybe you can tape them down--

"Leave that to me, Matsuda." Kyuubey interrupts, as politely as he can manage. "I'll figure something out. Hopefully before any of my brothers get the brilliant notion of visiting unnanounced."

Yeah. That would be pretty bad.

"For once, we are in unequivocal agreement, Matsuda."

You shake your head again as you look down on the fluffy form of your Incubator. Christ. Kyuubey is...putting his own neck in the line, here. Sure, he's fucked either way, but instead of taking the easy way out...

How do you react?

Insane. That's what Kyuubey is - insane. He's fucking crazy for even thinking that this shit will fly. Fine, you can stop time, and you're somewhat tied to the Golden Weapons, but at the end of the day you're just another rank-and-file Magical Girl that wasn't even all that good of a team player to begin with, much less a Warmaster to be proud about. So why...?

"Why?" You find yourself asking your mutant cat of a boss, making him look up at you, his perfectly-round head tilting to the side in that way cats always do when they're perking their ears up to listen.

"Pardon, Matsuda?" Kyuubey asks, seemingly puzzled. "Why...what, exactly?"

"Why are you doing this?" You ask again. "Did I pass my fucking amnesia to you or something, Kyuubey? Did you forget all the fucked-up shit I've done? "

Kyuubey doesn't even hesitate in his reply. "I fail to see how past events matter in my decision in the present, Matsuda. You're in my Officio, simple as that. Consider the matter settled."

"But you don't even like me!" You still can't believe it. Something's not right here. This fucking mutant cat--

"You're in my Officio." Kyuubey repeats, blinking. "Why are we still talking about this?"

Christ. It's...you're not...you shake your head for what feels like the hundredth time today, still too stunned to react properly. THis was above and beyond what you expected of the little fucker. And to think you were thinking that he'd promoted you to Warmaster as a goddamn joke...!

"If you're done questioning my motives, Matsuda, I believe you were about to ask me about the concealment method? Am I correct?"

Huh? You sniff here, just as you wipe your eyes with the back of your gloved hand. O-oh, yeah. Yeah, the concealment method. Does he have any ideas there...?

"A few, yes." Kyuubey nods. "One of which includes an escort of Callidus of unspecified number and rank to accompany you at all times. Another is through experimental surgery, and yet another involves certain drugs that may or may not be illegal. Of course," he adds with a shrug of his tiny shoulders, "...we will have to figure out which course to take after a few physical examinations. Nothing too untoward, Matsuda, just trying to see what we can do without it being too permanent or anything like that."

Huh. Alright. That makes sense. When do the exams start?

"I'll be sending your personal physician, Touno Asai, in here after she's attended to Kyoko Sakura. She'll do a battery of tests to make sure you're still in good health despite your changes. That would be much later, I believe. As for the other exams - well, one of them had already begun the moment you stepped in here, Matsuda."

Huh? But how...? Nothing's really changed since you got here, and--

YOu blink down at your hands, and your dress. And your wings.

They're still there. Even with you being in the Silent Room, they're still there.

"My point exactly." Kyuubey replies smoothly as you turn to look at him. "Right now, Matsuda, your costume and wings are still present, even when the Silent Room is pumping out enough antimagic to match that of a rank-and-file Culexus."

...Really? Shit. But what if you just cancel your transformation, and then--

You cancel your transformation - but all you manage to do is to make your wings flicker in and out of reality for a couple of seconds before they snap into existence again. Your dress does disappear, though, thank fuck, and you think you can bring back your old costume if you just focused hard enough. It'll take some doing, but it's barely out of reach.

It'll take some doing, but it's barely out of reach.

"...Fascinating." Kyuubey replies as he watches you experiment. "I'll make sure to take note of this as we consider the concealment method." A moment. "Oh, and while I am certain you would not attempt something like that, please don't try to leave the Silent Room unsupervised. Silent Room Regalia is programmed to blast its occupants with high volumes of antimagic, enough to cripple an entire assembled rank.

Fine. As if you've got any place to go anyway.

"Very good." Kyuubey nods, before making to leave. "In any case, that should be enough for now, Matsuda. Thank you for your time and honesty. Unless, of course, there is something else...?"

He stops in his tracks to look back at you.

What's QB really up to? Is playing bluff even with all the risks involved more reliable way out of this mess than trying to put Chiaki down? Since we're transforming in active Silent Room, might not even need our Soul Gem anymore and stuff. Does he believe the Moon-sized Grief Seed is greater threat and Chiaki might be the only way of stopping it? Does he plan a coup and Chiaki is the weapon he needs? Has he gone completely crazy? All of the above?

And question on Wendy herself:
How is her ranged combat capability? I realize given her rank and skillset she should be able to get up and personal pretty much always if that's her forte. But does she also do throwing knives (Sakuya style) or carry a backup piece of pocket artillery? I'd wager being on Chiaki's (then Murderface's) good side pretty much guarantees one gets gifted a gun at some point, because some moments need more than just booze and smokes. But can she actually use it beyond "hurt comes from this end"?

Question 1: Not telling!

Question 2: She's got some training with small and medium arms and carries a handgun (part of a standard-issue thing after a point, because you can't always reach the other guy). Generally if given a choice with her gun, though, she'll use it for suppression fire or for quick pot shots. ~~She holds it sideways. Siiidewaaays.~~

She's been known to throw knives and is probably better with that than with her gun - if it's not her kitchen knife, which returns to her hand with more or less a thought, she usually carries a few more.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 03/25/15(Wed)10:47:49 No.38928908 Archived

How is everyone else, then? How's Kyoko?

Kyuubey blinks at you, before nodding, turning to face you fully. "Kyoko Sakura is, as you may have surmised, currently undergoing full-body regeneration. Barring any unforeseen complications - of which I'm certain there will be little of, if not none at all - she will be up and about in two, perhaps three days at the most."

One of your dolls hisses at Kyuubey, and for a wonder, the Incubator glances towards its direction - before blinking and then returning his gaze back to you. Continuing as if nothing untoward had actually happened. "As for the rest of your squad - namely Wendy Cooldown, Mami Tomoe, and Miki Sayaka - they are currently being treated for their injuries in our medical facilities. Rest assured that they are also receiving the best care this Officio can provide for its members. In fact, if I remember correctly, your Equerry only needed a rudimentary checkup and a Soul Gem purification before discharging herself. Explaining that she had to run errands for a particular, ah, dildo."

He tilts his head to the side, in that way that he does when he's puzzled. "I don't suppose you know anything about that, Matsuda?"

>> ☐ Deculture 03/25/15(Wed)10:51:03 No.38928940

>>38928908

Eh? N-no. Well...maybe. You asked her to smuggle in a few things for you. Nothing illegal or anything, just some stuff to make your detainment a bit more livable.

"...You are not being detained, Matsuda." Kyuubey replies after a long moment, something approaching annoyance and resignation coloring his usually inflectionless, emotionless voice. "This is only a temporary containment measure for the unexpected results of the Prophet operation - and I do stress the word 'temporary'. We proceed as planned, simple as that. Once we figure out just what exactly Ahriman did to you, and a way to conceal it - if not reverse it completely - then you can resume your duties as my Warmaster."

The white furry creature then bows its head in a surprising and genuine gesture of humility. "Until then, know that your staying in this particular Silent Room not only contributes directly to the future operation and safety of this Officio, but also helps us get to the bottom of whatever happened much more quickly." You must have looked skeptical for him to add, '...and I'll turn a blind eye to whatever supplies Miki Sayaka smuggles into this Silent Room. So long as it helps you stay inside for as long as we need you to."

...Well, alright. That'll be a huge help. And you understand your situation a bit better now, allowing you to stop feeling like you're about to be double-crossed into an early retirement.

There are other things you want to ask him - like Yuma's death, and how it's left your Officio without a Culexus to rely upon, and what will be done with Oriko herself - but you let them go unasked for now. Whatever you feel for Kyuubey, there's no denying that the little bastard has a lot on his plate right now, and most of the shit piled into it is exactly your doing. Chances are he already has those two handled, anyway.

>>38928940

"...Chitose Yuma will be missed," Kyuubey suddenly says, out of the blue, as if reading your mind - and you blink as he shakes his head. "Finding a replacement who would be able to handle her responsibilities with even half her efficiency and dedication will be difficult, but not impossible. As for Oriko herself, Mami has suggested that we keep her in custody for now, to see how she's fared from spending all that time in the Akashic Realm, besides being possessed by Ahriman herself. Depending on her, we may be able to simply gloss her memories over the entire thing and let her live the rest of her life as a civilian, or we may go with a preventative contracting. Just to tie up loose ends, and everything." There's the faintest hint of smugness in that feline smirk of his. "Are you satisfied, Matsuda?"

Okay. So he did have them handled. ...Fucking cat. Yeah, you're satisfied for now.
And if you're honest, a bit more reassured about the entire thing, too.

"Always be ready to allay a subordinate's fears and insecurities, Matsuda, and you'll keep an organization together no matter how what comes your way. It doesn't matter if your answers are palatable or not, so long as you have some to give." The cat-like creature from outer space glances back towards the doors leading out of your Silent Room. "Now, if there's nothing else, I really do need to take my leave, Matsuda. Things need to be doing."

...Just one last one, then. If the Silent Room isn't really working on you as it is right now, then what's stopping you from breaking out of here...?

"...Actual consideration and concern for your own Officio, I hope?" Kyuubey turns to look at you askance. "...is what I'd like to say, but in the interest of being honest with one another, Matsuda, I'll say that I've taken my own precautions against that."

>> ☐ Deculture 03/25/15(Wed)10:53:55 No.38928972

>>38928951

He taps a paw against the cold metal grating that made up the floor of the Silent Room itself. "Should Regalia detect that you are attempting to escape its four walls without any prior authorization, then it will engage its highest Anti-Magic setting and direct the full force of it towards you, Matsuda, and will do so until the containment squads arrive."

...Squads, he says. Not squad.

"Again, only as a precaution, nothing more." He nods at you one final time, before making to leave. "Consider this some mandatory time off, Matsuda. Rest, reflect on things, and try not to make any more ruinous pacts with suspicious young women while you're here. And do put some clothes on, you'll catch your death of cold in here."

How do you respond?

...You'll try, you tell him. No dark pacts with suspicious young women. Got it.

After a long and awkward moment, you also belatedly apologize for wanting to break his skull open with a table leg. The table leg that you'd been holding ever since he confessed about lying to you about Akemi Homura.

"Considering the other ways you could have reacted, Matsuda, I'd say blunt force trauma with a piece of domestic furniture was the best-case scenario I could have hoped for." You hear the amusement in your Incubator's voice as he finally takes his leave, the heavy metal doors of the Silent Room closing behind him. "Apology accepted, in any case. Rest easy, Matsuda."

You watch the doors for a couple more seconds before letting out a sigh. Well, you know more about the situation and you don't feel as helpless, but...Christ, if what Kyuubey's saying is true, then you've put your entire fucking Officio in danger. Just one slip-up, one accidental witness, one overacting mutant cat bastard - and the Ninth could end up just like the Third. If not murdered down to the last Magical Girl, then its upper hierarchy executed and the bulk of it disseminated to the other Officios. From the first among equals, to being reduced to a footnote in the pages of history.

You shake your head as you hug yourself in the cold and lonely chill of your Silent Room, your wings bristling against your naked back. ...No, Kyuubey knows what he's doing. Little bastard cat's said as much, right? Knowing him, he'd probably even thought of what to do just in case something like this happened. You've heard from Mami that it was one of his hobbies - concocting worst-case scenarios in his head and then coming up with a way to resolve those scenarios to his benefit. You just hope that he managed to come up with this exact scenario, as fucking far-fetched and incredible as it is.

...Jesus. Listen to yourself. Trusting your fucking mutant cat bastard boss this much. Your past self would have laughed. Well, no, she'd probably just be really disgusted, both at your naivete and your fashion sense. ...Actually, Past You would totally shoot Future You too, if only to try and prevent such a fate from occurring.

You let out another sigh, before finally transforming again. Wincing as your slutty cocktail dress drapes itself over you once more, the top clinging to your form with a zeal that went past the border of tenacity and into something that could only be described as 'rapey'. ...Christ, you even miss the pantyhose riding up after every transformation, if only for the comfort of it actually being there to ride up.

Now there's nothing, except for your own modesty and your dubious ability to remember to actually sit with your legs together rather than crossing them or whatever. This fucking costume--

"...Are you having problems with your current state of dress, good for nothing?" IBARI suddenly pipes up, nearly making you jump in surprise at her sudden outburst. Fucking dolls, you almost forgot they were there with you! "I mean, you've been grumbling about it for nearly ten minutes now, so I thought if--"

"What are you talking about, Ibari?" USOTSUKI drawls from the corner, porcelain hands on hips, grinning head cocked to the side. "Are you suggesting that our perfect, our beautiful good-for-nothing actually HATES the sublime dress that she herself made with the death of a goddess? The cloth cut from the Veil Behind Reality, and the thread for the delicate stitching the interwoven fates of Magical Girls who fell to despair? And with each feather torn from the dismembered wings of a fallen angel? How ridiculous! How absolutely preposterous--"

"It's just a stupid dress," REIKETSU grumbles as she looks up from her gaming device. "Our good for nothing can hate it if she wants. And stop being so unnecessarily dramatic, Uso. No one's amused, and no one's buying."

"Are you calling me a liar?"

"It's literally your name."

"Well I never...!"

"A-anyway, yes, as I was saying, good for nothing, if you'd like..." IBARI glances at her now-bickering sisters, before turning back towards you with a furtive look upon her porcelain features. "...We can try and scrounge something up for you to wear, at least until you get your old costume back."

...They can do that?

"Of course!" IBARI smiles her wide, slit-cut smile. "We are here to serve you, good for nothing! Something that doesn't make you look like a ten-yen whore turning tricks behind the convenience store dumpster would be a cinch for us, even if we are an incomplete set!"

Well, that's...sure. You don't really see any reason why not. Something a bit warmer would be perfect at the moment, really...

"Consider it done!" IBARI snaps her porcelain fingers, catching the rest of the Dolls' attention. "Everyone, our good for nothing needs help! Come on, come on, look lively!"

You allow yourself a small smile, here. ...They're not really all that bad, once you got past the idea of them being demonically-grinning murder dolls. They could actually be pretty nice, if--

A metallic snap, and the sensation of something cold and hard clamping over your right arm - and you blink as your scarred Shield suddenly manifests on your form, even without you calling it up.

And it's ticking.

Really fucking loudly.

...No, it's actually not just ticking, it's fucking twitching. Jerking against its locked axis with every tick, with the arrythmic staccato of jammed clockwork.

"...Oh, dear." Ibari blinks, before stepping back. The rest of the dolls also doing so a moment later, their eyes wide at your shield. "M-Manuke? How is the--"

"S-she...she really wants to see the Good for Nothing," The red-haired doll with the cute beanie murmurs, her voice quivering. "...I...I would really recommend against ignoring her now...!"

Shit. SHIT!

...Fuck. Alright. Alright, you know how to handle this. You know how to get out of this in one piece. ...Well, hopefully, anyway.

You turn towards your cowering doll collection just as you begin to tear off the cocktail dress, allowing the loose feathery material to pool your feet. Telling them in no uncertain terms that you need new clothes to wear and you need them RIGHT FUCKING NOW. Whatever it is, you don't care, as long as you don't go into this impromptu meeting looking like the one thing Pinky has the biggest fucking murderboner for.

"B-but we haven't even started measuring!" IBARI protests, her eyes darting from the twitching Shield on your arm to the discarded pile of midnight-black cloth around your feet. "A-and then there's designing it, then picking out the right fabric, and--"

For fuck's sake! You manage to stop yourself from screaming at them. Just...anything! Anything at all! You'll even take that fucking platypus costume that the one with the fluffy hair was knitting together earlier!

"But to meet the Blessed Lady with--" IBARI's eyes go wide at this, before shaking her head. "N-no, no, things aren't that desperate!" She looks up at you, a determined expression on her face. "I...I think your old dress should work, good for nothing! Good thing we never threw it out!"

A bundle of carefully-wrapped black clothes falls into your arms, and you don't hesitate in unfolding it and throwing it on. It's...huh. It kind of feels like your old costume, with the bow tie at the collar and the frilly lace going around the hem of the knee-length skirt.

Gah, no time for that! You shake your head as you quickly get everything ready, patting your dress down and straightening your sleeves. Your wings...well, you can't exactly wear your dress over the skeletal pinions, so you instead fold them against your back as tightest and as closest as you can manage. Compressing them as much as you can behind you. With any luck, Pinky'll be too busy noticing your new threads to notice that you have, in fact, actual fucking wings. Maybe she'll think they're just cosplay accessories or something.

Just as you make to ask your dolls about how you look is when the Shield on your arm finally snaps. The furiously spinning wheels inside gnashing, crunching into each other as it turns itself on its axis a full 180 degrees with such force that you briefly wonder if it had broken the arm it was clamped onto in the process somehow. It certainly fucking felt like it.

But before you can check, you realize with a cold start that your Shield didn't exactly work the way you're used to it working. Your eyes going wide with this revelation, all color draining from your face.

Instead of simply stopping time - instead of turning the world around into that frozen, black-and-white realm where a grinning, insane demon with pink hair constantly hounded you - it had transported you somewhere different. Somewhere that eerily reminded you of the Akashic Realm - a place with no light and no warmth, only the stench of corpses and the sensation of walking on dead bodies with every step.

And in the middle of that lightless, lifeless place is a dining table, big enough to seat more than a handful of people. The kind of table with the expensive white linen draped over it, and even more expensive silverware piled on top of it. The sort of table you would only see in expensive restaurants where you had a spoon and fork for every conceivable dining scenario.

And at the head of this table is Pinky, wearing her usual grin. A knife and fork gripped in both hands, a comically-oversized bib tied around her neck. The words 'Let's Eat!!!' printed on the bib itself, in bright festive letters. It seems she hasn't noticed you coming around just yet.

Right. Here you fucking go, you think to yourself as you slowly walk forward.

If you fuck this up now, well, at least you'll die knowing you tried everything you could.

"Oh, Homura-chan!" Pinky exclaims as she seems to notice your arrival, brandishing a knife at your general direction in lieu of waving you over. "C'mere and pull up a seat! You're just in time for the main course, and--" She stops here as her eyes, still the same roiling, inky black of midnight, from sclera to pupil - widens at you. The moment of stunned surprise stretching over what feels like eternity, the dangerous uncertainty of the situation freezing your breath in your lungs.

Please don't find anything weird. Please don't find anything weird. Please don't fucking find anything weird about you wearing a fucking dress at ALL--

"...Oh, wow!" The eldritchian horror finally finds her tongue again, grinning once more. Her forest of blood-pinked sharpened teeth in full display. "Is that a new dress or something, Homura-chan?! That's so cute! It really brings out how much of a lameoid you actually are at parties!" She giggles - no, CACKLES - at her own joke, banging her utensil-wielding fists on the table. It takes her a few moments to calm down, and by the time she does, she's wiping blood-tears away from her cheeks with the back of her gloves.

"Kidding aside, that really is a cute dress, Homura-chan!" Pinky leans forward on her elbows as you finally take your seat from across her. "I don't even remember you dressing up for me like this, all those times I asked you to visit me! Usually you'd just be in your shitty schoolgirl-themed costume as always!"

Her pleasantly-surprised expression, already rendered into a horrific visage with her lethal features, turns into a sly, knowing glance. "Or is it that Homura-chan is trying to get points from me, now?! Hahaha, you dog, Homura-chan!"

She waves her fork at you this time, in a gesture akin to wagging a forbidding finger at a pet. "You're not supposed to fall in love with the villain here, you know!"

Well. It seems that Pinky hasn't noticed what happened to you just yet.

It's just up to you to make sure this continues. Don't fuck it up. Seriously.

You do know that she doesn't give a fuck about the Chiaki Matsuda personality and whether we agree with the TTO or not, right? Trying to distance ourself from our past doesn't matter to Pinky, because to her we must still bear the weight of our previous incarnation's crimes.

If you didn't notice, we got pulled in here before we even turned the shield.
We would have been pulled here anyway, whether we wanted to or not.
So considering that we would have wound up here regardless of what you wanted, you'd still be making a bad situation worse.

In my opinion, the setting is more about not doing something stupid to satisfy your own desire to know the truth, because you can frequently fuck everything up if you focus on the truth to the exclusion of the world around you.

I pilfered the method from a (sadly dead along with the old forums) thread on byuu.net on developing CRT shaders for retro emulators. It's really just masking each channel into columns, adding a 'scanline' mask (blank one row in every three), Stack a few copies with Dodge blending then blur the shit out of them to varying degrees to approximate phosphor 'bloom'. In no way physically accurate, but it looks nice.

You try to keep this stroke of luck going by distracting Pinky with flirting.

Yes, this is what it's come to. To prevent your face from being ripped off and eaten by a blood-maddened goddess, you have to awkwardly flirt with her before she notices what she's supposed to get mad at you about.

"...Guilty as charged," you try to reply as off-handedly as you can, leaning back on your chair in your attempt to sound...well, cool. Like how you imagine flirting to be. "I'll do what I like, though."

Yes. you're dead. You're SO DEAD. SO FUCKING DEAD--

"G-guilty...?" Pinky echoes, her eyes wide as the fork she's been brandishing freezes in midair - and it's here that you see her blush. Her pale, corpse-white skin reddening at her cheeks, giving the illusion of vitality in this all-too human display of embarrassment. Making this insane eldritchian horror in the faded pink dress and twintails resemble the girl that she'd once been, and not as the monster that she was.

For a moment, it looked as if your gambit failed, with the pink-haired despoiler falling silent once more.

But then--

"...You're crazy, Homura-chan," Pinky mumbles as she lowers her head, still reddening. "That's....that's crazy talk, you know? All this time I'm trying to make you hate me...why can't you just do the right thing for once instead of trying to be cool all the time...? What do I have to do for you to take me seriously...?"

W-what...? Your expression is carefully placid and stonefaced, but inside you're screaming. It's...it's actually working?

Christ. Pinky...you'd really find her cute if it wasn't for the whole fucking eldritichian thing. Oh, and the huge murder play to kill you and your loved ones in an orgy of Golden Weapon fire and blood.

"B-but forget about that! Let's start over! Delete, delete!" Pinky cries, brandishing her utensils like a recalcitrant child would when faced with a bowl of vegetables they clearly did not want to consume. She's still blushing when she forces herself to face you. "A-anyway, Homura-chan! I wanted to check up on you today, see how you were doing with the fetch quest and everything! It feels like it's been AGES since we started, and you've only just got your FIFTH Golden Weapon!"

She shakes her head. "I mean, I don't have anything against taking your time or doing things at your own pace, Homura-chan, but there is such a thing as being efficient with this kind of thing, you know?" Seemingly having recovered from her brief clash with human emotions, Pinky is back to her grinning self, even deigning to reach over and pat you comfortingly on the shoulder. "I'm gonna have to ask you to try just a bit harder, Homura-chan. We want this story finished before the sun dies, you know!"

You open your mouth to reply, before something you see stops you in your tracks: a large and monstrous shadow coming into focus near the table, carrying what appears to be a large, covered platter meant for the main course in a three-course meal. As it's placed on the table, Pinky's mood changes again, this time clearly hyped for the meal. The shadow trots off immediately into the surrounding darkness, dismissed by a word from the eldritchian horror.

"Ah, here we are, then! Just in time, I thought I was gonna go hungry tonight, too!" Pinky cackles as she pulls away the platter cover. Revealing the unmistakable corpse of Ahriman herself, cold and dead and lifeless. Slack, gaping holes where her eyes should be.

That's...she's going to...?

"OH, have some too, Homura-chan!" Pinky grins at you, either completely misinterpreting the disgust and revulsion in your voice or simply just flat-out ignoring it. "Please feel free! You helped prepare this after all, and I'm not that greedy! Besides, I'm on a diet!"

Without warning - with no preamble at all - the pink-haired demon reaches over and RIPS the corpse's left arm off its shoulder. Not even cutting it - Pinky simply gave the wrist a twist, then an jerk, before it came apart from the body's shoulder with a wet, juicy crack.

And then - just when you thought it couldn't get any worse - Pinky started eating. Biting into the fleshy limb she'd just taken, ripped kimono cloth and everything. Each crunching bite leaking gore and cascading blood down her front, splotching the cheerful party bib crimson.

"Anyway, like I was saying, Homura-chan, ya gotta speed it up a bit, you know?" Pinky says through a mouthful of fresh gore. "We're not getting any younger, and there's an awful lot of people who want to see this through! So maybe next time, stop - ulp - stop fucking around too much with your fat groupies and just go out! Who knows, maybe we'll actually get some decent arc progression out of it, too!"

You have no idea what she's saying, now. You stopped listening the moment she started to eat.

And truth be told, you find your mouth watering at the sight of it. At the sight of the remainder of the meal before you.

The broken, lifeless corpse of a Chosen. A Fallen Angel.

Beckoning you to give it a little taste.

What do you do?

BATTLE BROTHERS

Announcing some new changes to the wiki!

First, and most importantly: we've added a new Questions and Answers section on the wiki! Some wiki folks are currently trying to archive Thread Q&A and Deculture's Ask.fm Q&As on the wiki. They've also been categorized for easier search. The pages are currently under construction, but we've already uploaded a decent amount of anon questions. Check it out here:

http://wiki.magicalgirlnoir.com/index.php/Questions_and_Answers

Secondly, some of you may have already noticed this, but we're starting to put some of the write-ups onto the wiki as well-- for easier reading, easier navigation, and better usage of images. Hopefully, we'll get all write-ups onto the wiki some time in the near future. Here are some of the cool-looking writeup pages for the wikis:

I wonder what would happen if we started monologuing to Pinky about we've caught glimpses of the Blessed Lady's former glory and how much we want to restore her to that form, while accidentally revealing the wings to her.

I bet that would turn out GREAT.

I got cleared to do this thing, sorry for taking so long.

Here are all the new write-ups that I know about. Incidentally, they're all mine.

Magical Torturer Suzi Berry
http://wiki.magicalgirlnoir.com/index.php/Magical_Torturer_Suzi_Berry

Suzi interrogates a prisoner and convinces Eleanor to do something dangerous.

Omake: Not My Problem
http://wiki.magicalgirlnoir.com/index.php/Omake:_Not_My_Problem

Tenko is berated for giving up. Accompanies the previous piece.

Or you can just read them all at the link that TwiceBorn provided.

Thanks to Deculture for the thread letting me write
Thanks to Wendy for letting me use Cosette and Aki, for the curse of sneezing sea urchins, for the idea that Madge emotionally abuses her girlfriend when she drinks too much, for introducing me to the term 'knifeplay' (no, not like that), and for a bunch of other stuff
Thanks to TwiceBorn for looking it over

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 04/01/15(Wed)10:06:58 No.39066322 Archived

You've never been squeamish around corpses. You've never been one to turn pale or have your stomach lurch at the sight of a dead body. Not because you're tough or have some sort of fucking unbreakable iron will or anything like that - no, the reality is much more simple: you've seen too much of it for it to affect you.

You've seen enough corpses and made even more in your career as a Magical Girl that the natural, instinctive reaction hard-wired into every human being - that is, to be so disgusted and disturbed by a dead body that they can't help but stay the fuck away - is gone. You don't even smell the rotten-egg stench whenever you encounter one, unless you're actively looking for that scent in the first place.

You stopped having the nightmares a couple of thousand bodies back.

>> ☐ Deculture 04/01/15(Wed)10:08:13 No.39066333

You weren't disgusted, then, when Pinky revealed her dinner. You weren't disgusted when she tore Ahriman's arm off her shoulder, with all the ease of a child twisting the leg off a still-steaming roast chicken. You weren't even disgusted the slightest bit when she started eating noisily and messily, each bite crunching wetly through skin and meat and bone.

No, you started getting disgusted right around the time when you realized that you wanted to join Pinky in her gruesome meal - even before she offered you the chance to. Even before the tantalizing aroma of freshly-split flesh tickled your nostrils and made your mouth water at the prospect of tasting something you've never had before, but for some reason you're certain will taste absolutely divine.

...No. That's...no, you're not fucking touching that shit. You're not that far gone yet. Yes, you have the freaky costume change, you have the wings, you have everything else. But eating human flesh -- eating a fucking CORPSE --

You summon what little's left of your resolve to tear your eyes away from the bleeding, twitching body on the table, and focus directly on the crazed eldritchian goddess noisily having her meal in front of you. Not so much on the arm she's now treating like a fucking corn on the cob - moving the entire thing across her face as she continued to tear the flesh off of its bones in bloody, gory mouthfuls - but on how she seems to be having a really good meal. Even licking her lips and smacking them after every couple of bites.

It's...almost cute in a way, and for a moment it does work. The insane need for you to eat human flesh dissipating as you stared at Pinky's clear and obvious gusto at the same exact act.

"Hm? What's wrong, Homura-chan?" Pinky seems to finally notice you gawping at her, pausing in mid-bite to ask the question around a mouthful of arm. Her completely-black eyes blinking at you in mild puzzlement. "Is there something on my face? Why aren't you eating?" She jerks her chin towards the grisly meal on the table. "Oh, you need some hot sauce? I think I have a bottle of Explosion Sauce here somewhere. I think you'll like it, it's a smoky mustardy blend with a hint of cilantros, it tastes AMAZING--"

N-no. No, there's nothing wrong, and there's nothing on her face, either. And you don't need hot sauce. But--

"But WHAT, Homura-chan?" Pinky suddenly lets the nearly-skeletonized arm drop from her grip in a wet crimson squelch upon the already filthy tablecloth, a cinnamon-scented sigh leaving her lips in frustration. "What could you possibly NOT like about this setup? What the FUCK is it this time?! Look, we've got a table here, private romantic ambience, nice fancy tablecloth, nice fancy silverware--"

She plucks at the bloodstained linen with her clawed fingers, before tapping at the platter where Ahriman's still twitching corpse lay. "--and good, wholesome, healthy food! It's pretty much the perfect date, and yet you haven't even taken one single bite...!" Pinky shakes her head, before pouting mournfully at you. "Homura-chan, WHERE is this relationship headed? Why are you being so picky all of a sudden? I don't really get it, I just-- I really don't...!"

You swallow hard, trying to choose your words carefully here. You were....you weren't complaining or anything, you just wanted to ask about the body on the table, you tell her. You know who the corpse is, it's just that you don't understand why she's the main course. Isn't...isn't she one of the Chosen, or something? Someone she chose to wield one of the Golden Weapons? Why is she--

Pinky blinks at you, then shakes her head as she picks up the arm again. Brandishing the nearly fleshless-limb at your direction. "Here we are, Homura-chan, in what could be our very first dinner together, and you're ASKING about the fucking food? What, did you suddenly turn into a fucking VEGAN on me or something? Is fresh meat too good for you? Do we have to have a discussion about the food's FEELINGS?"

No, you didn't say that--

"She FUCKED it up, Homura-chan!" The crazed eldritchian goddess snarls at you, misting the air pink with the blood in her breath. "Fucking bitch actually TRIED to fucking zap me with the staff I gave her! After everything I've DONE for her, she goes around and throws it back into my face, saying she's made a mistake and she wants to set things RIGHT! She even sent her pet Culexus AFTER me, saying how she wanted me to turn back to my original self or whatever the fuck she said!"

This slavering, ravening tirade is then punctuated by the gunshot-loud crack of the severed arm in her hands breaking in two, the dry-twig snap of the arm bones enough to make you flinch. "NOTHING I HATE more than self-righteous little SHITS who think they can just put back EVERYTHING they've taken just because they're having second thoughts about going all the way." She spreads her clawed, bloodied hands, turning to look at you. "What the FUCK do I look like, Homura-chan? Huh? Some kinda convenience store where you can return the fucking milk carton you bought because you suddenly thought you overpaid on the way back home? HUH?"

You open your mouth to reply, but before you could, a rather nasty growl issues from somewhere underneath the table. One that Pinky winces at as she places a hand on her stomach.

"Ugh, great. And now I've got indigestion." She lets out a rather cute-sounding burp, before shaking her head. "Thanks, Homura-chan. You're a real angel, you know that?"

You're...you're sorry--

"Skip it. I'm not in the mood." Pinky waves a clawed hand in irritated dismissal. "I think I've acted out enough anyway, and you want to ask me questions, right? So ask away already, Homura-chan, while I try not to be too angry about you fucking up our first date ever." She huffs here, crossing her arms.

W-well. You...uh...well, at least she doesn't seem to know what happened to you just yet.

Jesus. You're skating on razor-thin ice right now, but you're still safe for the time being. Keep it up.

How do you respond?

[]Ask about the Golden Staff. If Ahriman's here, then who's the spirit inside it?
[]Ask her about the other Golden Weapons. If she wants you to work faster, she'll have to point you to where they are. And no more cryptic clues, you're shit at figuring them out.

[]Ask her if she remembers The Transcendent One and what she looked like.
[]Ask if there's any way you can make up for ruining your first "date".

If we ask her for an idea, there's a high chance we won't like the idea she comes up with. Better to offer an idea ourselves.

Also, asking about the Golden Staff could be bad, because if it is Yuma, Pinky won't like her for what she did to Girl A.

Back when Chiaki was sparring with Sayaka with the Chain-axes, Risa mentioned something about a corruption resistance. It was something along the lines of how Pinky didn't want them to keep doing it in such a way so that Chiaki would build up a resistance to it. So yes, probably.

There's also the bit where Ahriman transformed into some sort of twisted bird humanoid thing before Kharn killed her.

You stare at Pinky, trying hard to keep up with her hair-trigger temper and her split-second mood changes. Something...something feels wrong, here. Pinky has always been mercurial, with the eldritchian horror's moods coming and going with the unpredictability of lightning - but even you can sense the strange tension brimming inside the pink-haired demon, one that turned even her most benevolent mood changes sour.

Was this an effect of your newfound mutations? Whatever Ahriman did to you, was it also affecting Pinky here and now, making her edgy as well as easy to anger? You may never know - but what you do know is that you need to try and fix the situation yourself. Without having to rely on her propitious mood changes and sudden, benevolent periods of relative placidity.

...You're sorry about what you did to your "date", you tell her. If there was any way you could make up to her--

The glare that Pinky leveled at you at this point could have melted fucking iron, and you very nearly fail to resist ducking underneath it. But you don't, managing to keep eye contact throughout the entire time. Allowing the rest of yourself to unclench once

"...You want to make it up to ME, Homura-chan? Really?" The pink-haired demon lets out a shrill giggle, before tossing the broken bones she'd been angrily grinding together over her shoulder. The fragments clattering loudly on the tiled floor. "Y'know, you have a lot to make up for, not just this date, right? Are you fucking forgetting everything you've done? What you turned ME into, Homura-chan?"

N-no. No, you haven't forgotten. You know it's all your fault. You just wanted to try and ask if there's anything you can do to--"

"THERE'S NOTHING YOU CAN FUCKING DO!" There's a loud, deafening crash as Pinky smashes her fists down on the table, Ahriman's corpse morbidly bouncing on its platter with a wet squelch before ragdolling still. "NOTHING OTHER THAN DOING WHAT I FUCKING TELL YOU TO DO, HOMURA-CHAN! AND THAT'S GETTING ALL THE TWENTY GOLDEN FUCKING WEAPONS AND THEN GROWING ENOUGH BALLS TO TRY AND KILL ME!"

A flicker of light, and then the sound of detonating wood - a sound you barely catch from the sudden screaming of souls in your ears - and you barely manage to scramble out of your seat and back away in time as the table itself disintegrates in a sudden, invisible explosion. The grisly, lavishly-prepared corpse upon it also meeting the same vaporizing end, rendered into bloody minute chunks by invisible hands. All while Pinky glared at you with a hatred deep enough to hurt. Deep enough to cut the very soul.

...Alright. Alright. This is serious. This is going beyond just a fucking tantrum, she's legitimately pissed--

Something clawed and white and stained with fresh blood flits at the edge of your vision - and your reflex to try and block it with your arms is slow enough to let it through your pathetic excuse for a guard. A split-second later, and you find yourself slowly being strangled to death, Pinky's clawed hand all but crushing your windpipe in its grip as she lifts you off your feet. Holding you above her head.

"You're HIDING something, aren't you, Homura-chan?" Pinky snarls up at you, spitting blood as much as venom. "You've always been gaming the fucking system from day one, always asking the same questions to try and niggle for a clue, anything to get your edge up on the fucking plot. But now you're actually ASKING me how to make up for a date you ruined?"

Her grip tightens on your throat, and you feel something slowly start to crumple there, filling your mouth with blood. You try to aspirate it out, to try and cough out the rest before it drowns you - but all you manage to do is to make a few bubbles in the thick crimson liquid as it drips down your chin, neck, and the corners of your mouth.

"WHAT ARE YOU HIDING NOW, HOMURA-CHAN?!" Pinky asks you in a deafening, thunderous clap of thunder, backed by the choir of the screaming, tortured dead. "AND AFTER YOU MADE ALL THOSE FUCKING PROMISES...!!"

Quick! What do you confess to her?

That's a bit vague. It's implied she's 'goes around' but it's more heavily implied she simply leaves a kind, lasting impression on people, and that rumor stated she has a boyfriend of sorts.

And remember, Mami was the one blonde Kharn couldn't ever get to sleep with her. This is a fact. Regardless, Mami betraying Chiaki is a serious fucking situation, because not only will Mami be after us.

You try to say something - anything - but with your mouth and throat rapidly filling with your own blood, all you manage is a couple of drowned syllables and a whole lot of choking. You can't even fucking breathe - and it takes you desperately clawing and tapping at Pinky's strangling grip before she finally relents, letting you drop back onto the floor in an undignified, spluttering heap.

"Well?" The pink-haired demon snaps at you, impatience clear in her acid tones. "I'm WAITING, Homura-chan. What kind of doozy is it this time, huh? What kind of bullshit are you trying to pull? Spill your fucking guts before I rip them out of you myself--"

The moment you finally clear your throat of the bitter, coppery gunk threatening to drown you is when you finally manage to tell Pinky your chosen confession. It's not really what you're trying to hide, of course - the evidence of that is still folded tightly against your back - but it IS something that's you've been meaning to address when the time came. You just hadn't been thinking of it enough because of all the shit that's been going down.

You tell Pinky about Yuma. About how you accidentally killed her.

Kyuubey will probably say something about you not being responsible - the fucker's good at that, if nothing else - but you were in fucking command during that OP. It was your decision-making skills against the fucking Akashic Realm, and you won - except for a single casualty that you'll never forget, and you'll never stop feeling like it's your fault. And it most likely fucking is.

And you're not looking forward to the day when you have to tell your best friend what happened.

"...Oh." The eldritchian horror in the frilly, scarlet-stained dress says finally, looking down at you as you continue to choke and cough on your own blood.

And when she speaks again, after what seems like a long while, it sounds like you picked the right choice for now - the explosive anger in the corrupted goddess disappearing like vapor, replaced wth a quiet melancholy.

"You know what that is, Homura-chan? That's guilt. Cut and dried case. End of." She squints at you, as if trying to discern if your confession was enough to satisfy her. "Huh, there's a thing, isn't it? You can actually still feel guilt, Homura-chan, who would've thought? I mean, you've never really shown any remorse for anything you did, and whenever you did it was really just you pretending to actually give a rat's ass for all the people you fucked over."

It's here, then, that Pinky smiles. "If I didn't know any better, I'd say there was actually hope for you, Homura-chan. But then again, if there was, then you wouldn't be here, right? I wouldn't be here, too."

Pinky looks down at you again, before nodding to herself. A brief flash of amber staining her completely-black eyes. "...Fine, Homura-chan. While I'm in a better mood, I'll answer one single question truthfully. No cryptic bullshit that you're really crap at figuring out this time."

You look up at Pinky, your eyes widening as you see the amber flashing across her eyes once more. Her bloody, threadbare-frilled costume briefly replaced by a tattered white gown made to be worn by an actual goddess in the sky, before returning back to the damnable frill-infested tutu.

What...what the fuck is happening? Is Pinky...?

"I'm waiting, Chiaki Matsuda."

...Holy shit. This is...

This isn't Pinky anymore.

This is the Blessed Lady.

At this particular point if could be the fucking spymaster for all we know.
...That would actually make some sense actually. Last thing we need right now is a spy to learn we're Akemi Homura and pass that little tidbit down the grapevine to an incubator.

You wrack your brains for the one question you've always wanted to know the answer to. To be able to fucking get a straight answer for once - you have a feeling that whatever had dropped this chance on your lap, it'll be a long fucking time before it came around again. You have to make this one count, or else you won't be able to sleep thinking about what could have been.

"Who am I?" You ask the amber-eyed maiden standing above you like a deity of old about to bestow her blessings upon her most fervent followers. "Who the fuck am I?"

Pinky - no, the Blessed Lady - blinks at you slowly, before shaking her head. "Of all the questions you had to ask, Chiaki, that was the one you picked? The one question you've already been given so many answers to?" She gives you a small smile. "The Nameless One. Girl A. Murderface. Kong. Chiaki Matsuda. Akemi Homura. The Angel Slayer." The pink-haired goddess cites each name of yours in turn, her eyes glinting with amusement at some and in dark cynicism in some others - but you notice at how she winces at the last.

"Pick any one of them and fully adopt it as your own, and no one can accuse you of lying. For each one holds a nugget of truth on who you truly are, and--"

You shake your head furiously, cutting her off, your words leaving your throat in a desperate, throaty snarl. She promised! She promised no more cryptic bullshit! You want to fucking know who you actually are! For fuck's sake, even the Blessed Lady can't give you a straight answer on just that?! Does the fucking universe NEED to make you its fucking toilet so fucking much?!

The Blessed Lady shakes her head mournfully. "I wish I could have a better answer for you, Chiaki. But that's what keeps popping up no matter where I look, and even the Akashic Realm thinks that all those names apply to you, all of the same time. I'm, I'm really sorry..."

...Christ. So you DID just fucking waste your one good question on something that you could've asked Pinky yourself and gotten a better answer to, then. You let out a hollow laugh, the sound issuing from your ruined throat like the rasping of a rusty knife against a jagged whetstone. Just like you to do something so stupid. For fuck's sake--

"--Ask Wendy Cooldown about her friend, Nicole Touchdown." The Blessed Lady murmurs solemnly as you feel one of her hands alight gently on your shoulders. "She'll tell you all about the next Golden Weapon you'll need to find. Just tell her that she's a good girl afterwards and she won't feel so bad after."

You turn back to look at her, eyes wide. She smiles tightly at you, before continuing. Seemingly reading your mind of the other questions you had other than what you actually asked, and answering them.

"They're as real as you want them to be. Like everything about Mami, it's not about what's actually there, but what you feel should be there."

"Saving everyone is suicide. It can't be done, not without great personal cost. It's a heartless and thankless job, and at the end of the day no one will remember you for it."

"And no, Chiaki-san, jet fuel really can't melt steel beams. But if the jet fuel was already on fire, then that's another matter entirely."

...That's...wait, you don't even know what the last question came from! But you thought you only could get one of them answered straight--

"And you did, Chiaki-san." The Blessed Lady giggles, before stepping back. "I only answered one of them as clearly as I can, and the rest...well, maybe I didn't sprinkle as much cryptic bullshit as I was supposed to. But even someone like me knows how to abuse loopholes, especially when the need calls for it." Her smile falters here. "...You literally picked the worst option, so I thought I'd give you something extra to go on. Like a neat consolation prize!"

...O-oh. Well...that's...I suppose that turned out all right for you in the end, anyway.

The Blessed Lady nods. "Don't be afraid to make risky choices every now and then, Chiaki-san, but don't stray too much from what you originally decided to do, either. All your choices, big or small, will matter in the end, and when the time comes when you're staring your own doom in the face, you'll be happy to find out that everything you've fought for will see everything else through."

That's...that's comforting to know, you suppose.

"It's the best news I can give anyone so far, not just you, Chiaki-san." Pinky - no, Madoka, smiles. "And don't worry about Yuma-chan, alright? She knows what she was doing, and she gave her life willingly. Don't let her sacrifice be in vain."

You won't.

Madoka smiles again, wider this time, and you have the feeling it's the first time she'd ever smiled so happily for a long while. "Alright. Now, before I turn back into my, um, naughty side, I can tell you about something that'll happen to someone important to you in the future. No guarantees just when it'll happen or who it'll involve, but when it does, at least you'll be prepared for it. Understand?"

You nod. Madoka smiles again, before waving her hand in front of her. Three portraits manifest in the air before you - one with the grinning face of Kyoko, the other with the blushing face of Midori, and the other with the scowling face of Wendy.

"These are the ones with the most points you have right now, Chiaki-san, so you can pick one you'd like to get the hint about. ...And no, before you ask, I can't abuse any loopholes here. This is all I can give you, I'm afraid."

...Ah. Well...

Who do you want the hint to be about?

[]Kyoko.

[]Wendy.

Her illusions are great, but everything else is not. If something makes a good saving throw against her illusions, she doesn't have a lot of options to fall back on. That's why it might be a good idea to try to get her to cross-train with other professions so that she can either diversify or develop her skills into something that's more combat-ready.

Not really the worst, it was the 'partial answers for all of the questions' while all the other questions would have given you a thorough answer and just that.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 04/03/15(Fri)08:45:01 No.39105800 Archived

You give the three portraits a long, calculating glance. The...most points, she said? Points for what?

It takes Madoka a few moments to answer, her face blanking in slight puzzlement, her bright amber eyes blinking a couple of times. "Just...just points, I suppose? I never really asked what they were for." She tilts her head this way then that, cradling her chin with a clenched fist, brow furrowing in intense contemplation. "I...hm! That's...that's weird, Chiaki-san, I have absolutely no idea!"

...Huh. Well, if she doesn't know, she doesn't know. You just hope that it's for something good, since they're three of the people you'd kill to save.

At this, the pink-haired demon - no, goddess, you remind yourself - smiles. "...You have no idea how happy that makes me to hear that, Chiaki-san."

You blink at her again, feeling your cheeks inexplicably heat up at that adoring gaze - before you shake your head, clear your throat, and then gesture at the rightmost portrait. The one depicting Wendy, in her trademark expression of barely-awake disapproval.

"Well, there's a thing. And I was hoping to have a chance to pull the Green Hair Is The Danger line on you. Oh, well. Maybe next time!" The goddess giggles, before dispelling the portraits with a wave. Another gesture of her gloved hand, and a glowing...something materializes directly in front of you. You reach out to touch it--

--and gawk as it falls into your outstretched hands as a warm scrap of silk.

One that's completely white, with a small band of checkers where the tiny ribbon should be.

Is...is this...?

"Someday, Chiaki-san, you'll get a chance to reunite Wendy-san with her killer." The entire room suddenly grows dark, just as a spotlight cracks open above Madoka, bringing her into sharp illumination. A microphone in her hand. "Remember: you aren't the first person she answers to, or even the second."

>> ☐ Deculture 04/03/15(Fri)08:45:42 No.39105807

>>39105800

A dramatic chord blares from somewhere, nearly making you drop the scrap of cloth from your hand - and you blink incredulously as the goddess points a finger at you. "But don't despair! A little trust can have far-reaching consequences, but in this case, more good will come of it than bad."

...So, she's...she's saying that you should trust Wendy? That's the hint?

"Mm-hmm!" Madoka nods, smiling. "Oh, and don't forget aftercare! Never ever forget aftercare, Chiaki-san! Petplay is really easy to get right, but it's just as easy to get it wrong, too! A responsible pet owner should never forget about aftercare, especially when--"

What? WHAT? PETPLAY? You're not...you don't even know about that! And what does Wendy's panties have to do with trusting her?!

The goddess turns away here, blushing. A guilty little grin on her face as she twiddles her thumbs.. "A-ah, aheh, I thought that's what you were into, Chiaki-san, so I thought...umm..."

You're not Kharn, dammit!

"Sorry, sorry! I just thought--" The pink-haired girl clasps both her hands in front of her in apology - before suddenly staggering backward. Something inside the room SCREAMS as blood begins to drip down the immaculate dress, blood leaking out from the corners of her rapidly-blackening eyes. "O-oh...oh no. Chiaki-san, she's waking up! Please, turn off your Time Stop! I'll make her forget we ever talked, just get out of here! And don't talk to her for a while, no matter what you do! Not until you get your wings fixed!"

W-what? But--

"JUST GO!"

What do you do?

[]Immediately cancel your Time Stop.
[]Try and ask her one more question before doing so.

You don't waste another moment. Grabbing the rim of your Shield, you grit your teeth as you force it back into its neutral position - the gears inside grinding and crunching and rasping in protest as you attempt to cancel your Time Stop. Cursing underneath your breath as it slowly turns, inch after painful inch, centimeter after fucking centimeter. Only a few more to go, and it'll lock back in place...!

Madoka screaming your name makes you look back up - and you immediately wish you hadn't. While her transformation from Pinky to Madoka necessitated nothing more her eyes changing color and her dress manifesting over the bloodied costume, the way back is much, much worse and much more horrifying. Whatever was twisting the coy, innocently-smiling goddess back into her murderous eldritchian counterpart was making her literally gouge her eyes out with her own hands. Her own fucking hands. While she screamed.

It's not something you'll forget in a hurry.

"T-thank you!" You scream at the suffering, dying deity. "MADOKA! THANK YOU--"

"HOMURA-CHAN, IT HURTS!" The response you get is a panicked, pain-filled scream of someone desperate enough to start begging. "PLEASE, NO, YOU DON'T HAVE TO DO THIS! HOMURA-CHAN! PLEASE, HOMURA-CHA--"

The heavy metallic click of your Shield finally ticking over and locking into its neutral position cuts off the blood-curdling scream - and the progression of time, along with the existence of the Silent Room you've been imprisoned in, returns in a deafening crash of gears and metal.

You immediately dispel your Shield, briskly shaking your right arm to hasten its magical disassembly - and it's with relief that you sink back down to the floor, trying to make some sense of what just happened, while trying to get your own breath back. Your wings finally untensing from their folded position behind you in twin, cramped twinges of pain.

What the fuck? What THE FUCK was that all about?

Every fucking time you visit Pinky, it always ends in fucking screaming. Or you nearly having a fucking heart attack.

"Good...good-for-nothing?" You blearily look up, still panting, and you see your dolls slowly and gingerly approach you from the corners of the Silent Room. Maybe once you'd have been disturbed at them suddenly surrounding you like this, but now it's...almost a comforting sight. Even OKUBYOU, wearing her ridiculous platypus costume, helped in making you feel like you had some semblance of control again. Some degree of normalcy.

"Good-for-nothing, are you alright?" IBARI tries again, and you wave heroff. You're fine, you tell them. You just need a moment to recover. You reach up with the scrap of cloth in your hand to wipe the sweat off your forehead - only to stop midway as you remember that it's not just a regular scrap of cloth you're about to rub across your face, but a certain special scrap of cloth that should be treated a bit better.

"Did the Blessed Lady give you anything useful, good-for-nothing?" IBARI asked after you carefully fold the pair of panties like a handkerchief before stuffing it into your gown's pocket. "Something besides masturbation material, we hope?"

Masturbation material--for fuck's sake, does everyone think you're THAT kind of pervert? Because you're not--

"Yes, yes, of course, good-for-nothing, your innocence and modesty is without question," USOTSUKI snaps from behind WAGAMAMA. "We wish to hear the wisdom the Blessed Lady imparted upon you! Give us that much, at least!"

Behind them, huddled in the corner, you see MANUKE looking at you, something unsaid in her eyes.

What do you do?

[]I'll tell all of you later. For now, fetch my journal, I need to write something down.
[]Tell them what Madoka told you.
[]Tell them to clear off for now, you need to think on your own for a while.

You return MANUKE's uncertain stare, before looking back at the rest of your dolls. ...You'll tell them what she told you later, you say with a voice laden with not-entirely-faked fatigue. For now, they can make themselves useful by fetching your journal.

Your collection of dolls glance at each other, trading puzzled looks and quizzical shrugs, before IBARI finally speaks for all of them. "...As you command, good-for-nothing." She says this with a sigh, before raising her voice and brandishing her hatpin-scepter. "Everyone, please help me call upon the lords of the underworld to bring forth the Murder Journal."

"GOT IST TOTT!" The rest of the dolls cry out in cultish chanting. "GOT IST TOTT! GOT IST TOTT! GOT IST TOTT! GOT IST TOTT!!"

You open your mouth to ask them just what the fuck are they doing - you only asked them to bring you your fucking journal, not start their freaky satanic worship - when suddenly the temperature inside the room ratches up a couple of hundred degrees, immediately making you sweat through your new clothes. Sirens begin to blare loudly inside the anti-magic prison cell as the metallic grill-plates of the floor start to ominously rattle in their slots.

And then, with a sudden, earth-shaking jolt that very nearly throws you off your ass and facefirst into the floor's iron grillwork, a giant, horned demonic skull smashes into the room from below - the edges of its manmade portal glowing white-hot with liquid magma. Its exposive entry heralded by a thousand-person Choir of the Damned screaming in a fine mezzo-soprano, synchronized with a thousand death metal tribute bands mangling the three-note chord that is the core of every metal monster anthem ever.

>> ☐ Deculture 04/03/15(Fri)11:15:13 No.39107592

>>39107573

Your eyes go wide as the horned skull leers down on you, its own eyes formed by smaller, burning skulls rattling inside its hollow cranium, screaming from its cavernous sockets - and you hear your name praised by a thousand daemons as the skull opens its mouth to spit out a book onto the floor. A book that, while still burning itself, falls beside your feet in a solid metallic thunk.

And then, as quick as this infernal display appears - it disappears, the giant horned skull disappearing back into the depths of hell from where it sprouted from, leaving no trace of its intrusion. The sirens and the shaking stop too, along with the screaming orchestra.

Just...just what the fuck happened there? You shake your head here, completely and utterly confused. Just...just what in the Blessed Lady's name--

"Your journal, as you asked, good-for-nothing!" IBARI chirps as the rest of your dolls walk forward to lift the book off the floor, presenting it to you - and you swallow hard as you behold it in full view. It's not the journal you remember. The journal you remember was a slim black leatherbound volume, with crisp unlined pages. This...this isn't just a book, it's a fucking TOME, easily the size of those big coffee table books. The cover bound by what feels like tough, peach-colored leather, finely stitched with black thread. The corners festooned with mordant symbols of death and destruction, sigils of evil gods upon thrones of skulls and corpses.

There's a...there's a fucking EYE in the binding. An actual human fucking eye, completely black from pupil to sclera, set inside what smells like a glass bottle of formaldehyde set into the book itself. The oversized swiveling every now and then to face you.

>>39107592

"Your pen, good-for-nothing!" IBARI volunteers helpfully, offering you a huge peacock-feather quill as you gingerly open the book on a random page. Your eyes widening again as you see, in the gold-edged pages of thick, rich cream paper, your own handwriting. Your own notes, with the circles and the arrows and indecipherable connections. But written in hellish crimson ink. Like blood, if blood didn't dry into rusty brown smears if spilled onto paper.

"Oh, we mustn't forget your ink!" Another doll holds up what looks like a child's skull, with the skullcap sawn clean off and placed upside down to provide a shallow ink pot. Its contents a constantly-roiling puddle of glowing crimson ink smelling of copper and salt tears.

"Go on, then, good-for-nothing! Please update your journal!" Your entire doll collection chimes in unison.

How do you react?

[]Why. Why this.
[]...This isn't my journal. Bring my old journal back.
[]Just...just fucking go with the flow. They seem really enthusiastic about it anyway, might as well throw them a bone and Update your new journal.

Alright, alright already, you tell them as you take the huge spiked tome and lay it flat on the floor in front of you, with the inkpot placed within easy reach of your quill. You'll update your fucking journal, sure, just so long as they calm down about it and stop chanting in fucking German.

"Yes, yes, of course good for nothing! Whatever you say!" Your doll collection chirps in eager, almost gleeful obedience as they start to crowd around you. Taking their places beside your own spot on the floor, their eyes riveted on the oversized tome's open pages - and, you suspected, on your every move.

You do your best to ignore this as you flip past the filled pages of your new journal. Noting how disturbingly natural your writing looked, as if you'd been writing on this particular book all along instead of the much smaller, much more ordinary-looking leatherbound volume that Wendy gave you.

...Wait. If this was really your actual journal, then--

You quickly flip back to the very first page of the huge spiked journal. If your suspicions are true, then what you're looking for SHOULDN'T be there. Which would mean that this was just a word-for-word copy, and not your real journal. Which would also mean that your real journal was still in its easily-portable, much more convenient form, and you just need to fish it out of your inventory.

Looking down at the first page, you squint as you see the handwritten dedication there, signed by two initials you have no issue figuring out exactly who they belonged to. The handwriting all pretty curves.

'Think of a journal as fuckup insurance. Even regular jackoffs forget things, sometimes. Don't beat yourself up too much for it, just try to fix whatever it is.'

...Yeah. Yeah, okay. This is your journal, alright.

You have no idea what that means, but you're sure it's nothing good. Nothing good at all.

You shake your head, and flip back again to the last filled page, and then situating yourself at the fresh, unmarked page adjacent to it.

And so, with your oversized peacock-feather quill and your child's skull inkpot, you slowly and carefully begin to update your journal. Writing down the most important details you've found out ever since you touched your journal last: your transformation, triggered by Ahriman's gambit. Sayaka's anger management problem, and how it manifested as a sword-wielding monomaniac hell-bent in cutting you to pieces. Said monomaniac's weakness to bad JPOP idol music. Yuma's sacrifice, something you underline multiple times.

From there you continue listing down more items, and drawing their correlations to other items with lines and crudely-drawn arrows. Linking your transformation to the Incubators' most hated archenemy, Akemi Homura.

Akemi Homura, who Superdildo Sayaka wanted dead no matter what.

Superdildo Sayaka, who calls herself the First Knight and sees it as her sacred duty to execute you.

And your execution, which would most likely come in the form of an Officio Exterminatus if you didn't handle the matter with your fucking wings correctly. Since, you know, everyone just fucking hates you right now.

You also write down what Pinky - no, Madoka - helped you with. Your real identity - which you cross out and scrawl angry crimson question marks over instead, since that particular line of questioning ended up just pissing you off even more. Her half-answers involving the next Golden Weapon, then Mami, and then something about fuel and steel beams. ...No, you still don't get that last one either.

The final nugget of information is one you dedicate its own page to: that is, the hint that Madoka gave you about Wendy. Making a large postscript for you to see so that you don't forget it no matter what you do: to trust your brown-haired American ex, even if it looked like she was working for somebody else other than you. ...Or at least, that's how you interpreted the advice as. It sounded right, anyway.

You clear your throat and mark on the page, a smaller postscript, a reminder for you not to forget about aftercare. Whatever the fuck it actually is.

"Why such a large reminder to trust your side bitch, good-for-nothing?" One of the dolls beside you - the one with the sort of half-veil on her head, matted blonde hair covering her scalp - chirps. "Surely you don't need that huge of a reminder? Don't you trust her at all?"

"What does it matter, anyway?" NEKURA lets out an irritated sigh, completely at odds at how she's gawping at your own penmanship. "Everyone's going to betray us in the end. Even the green one."

"But I thought that entire 'green hair is the danger' is just one big fat joke!" HIGAMI pipes up from behind YAKIMOCHI and WARUKUCHI. "Come on, you don't think the green one can actually...!"

"Everybody." NEKURA wags her finger at the doll with the funny-looking trilby and the garland of white flowers. "I did say everybody, didn't I? Just you wait. We'd have been better off killing everyone first and then doing our sacred duty. Much cleaner and easier that way!"

Christ. You can't update your journal like this.

How do you respond?

[]Tell the dolls to shut up and behave. Daddy's doing busy work.
[]Ask NEKURA where she's getting her intel. She sounds like she knows something you don't.

Alright, the truth then.

You're right about one thing... I do need memes. And trolling. Wanna know why? I have a dream! That one day every person in this quest will control their own destiny. A thread of the truly free, dammit. A quest of action not words. Ruled by strength not committee. Where the vote changes to suit the individual, not the other way around. Where power and justice are back where they belong: in the hands of the Anons. Where every Anon is free -- to think -- to act -- for himself. Fuck all these limp-dick chucklefucks and chicken-shit waifufags. Fuck this 24/7 internet spew of trivia and lewds bullshit. Fuck MGNQ tradition. Fuck the drawfags. Fuck all of it. MGNQ is diseased. Rotten to the core. There is no saving it -- we need to pull it out by the roots. Wipe the slate clean. BURN IT DOWN. And from the ashes a new MGNQ will be born! Evolved, but untamed. The weak will be purged, and the strongest will thrive -- free to write as they see fit, they'll make MGNQ great again.

You still don't get it. I'm using trolling as a meme to get elected... so I can end trolling as a meme. In my new MGNQ, people will die and kill for what they BELIEVE. Not for waifus. Not for lewds. Not for what they're told is right. Every Anon will be free to write his own canon.

So... what do you think?

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 04/04/15(Sat)08:37:15 No.39127811 Archived

You decide to continue updating your journal in silence. Whatever your dolls are talking about, it's probably just some harmless gossip you can safely ignore. Besides, you're still not sure what they're all about in the first place, and if whatever intel they can give you can actually be believed.

Still, you can't help but hear some of them.

"The White Seer will make her move against the Golden One soon...!"

"The Blood Knight needs to be set free so she can spread her wings, and maybe work off a few pounds to fit into her armor of golden fire!"

"The Blessed Lady's really pissed, isn't she? She really needs to get laid soon--"

"Ugh, someone fucking tell the good-for-nothing to take a fucking shower already, she smells like crispy-fried souls! Yech!"

Just as you look up to snap at the particular grinning doll who came up with that last zinger - namely WARUKUCHI - it's here that the doors to your Silent Room grind themselves open again, the huge metal barriers folding back on ponderous metallic cranks. And what they reveal as they slide apart is a sight for sore eyes - it's your Equerry, Sayaka, with your beloved chair hefted on one shoulder and what looks like a grocery bag full of supplies hanging from a free hand.

"The First Knight comes!" One of your dolls, you don't catch who, shrieks. "HUSTLE! Don't let her see you!"

>> ☐ Deculture 04/04/15(Sat)08:38:30 No.39127821

"Alright, Murderface, got the stuff you asked for here!" Sayaka announces as she steps over the threshold - her costume vanishing with a burst of static, leaving her in rather casual-looking, specifically a white T-shirt with the bold black slogan 'THE DEVIL LOVES SANTA DESTROY' and form-hugging black spats.

It's to note here that even with her costume dispelled - clearly by the Silent Room's antimagic effects - your Equerry doesn't even break stride in crossing the length of the room, even while loaded down with your heavy-ass chair. The muscles underneath Sayaka's shirt moving and shifting in smooth, oiled concert as she lowers the piece of furniture down in front of you, with the bag of groceries almost carelessly dumped upon the seat. The contents inside rattling and clanking noisily.

"Snacks, pills, booze, stuff to keep you occupied, and chair." Your Equerry smiles in self-satisfaction as she dusts her hands. "Everything you need and everything I could smuggle without alerting the goon squad outside your Silent Room." She looks down at you and frowns, before shaking her head in resignation. "Yeah, okay, I'm not saying you need to get up or anything, Murderface, but the least you could do is say thank--what the hell is that thing?"

You blink at her, before glancing at your doll collection huddled at the far corner of the room, seemingly distancing themselves from the blue-haired Eversor as much as possible. You see one of them, IBARI, tap both her porcelain eyes and shake her head. ...So no, Sayaka can't be talking about them, because she can't see them. Good. Which means--

"I'm talking about that book, Murderface." Sayaka points to the massive tome open on the floor in front of you, the page it's open on already ruined with your own scrawled handwriting and over-enthusiastic diagrams. "...Is that...is that your journal? Didn't you have that small black book that Wendy gave you? What happened to that?...And is that a fucking peacock feather quill?!"

How do you respond?

[]Tell her the truth. "It's my new journal now. No, I don't know how it got like this either."
[]Ignore her question, and ask her about what's happening outside, as well as the 'goon squad' she was talking about.
[]Ask her how Kyoko's doing. Crack open a bottle of Kong while you do so.

Now, I'm not saying the Clara dolls can be trusted completely, but if Mami had anything to do with Yuma's decision, we may have to deal with Haruka.

Also:
>"The Blood Knight needs to be set free so she can spread her wings, and maybe work off a few pounds to fit into her armor of golden fire!"
>"The Blessed Lady's really pissed, isn't she? She really needs to get laid soon--"

Well yeah, I'm assuming that the White Seer is Haruka. Golden One is Mami in all probability. The question remains why.

I'm guessing that in the interval between Mami's return and Yuma's sacrifice, something went down in the command centre with Mami's involvement.

That or Haruka is just lashing out at convenient targets, although one wonders why not go after Chiaki.

On a second reading,
>armor of golden fire
is somewhat distressing.

Speaking of blondes, I just put something together.
Nero (Warmaster of XIVth) usually wears this kinda lewd outfit, with transparent front, showing off her underwear for everyone to see.

You ignore her question about your journal. What the hell are you going to tell her, anyway? That when you asked your invisible doll collection to fetch it for you, they instead summoned this huge horned skull boss to claw its way out of hell and personally deliver it to you? And while a fucking metal orchestra is booming in the background?

So instead of giving voice to THAT madness, you finish writing down what you've learned so far, before clapping the spiked tome closed. The heavy volume covered by shifting god-runes and symbols of outer gods disappearing with a brief flash of black flame, along with your quill and inkpot.

"...Updated my journal," you murmur under your breath, before pulling yourself up to your feet and making a beeline for the supplies Sayaka brought in. Patting your ass free of dust as you do so.

"Murderface...?" Sayaka tries again, clearly and utterly confused at this sudden silence of yours. Watching you rummage through the grocery bag with clear wariness in her eyes. "Murderface, come on, you're freaking me out. What the hell was that book? It looked like it had, like, dried human skin for the leather cover, and--!"

"How's Kyoko doing?" You cut her off as you pull out one of the heavy clinkers from the bag - abottle of Kong, with its signature four-cornered style and its simplistic label with a roaring gorilla's maw on the front. A sigh escapes your lips - it feels like an age since you saw one of these - and you twist off the cap with your teeth and spit it across the room before taking a long, healthy swig.

Ahh. That's the stuff.

"Kyoko?" It takes a moment for your Equerry to answer, clearly still a bit wrong-footed at your taking charge of the situation. "W-well, she's doing alright. Responding well to full regeneration as far as I heard, which means we don't have to worry about body desynchronization or anything like that. With luck she'll probably be able to visit you tomorrow."

She frowns as you take another swig, longer and deeper than the last. "Hey, uh, Murderface, you wanna take it easy on that...?"

You shake your head as you swish the whisky around your mouth before swallowing it, relishing the burn of the strong, cheap alcohol, before thrusting the bottle at her direction. Sayaka blinks at this, before slowly taking it from your hands, her eyes riveted to the bottle's rim. Lifting it up to her lips after a brief glance at your direction - her cheeks reddening slightly - and then tipping it back for a swig of her own. Coughing and sputtering as she lowers it again, a sure sign of a lightweight. She must have seen the amusement in your eyes, though, as she frowns at you before taking another sip.

That's good about Kyoko, then. Confirms what Kyuubey told you. You feel a bit more relieved for your best friend. Sayaka nods and holds out the bottle of Kong back to you, which you gladly take.

"Yeah, me too. Not sure if you know about it since you haven't really gone through it yet, but there's a lot that can go wrong with a full-body regeneration." The blue-haired Eversor shakes her head. "Sometimes the Magical Girl inside the Soul Gem's so used to her former body that when you put her in her new body, she can't help but feel that it's not her body at all. She knows it is, but she can't stop feeling it. It's like a whole-body phantom pain thing, and can really set off some nasty mental stuff."

A sigh escapes her lips. "And then there're stuff like mutations and such, where the machines doing the regenerating accidentally fuck up with the full-body regen and just do crazy stuff with her genetic makeup. Which, again, can do a number on the Magical Girl trying to acclimatize to having a body again."

...Well, you're sure that's not going to happen to Kyoko. Kyuubey did say he was sparing no expense to get your best friend back up on her feet. You take another swig again, a bit shallower this time, and pass the bottle once more to Sayaka. Asking her now about what's been happening outside, as well as the Goon Squad she was talking about.

"Outside? Not much is actually happening, really." Your Equerry obliges you with another swig of her own, her cheeks reddening more and more with every gulp. "The rumor mill's pretty quiet, or at least quiet enough that I can't catch what it's saying. Kyuubey seems pretty relaxed about the situation too, although I hear Mami's gearing up to visit the First or something. After she recovers from the op, anyway."

...The First? That's...why would she visit the First?

"Not sure, but I'd wager Kyuubey wants her to synch up with Vintage, see what kind of information she can get for your situation." A pause. "Oh, and I think Kharn's being called over to check up on you too. See if you need to get another procedure or something."

Kharn? Now your eyes are wide behind your glasses. Kharn, from Siberia? Kharn the Betrayer? She's coming HERE?

"Exactly my fucking reaction, Murderface. Now that's something everyone is just looking forward to. Even the newbies are looking forward to seeing the freakin' Betrayer, hoping that she isn't really married." Sayaka takes another swig again. "Un-fucking-believable."

...Christ. That's...well.

Anyway, about the goon squad she was talking about...?

"Oh, that's what we usually call the squad of Eversors that're supposed to guard a Silent Room. Kind of a derogatory term, since we believe that guard duty's more of a Vindicare thing. No offense, Warmaster." Sayaka grins at you. "Anyway, you won't believe which squad Kyuubey asked me to station outside your door."

Despite your situation, you can't help but chuckle at the idea of Kurumi Erika still being salty with you for shooting her one of her kneecaps out - so salty that she's itching for you to try anything to get you back for it. It's more amusing than the idea of a newbie squad of Eversors guarding your fucking Silent Room. Not that you're one to toot your own horn - you have other people to do that for you, tee hee - but have they forgotten what you did to three whole squads of Eversors that one time? You could probably blow her other kneecap from here, through the fucking Silent Room's walls. Sayaka just needs to give you her relative location and you'd do it in a heartbeat. BLAM. One squealing Eversor on the floor without her other kneecap, squealing like a stuck pig.

Sayaka grins wryly at you as she passes you your bottle back, the amber liquid sloshing inside now reduced to half its original quantity. "Alright, alright, don't get carried away, Murderface. Yeah, no one's forgotten about THAT, but you know how it is with new recruits, right? All of 'em with fire in their stomachs, looking to prove themselves by breaking Officio records and challenging their freakin' squad leaders to honor duels. Most of the time it ends up badly, but other times..." She shrugs. "...they'll surprise you."

You smirk as you make to drain the bottle of Kong completely in one deep swig. Exhaling hotly as you feel the warmth settle in your stomach. Is she actually fucking saying that Heartcatch Squad can take you out, here?

Sayaka shakes her head. "Honestly? No. Probably a snowball's chance in hell, really." It's here that she actually SNATCHES the bottle of Kong from you. "But with Heartcatch Squad under new management, well...anything can happen, you know?"

Huh? So Heartcatch Squad has a new leader, then? Who?

"Ecstasy Darks. Remember her?" Sayaka rakes a hand through her hair for emphasis, before completely draining the bottle of Kong empty. Her cheeks as red as they could ever be. "One with the bob cut? Hanasaki Tsubomi went ahead and gave her Squad Leadership after what happened. Told her she didn't need to do that kind of thing, since they were already disciplined and all, but she was adamant to step down and learn how to be a good squad member first before being a leader again. As you can probably predict, Kurumi was fucking livid. Nearly had to make her spend a night or two in a Silent Room myself."

Heh. Sounds like her, alright. But how's Darks, then, as a leader? You had an inkling she'd be good for command, from what little you saw of her.

"Doing pretty good. Good enough that I can't really predict what'll happen if she was leading a squad of Eversors trying to take you down, Murderface." Sayaka chuckles. "And no, I'm not overselling them or anything. They ARE that good, they just don't look it or act like it too much. So just, you know, try not to do anything stupid. I don't want this gig to be permanent." Your Equerry then groans, her voice ripe with misery and suffering. "Acting Fucking Warmaster. Chriiiist."

Hah. Well, you'll try...

"Good."

...not to get caught.

"...Aw, fuck you, Murderface." The both of you glare at each other, before breaking out in low chuckles. Sharing the burn of the whiskey in the cold of the Silent Room, and enjoying the buzz of the alcohol together.

...Say. How'd they react with the penance duty you had them saddled with, anyway? You've always wanted to know.

At this, Sayaka gives you a sour look. "How do YOU react when you have to go around the city telling folk that their daughter's dead?" She shakes her head. "The entire group took it really hard. Myoudouin and Hanasaki both, from what they reported. Hanasaki passed out after the fifth envelope because she was crying way too fucking much, and Myoudouin had to be dragged from house to house because she wouldn't stop begging the parents for forgiveness. Tsukikage ad Darks did well enough, though."

Heh. Well. Hopefully that made them learn their lesson, then. Besides Erika, at least.

"You fuckin' traumatized them, that's what you did." Sayaka laughs. "But I personally think it was a good thing to do. Hardened them up a bit, and sometimes that's all you can hope for.

Yeah. Sounds like it.

It's here, then, that Sayaka sees the bottle in her hand. Blinking at its complete and utter lack of the delicious amber liquid. "H-hey, did I just fucking drink this entire thing with you, Murderface? Because that's...uh, kinda really fucked up.."

Another shake of her head, and she unsteadily places the empty bottle on the floor, beside your chair. "Yeah, okay, I think I've had enough. Need to go back watching over Kyoko." She lets out a yawn. "Anything else you want, Murderface? Just tell me whatever you need and I'll try to get it in here. Not right now, though, probably tomorrow."

NOIR QUEST

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest 267 "deculture" !!n5Js/iSKFy2 04/04/15(Sat)18:33:32 No.39137395 Archived

The drink shimmers in the dull light and you open your mouth to remind Sayaka about the indirect kiss before asking about Midori and Wendy and Yuma because picking all of the options never goes wrong. Going to need you to edit that last bit out, can't have them think — "What's a Sayaka?" It's—she is your, you know, your blue raspberry cheesecake. "That sounds scrumptious. So they serve these at Wendy's with that Japanese green sake thing and a Yuma is, what, some sort of drink holder?" No, no, no that is all of the wrong. Let's try again.

You are Chiaki Matsuda, Warmaster of the Ninth Officio and a girl plagued by a staggering number of interpersonal relationship issues. "Did you just call me cheeky? Piss off, you're the cheeky one. So's your dad." That—oh for the love of shit. You? "Me!" You puff up your chest proudly. Must have gone into the wrong room. Look, you mind shoving off? We are in the middle of a very important discussion that could determine the fate of the waifus. "That right? Just leave it to me then. I don't mind helping out this cheeky Mitsubishi bloke," it's a girl, "this cheeky werewolf Mitsubishi lass. Who we talking to now? Give me the run down on this Wendy's alcoholic cheesecake." Actually that is just a nickname, and Midori is the Japanese word for green. "Odd, but whatever, give me the rub bub."

>> ☐ "deculture" !!n5Js/iSKFy2 04/04/15(Sat)18:34:47 No.39137436

Okay, well Chiaki had just met with Sayaka, whose title is Equerry and "They are all queer, I mean they're werewolves right?" No it's… it's a position that "Bored now. My version is better." Fine. They were talking about the other women who were interested in—"Okay, going to stop you right there. Has she considered stabbing them repeatedly?" You ask looking at your thinking parts. No. "Okay, I will stab them a bit, then see if they like penetration, then probably eat them? Yeah, they like being eaten." In what capacity? "With my torso mouth." Okay, you are no longer to be trusted with the waifus.

"That's bollocks and you know it." It ain't happening. "Fine. But I got the head voice, so I am going to be the one to do the werewolf things today." You cross your arms while you object. "You knew what you were getting into. You put the name in sarcastic air quotes and threw on a trip. Trips never happen." Stay out of my fourth wall.

Okay, fuck it. Fine, we can make this work. Hold on. You hear papers shuffle in your head and just sort of take your sweet time. You pull your emergency Swedish Fish supply out of your pants and munch on them while your brain tries to find a place for you in this wide world of meguca. "Hold on like. This a, uh, a sex thing? Because I am the best at those but, like, it's like bringing a pro to a friendly game. Not fair." You are bad at this, shut your mouth and let me work. "Kay." You grumble sitting down.

You are uncertain how long the vast sea of silence dominates your senses. Finally, after you finish the Swedish Fish, you hear the voice in your head clear its throat. Okay, let's do this.

You open your eyes with a start. You are Risa Schrödinger, and you are currently in the world of Meguca. You sit up in your bed and look at the strange cat clock, then over at the coat rack with the giant ass war master coat and frown. "What's all this then?" You demand.

>> ☐ "deculture" !!n5Js/iSKFy2 04/04/15(Sat)18:36:16 No.39137475

Well, I mean, the world had a version of you already. I just sort of switched you for now. Just roll with it. You throw off your blankets and stretch, the morning light dancing over your naked form. "Piss, it's bloody hot." Well yeah, it's summer. "So where am I then?" You are currently in Australia! Home of the kangaroo and Great Barrier Reef! You are—hold on, why you crying then?

You are indeed crying, full on sobbing in fact. Hiccups escape our throat as you weep, and you pull your knees tight against your chest. "What did I do wrong?" You ask. What? "I don't want to be in Australia! Let me come back to England! Please!" You cough and choke on your own tears as you look up. "I've been a good Risa Cat. I swear! I've been extra good, Santa said so. I promise I'll be better. Please! Please!" You beg through your tears.

No this isn't Victorian England. This isn't a penal colony still. Calm down. You control yourself after a few moments, then take a deep sniffle of your snot and cough it into a bucket. Very lady like. You look up at the brain and ask "So I'm not being punished? This isn't hell?"

No! You are just here because this is where the guy left you. Promise, you have been extra good. "Oh. Okay, so what is there in Australia then?" You wonder.

That's the spirit! Treat it like a vacation to one of Her colonies! Well, there is some really good surfing on the coasts, I know you wanted to learn how to do that and this is a great time to get into it. There are also a lot of natural landmarks to check out, could always go on a range and really take in the joy of nature! You feel sort of empowered by these options and since you want to know more the voice in your head continues. Well, you could always check out the music, hear they have some fantastic orchestras, and their beer is really good too! Or you could go on a nature walk and look at all the animals! "I like animals. What sort do they got?"

Well, spiders that can kill humans, I know you like spiders, or you can check out the kangaroos! Oh, nearby there are Tasmanian devils, and you do love the cartoons so it might be neat. You could also just wander and see Quoll which are super cute, or Drop Bears, or… and you are already under the bed.

"Drop bears!" It is just the name for "Fucking Christ! Holy hell! Drop bears! Where do they drop from?" You wonder. It is just a name that—"From everywhere?" Oh you are having a psychotic break doesn't matter what I say then does it? "They drop from the sky. From the ground. From everything. Even the bloody bed!" You begin stabbing the mattress with a small knife with a terrified look. Risa it isn't—"Bears! They are bloody bears! Oh god I am so sorry your Majesty. I won't rag on the PM anymore. I really won't Oh god please. Please!" God doesn't really feel anything about you. Still, since we are continuing with this silliness, I may as well say you are in command of a group of undead sociopaths who you can command to war if you want to go it that way. "So I can declare war on drop bears?" You wonder with a sad, yet hopeful, look.

Well, if you really wanted to. "Perfect! Person who serves the warmaster, get in here!" You say and a girl walks in with a strange look about her.

"Hey there commander! Here about my recommendation?" Fuck, play it cool.

"What recommendation?" You ask, like you don't know. Because you don't.

She laughs and thrusts out her chest. "To send me to the akashic realm of course! I am super strong, and immortal, and able to out knife fight Wendy, and can outshoot Homura, but I am just so edgy and dark and no one can beat me even though I say I am not OP and claim that I once killed the ultra powerful character and raped/made my lover—"

You go to your happy place. You and plant bro hop through fields of jasmine and clover, and sing the song of your people that burns the sky. You dance, and play. A small bush offers you some berries that you eat. They are drugs. You sort of killed that chick. "What's that now?"

The girl in front of you looks down at the knife sticking out of her torso. She asks something, but it is lost as she coughs up blood and falls over. "Well, that happened." You killed that chick! You can't kill people, this is 100% canon! "It's fine. She was just a write-up character." You note kicking the body a bit. Well, I guess as long as her soul gem is intact she will be fine. "Soul gem?" You wonder.

The small stone that holds her—that thing you are eating right now. “Again. Write-Up character. Not like they are canon anyway.” One day they might be. “Look at me. Look at me.” You command pointing at your eyes. “I’m the canon now.”

The voices say nothing as you glare at your brain parts, then you consider how best to remove the bear threat as you hide the body of the person who doesn’t matter because uguu so cute and randumb and oh you are better and immortal and so edgy and you have sex with everyone and blah blah blah. “You are getting right into it too, ain’t you?” You’re a bad influence.

So you have an army of undead fueled by a trinket. You hate bears, and plan on making all bears illegal in Australia. How should you go about it? “Well, you tell me you daft wanka. I ain’t psychic. What can I do then?” You wonder.

Well, you could go to the akashic realm. It is sort of like a tear in space and time that The Doctor would mess with to make all bears super dead. You are probably going to end up there anyway if we are being honest. Or you can go to view the Officio “Office. I don’t speak anything but The Queen’s English.” Fine, the office, ugh, and see what events need to be resolved before you go out into the world. Or you could just say fuck it and kill some folks like you are doing now.

“This place has to have something right? We should check our resources and see what we have in our fight against the bears.” You are a crazy person. You know that right? “Yeah. Yeah.” You sigh. “Well, let’s hop to it!” You spin to get changed, realizing that the werewolf wrote up characters in their strange homolust were caught totally off guard by our nudity, then go into the building. Darn werewolves. You take the coat that signifies your station and tie it around your waist, because you are a cool no nonsense cat, and tour the facilities. There are a number of magical girls wandering around talking about waifus, and lesbians, and how they believe in them that believe in the other them, who believes in you, and honestly it makes no bloody sense. You have an army at least.

“So you said this replaced the other me, right? What was this world’s Risa like?” You wonder as you look at a shiny thing. Uh, well, she got eaten by a thing, then turned into a jobber who got one shotted. There was a character sheet and it said you had piss poor range but great strength? “Well, that doesn’t make a lick of sense. If you have high strength every object becomes a projectile weapon, thus you are good at ranged. Rest of that is downright distasteful.” I am sure things will get fixed. Besides, I think they character sheet got the canon okay. “Look at me. Look at me!” You shout to a magical girl scrub. “I’m the canon now.” You keep saying that. “I’m the canon now!”

The girl sobs. “Okay warmaster! Whatever you say! Just don’t take my blue rose!”

“The fuck does that mean?” Werewolves. “Well piss off with yourself then! And don't define your life by a bit of dying plant matter unless it is Hamlet!” You throw her aside.

She looks confused, but you avoid eating her face because you have more important things to worry about. Bear things. The facility is okay, but there aren’t too many weapons. You break open a file cabinet, and the files inside tell you that this place is full of lich girls. “Unhelpful. Other me really dropped the ball on the bear menace.” You note.

The file about the akashic realm is larger, with information about how the witches can replace reality, and how a large witch is controlling all of it in all the timelines and blah blah blah. You skimmed most of it, and doodled over the rest of it. The short of it is that you think if you shoot enough lasers into the time thingy and make the stuff hit the other stuff everything will something something then no more Koala Bears. “Fucking genius. What did the character sheet say about my thinking bits?” You were piss at it. “Well shows what it knows, doesn’t it! Jager! Get me my hat!” You shout and wait with your hand outstretched.

You know just because you’re here doesn’t mean—“Here you are warmaster. Please tell me you don’t have some harebrained plan this time.” Oh. Guess she is still here. This character sheet is a character shit!

“Nice.” You note. Yeah.

“Who are you talking to?” Sergent Jager wonders.

“No one. Look, we need to go to the Avacado realm,” that is just totally wrong, though you do love avacados, “assemble an army for me.”

“The Akashic realm? You think that is a good idea? It is full of witches, and honestly it is pretty dangerous even on the best days. You have a good reason for it?” The ablicious, dark skinned magical girl asks.

“Yes. It is necessary. I can’t explain too well but, well, things are about to get real.” You say with a grave nod.

She seems confused, but walks out to execute your commands. Guess the character sheet was piss wrong. “Why’s that then?” It says Jager is dead before you become warmaster. “Well, I mean, if they are undead then they are already dead right?” I mean dead dead. You narrow your gaze and snarl. “No one kills off my wolfu. Monologue! We are going to change the future!” Ha ha. Terminator. Yeah, sure. Anyway, you clench your fist at the proud declaration, and feel pride surge through you. You can do this!

Jager is taking her sweet time to take care of this shit. What should you do while you wait?

“You seem confused adventurers!” You shout poking at your head. No, that’s my job.

Risa, as you may or may not know, is the Warmaster of the Australia branch of megucas. She, at some point in the past, got shoved into golden chain axes. What you may, or may not, know is that she is originally from another quest here she ate part of an old one and got ghost lasers in not necessarily that order. She is a crazy person, with a staggering number of mental issues, and crippling social phobias she resolves by murder and song. Mostly murder. And eating. It might be a sex thing, but you don’t actually know what sex is, and you try to play it off but it normally goes terribly bad. “So I am like an old one that can jump inside her echoes in different universes. Also I have legs.” Legs for god damned miles. “Look at me. I’m adorable.” And British. “Also my monologue narrates things in my life and I sometimes talk with it because I get lonely very easily.” Like a Rabbit with social phobias.

You grab the phone, then start pushing buttons at random. The speed dial takes you to some menu thing, but you don’t speak Australian so you just choose a number at random. It rings a few times, and then someone picks up. Oh, the voice in your head translates most things for you so you speak everything. Just like The Doctor. “I like The Doctor.” I know you do.

“Is this Risa? Going to tell us something like our refrigerator is running?” The American asks.

“What? Psh, no,” damn it other RIsa, you are ruining this for us, “I am just calling because, uh, fuck you that’s why!” You hang up. Smooth.

“Piss off mate! I panicked!” Try again.

You ignore the voices in your head who are ignoring the justice of a right proper English breakfast and call the next one. You get a cool idea for a prank and grab an iron rod then walk outside with the phone. It is hot, the sun scorches every inch of this God forsaken continent, but you press on. Someone answers in Japanese and you smile. “Hi! Hello! Right, this the Ninth something or other?” You wonder.

“Asking if fridge is running?” The annoyed voice sighs.

You narrow your eyes. “No. I am wondering if you detected that meteorite heading towards Japan right now, you muggy cunt.” You say as you charge the bit of metal with energy.

There is the sound of shuffling papers and the sleepy sound of a girl, seriously, just statistically speaking some of these girls have to like blokes, then you hear the woman grumble. “No. No meteor. This a joke? I am not getting it.”

You lift the pole, make a guestimate based on gravity, then charge it with energy and throw. It arcs through the air, because again you are sort of an old one type deal, and it flies towards Japan. “Just wait for it.” You say and tap your finger against your bicep. Silence reigns for a few moments, then you hear the telltale sound of an explosion in the distance over the phone. You probably just killed a bunch of people you know.

“What was—“ The voice starts but you stop her.

“Well you better go catch it!” You shout, then hang up the phone.

That wasn’t really a prank as much as you just sort of killed a main character’s parents because you were angry at your other self. “So, what next?” You wonder, avoiding the fact you are a terrible person.

Well, it looks like Jager is in danger of dying. This Jager I mean. “What’s that then?” You ask.

According to the character sheet which should be called a character shit at this rate, Jager and the squad gets murdered in the Akashic Realm and you get all sad about it like some sort of trollop then maybe golden chain axes happen? Fuck if I know. It says you aren’t lucid because you are a psychopath and—“That makes no sense.” You say. I know! “I’m not lucid because I have schizophrenia and virtually no impulse control.” I know!

You order a few dozen pizzas for the different offices, and some marital aids that ask if anyone even likes the phallus, but I mean, you mess it up. For one your idea of marital aid is a therapist trained in couples therapy which makes way less sense, and for another the pizzas were bombs. “Yeah. I am the best at pranks.” You say happily.

Well, that’s a thing.

You wait for Jager to show up, and when she finally arrives she has a small squad of magical girls. “I asked for volunteers, and this is what I managed to scrape up on last minute. Look, we’re trusting you here, just tell us where to go and we will do it.” She sighs and you nod.

You totally know what you’re doing.

“So Jager gets murdered on this little outing, does she? We will see about that Ms. The Future Refuses to Change.” You grumble as you lead the group towards the eye of terror, which is oddly enough the same name as your Alt Rock band you made with Sin-Fin and Jager and them. You don’t get much money because you keep accidentally driving your customers insane.

The group makes their way to the eye of terror, double timing because of your sudden demand to lead you there, and you look at them. One of them is going to kill Jager. But how do you figure it out?

[] Chill out. Don’t let them know you are on to them. Pick them off one by one.

They are right, you should lick their soul gems. “Like… like to eat them?” You ask. No, just lick them and demand they tell you what they know. If they don’t know then you throw them out of the airlock. “Do I have one of those?” Maybe. You narrow your eyes, then nod at the little snacks walking around. They clearly know something, your fractured mind concludes, and you are going to figure it out. One way or… well actually one way. Through torture and murder. You don’t have a very diverse move set. Your group stops in front of a massive rip in space and time. It isn’t that impressive to you, because The Doctor taught you all about it, but your group takes a small break and sits down to recover their strength before they go ass over teakettle in there. You sit down as well, not that you’re tired because you are a ghost cat abomination, but because you are a slave to being trendy. You see one of the girls glancing your way, and you conclude she is probably in on the dark Jager killing plot.

You smile at her and walk over. She straightens her back and smiles up at you. “Warmaster! Hi! Uh, Hello I mean! What—you look nice! Your face does! Not that it, you know, doesn’t always! Just your mask isn’t on! And, uh, I didn’t notice how nice you look! I mean, your wolf look is okay, but this is even better!”

“Wolf look?” Oh yeah. This Risa is called a wolfish sometimes? “That is just all sorts of inaccurate. Schrodinger is clearly a Cat name” You argue.

“W—well can I help you with something? I mean, I want to! I mean, oh gosh! I am so embarrassed.” Just like an Aussie. Probably here in sex crime related charges! And lying to the crown! And tax evasion!

“Well, just a small thing.” You say. “Wanted to go talk to you, you know, in private like. Make sure you were doing alright. Why don’t we go for a walk?” You ask.

She beams. “Yes! Please do! I mean, I would really like that!” She bounds after you, and you nod. Yes, all according to your highly improvised plan.

You talk with her about the importance of Swedish Fish until you lure her to a dark area. You think this is our chance, then you ask her the big question. “Oh yeah. Your soul gem, just, well, is it in a hard to get spot? Can’t have it something in battle.” You note.

“Yes!” She pulls up a small necklace, and you snatch it at once.

“Ah ha!” You say. “You fell for the classic ruse!” A small jolt of electricity turns it into its egg form. “Don’t ever show Risa Cats something colorful and important! Especially if you don’t want to end up like Ryouichi!”

“Who?” She asks terrified.

“Silence!” You run your tongue over the gem and she lets out a shaky sound that makes her thighs shake and quiver in joy.

“W—warmashter I—“ She starts moving her treacherous tongue, but you are hearing none of it.

You coil your tongue around the soul gem, then line it with small bumps and wiggling ridges. You pull it around and along the gem, and her pupils shrink to tiny black dots. The slightly warm smoothness of the egg plays against the velvety softness of your undulating organ, and you note the taste is very bitter and almost meaty. Sort of like people, but without having to pick the screams out of your teeth. You experimentally trace your tongue over the intricate, and sensitive it seems, designs around the lip, and watch amused as she bucks and spasms in a similar movement to your hungry tongue. She trembles, then coughs, and then lets out a long moan that is lost to the howls of the warp. She stumbles back against a wall, then twitches and drools down her chin. You keep licking the gem, your tongue pretty much vibrating at this point, and see her let out a few choking words, then just slump over with her hands between her legs. You see a thin liquid trickle down her naked thighs, and her shifting weight back and forth sends a strange smell to your nose. “Poisoned. Just like the blokes who keep the things in their teeth for one reason or another.” You clench your fist while still coiling around the gem, making her twitch like a dead fish on the ground.

No, I think—“Traitors! How far down does this rabbit hole go!? Who is behind the Jager murder!?” You demand as you dance your gentle fingertips over the gap in your serpent like tongue.

Lewds? No. This must be some sort of psychic poison that's triggered by tactile contact with the soulgem in addition to humid conditions. And what happens the most during combat? The soulgem getting bounced around due to rapid movement, possibly against clothing or other accessories, and being exposed increased humidity due to sweat evaporation in the air.

Clearly, there's some superscience mixed with magic villainy afoot.

Who else is in on it? That one? The other one? The one way over there without the pants! The creepy pink think trying to lick your brain, but doesn't realize you are just as full of poison as all of them!? Bloody hell, how far down does this madness go?! You pop the gem into a mouth you tear open in your torso, then seal up. The gem tumbles and topples over the clinging walls of flesh, and the damned by one of the fallen flexes her abs and thrusts her hips in the air all while letting out a high pitched squeal. Damn her and her demonic rituals! It makes you confused and angry!

You go find the next girl, this one a lanky willowy thing talking to another girl. She narrows her eyes at you, and you narrow yours right back. Fuck her anyway! No wait, you have to play it cool. Smile. “Hey there… you.” You don’t even sort of know their names.

“Warmaster.” She replies, and her werewolf lover tells her to play nice and walks off. “What do you want? Also why does your face look like you are eating one of those American candies that are super sour?”

“I’m smiling. I’m super charming when I smile.” So charming. “You reinforce my bad habits.” You laugh.

“What? I didn’t say anything.” The willowy girl says.

“Right, sorry. Look, could we talk? In private?” You ask.

She sighs and you both walk towards your killing ground. “You don’t like me. Why don’t you like me? People have to like me.” Or you kill them violently, you don’t add.

“Honestly? You’re unstable. Kris should have gotten the Warmaster position and you know it. You try to act friendly, but you are only interested in going wild, and your voice sounds like you eat cigarettes wrapped in asbestos and wash it down with cheap gin that you water down with powdered glass. Can I go?” She asks.

Yeah, that's motive to kill wolfu. That's all of the motives! Also you sound like a charming spring day, don't listen to her. You hold back your tears and sniff the air. Her gem has a cold sort of feeling to it, and you find it on her person easily. You get behind the building with her and her eyes go wide. "What the fuck?! Hey, you okay Shit, is the realm doing something to you?!" She asks and you tear off her left earlobe.

She grunts in pain, and you look at the earring that is actually her soul. You zap it with power until it changes back, and smile too wide while looking at her. "H—hey! Shit, are you crazy! No, wait. Okay, look, whatever you're thinking it won't end well. I swear to god, you crazy bitch if you so much as lay a hand on—" she swears a lot. Also swearing to you is in bad manners.

You toss the gem into your mouth, then roll your tongue over it. She goes red in the face and stand up. "You—I'll tell them on you. I will." She says and stumbles a bit, but then you send raw angelic energy into the tiny rock. It shimmers in your mouth, then she makes a cute sound and falls to the side. You throw her by the ankle into the other girl who is already in a damp puddle, and stab your palms with your fingernails. Mouths form on the open wounds and they scream. "What is the plan to kill Jager!?"

"Wha—" She starts, but you can tell her tricky lies so you form small ridges on your tongue that give a sticky, clinging sensation to the torture.

She tenses up, then curls her toes and also does poison stuff, and you look angrily at her. "Don't tell me your lies! I know the plot! I know your evil! I know the darkness inside darkness inside. I can smell your hate. I can taste your treachery." A long tongue shoots out of the palm mouth and coils around her throat as she screams a husky sort of scream and you know it is the scream of a Jezebel. A harlot! A Jager killing, bear hugging harlot.

>> ☐ "deculture" !!n5Js/iSKFy2 04/04/15(Sat)22:16:22 No.39142745

"Hey J, you—" the girl she was talking to before rounds the corner and looks at you.

Your eyes have shifted into insane things, the pupils filled with tiny razor like teeth. You shimmer, and several wiggling lumps press against the underside of your skin and make your right arm pop and crack in several painful places. She looks at her lover and friend on the ground, and at the creature whose legs are sprouting long glowing spider legs out of her calves and makes a choice.

She chose poorly. You wrapped her in tentacles and ripped her gem from her. You added it to your mouth and started clinking them together while you rolled it through your twisting, hot organ. She fell quick, and you tied her against the clear worst girl here, though she doesn't seem to hate it too much. They are trying to eat each other's faces, and lick them like candy to get at the bony center. Clearly their suicide attempts have failed and now they are trying to kill each other by melting each other's faces. Nice try magical girls! You don't have hooks on your tongues.

They scream and shiver, the clear agony of this torture too much for them. "Where is the Jager killer?!" Your hand shouts. "Tell me who is going to kill her now!"

They do not answer, so you slip them down a sucking organ in your body and pull and squeeze gently while small tongues from along the tract. They are breaking fast, but not fast enough. Damn them and their secrets!

You hear Jager call out. "Hey Risa! You alright? Where are the girls?"

What do you do now?!

Won't Jager be so proud of you for what you did? "Y… yes?" You offer the voice in your head, your confusion saturating the entirety of your being. "Yes. She will be super proud of me. In fact? She will probably thank me, and let me touch her abs. Jager!" You shout with a wave. "Jager! Jager!"

Jager walks over, and when she rounds the corner to see your pile of sticky magical girls being bound by tentacles sprouting from your arm, and the mouth on your hand speaking blasphemies against reality she pauses, as anyone might be want to do, then opens her mouth. "What the fuck?" That isn't very lady like. "Risa?! What the hell? How the hell?!" She demands not moving.

"I saved you from the evil plot!" You say. "Praise me! They were going to murder you, so I am pressing them for information so they tell me about their secret plot. All of the plots." One of them moans and gets your weird appendage wet. Gross. "They also seem to be leaking which is, you know, new I think. We should get someone to check on that. It's weird." Very weird. "And then they started making weird noises that I can't translate."

Jager seems to think on it, then slowly raises her hands. "Risa, look. Shit, okay, look. Whatever is going on, just calm down, alright. This… I don't know what this is, but we can get through it if we just stay calm. Are you witching out? Risa we can stick through this together, okay?" She asks.

What is she talking about? It's like she isn't proud of you. This makes you irrationally apathetic, because your mental stability is a joke at this point. What should you do.

“This is strange. I was saving you from the terrible assassination plot to kill you and your lickable abs. Why are you not happy?” You wonder.

“No. No, I am happy, really.” Jager says raising her hands. “It’s just, look, they are leaking right? You don’t want to get leaked on.”

She has a point. “I will let them go, only if you let me touch your abs to my content. Right here and now.” You say as your eye screams. It does that.

“Okay, sure. Whatever you say.” She promises with a smile. “Just let them go, give them back their gems and let them go.”

You spit the gems back on the girls and warp your twisted body back to humanish shape. It cracks and pops in awkward places, but you hold together long enough to coil around her hips and press your cheek against her exposed chocolate abs. The smell, it fills you with a feeling of life and hope, and the soft flesh covers… covers… hold on a tick. You look at the abs suspiciously, then run a tongue up the middle of them. She pushes on your head with a shriek, but it is too late now. You know the truth. These aren’t your Jager abs. Which means she is not Jager-bombastic. Which means she is an imposter. “Liiiiiiiies.” You hiss as reality warping energy pools out of your every orifice. “Jager’s abs feel much better than this. They are like the hard mountains you sled down with a gentle lover stabbing you in the ear. They are the song of summer on the lips of a madman. They are the blessed kisses of a black hole moments before it speeds all time into your retinas and shows you all that must never be. Your abs are lies.” Maybe she just skipped a day on crunches—“Jager never slacks off!” You swing your arm and slam her back with a sharp whip crack.

Your back splits open and long thin tongues surge out and scrape at the ground. Your eyes scream out twisted energy, and the world screams, the sound like the smell of your best friend’s dead wife he asks you to help him bury. Sharp teeth and nails pour out of your arms, making you look like a monstrous cactus or something.

Jager, no she is a fake Jager, pulls out a knife and looks concerned, but resolute. She thought she could trick you! You! Risa “Laughing Genocide” Schrodinger! They’re all in on it! Every god damned last one of them! The evil things, the twisted liars! The harlots and thieves! That is why they didn’t say how they were planning to kill Jager. They already replaced her with a weak abs fake! Everything is on it!

The girls you were interrogating get up, seems they are used to torture, and pull out different weapons to. Should… think you should take a chill pill?

“You be the chill pill you fake fakering fakerton! Where is the real Jager?” You demand as inhuman energy fills your body and sends a song of graceful delight into your bones.

“I am the real Jager!” She shouts back, like the liar she is.

One of the girls behind you leaps at you, and an overly fluffy tail pops out of the top of your shorts and stabs her in the stomach. You lift her in the air, and hear some screams and stuff, then you send out small needles through the tail inside her body and she leaks red stuff you are more familiar out of her everything. You throw her back at her mates, then spin around and throw out a blast of energy.

The power warps reality as it crashes through them, annihilating their bodies and souls completely, and tearing a massive chunk out of the land of Australia. You howl and turn back to Fake Jager, your eyes shifting and your vision swimming. You wiggle your fingers and pant heavily like you are having a panic attack. “Jager. Need Jager. Where is she? My Jager Jager. Her abs, her taste, her touch, her screams Give them back. They’re mine. Mineminemine.” You bite down on your wiggling fingers and try to contain yourself, but the words of need for Jager echo through the world as mouths filled with razor lined eyes open and close all over your body in random positions. You pull your fingers off, the wiggling things coming off with a snap as the tendons and sinews break like elastic bands, then you scream at the top of your lungs summoning a massive violet orb that bathes the entire area in a light brighter than the sun.

“Jager Jager Jager Jager Jager! She is mine! Mine! Mine! Give her back! She is perfect! She accepts us! She is the only one. I murder this planet one person at a time until I get her back! She is pretty! She is nice! She loves me! Us! We need her!” You scream, your already tiny grasp of mental stability becoming unraveled as you place her on an impossible pedestal. That explains a lot really. “If the next words out of your mouth aren’t where the real Jager is I will peel the life from you by layers, and force feed you your own nightmares before I get done with you.”

“Please, I’m the real—“ She starts then you swing your arms, but freeze when you hear a gunshot.

The fake slumps forward and there, with the smoking gun, is a short mammal with a duck bill and beaver tail. It had red rimmed glasses, and a short almost moppish top. “You wanka! That was my kill! Kill stealing fuck!” You scream “Bweh.” It replies pointing the gun at you.

It fired, but your hard skin repels the bullets then you swing down with the insane energy. It tears through the reality of the abracadabra realm, and you see giant monsters form, then vanish as time is damaged from the attack. It explodes, ripping hell a new hell hole, and you frown. A bullet bounces off your temple and you look at the side and see the little annoying creature. Your face cracks and the four violet wings on your back sing to life as you charge your limbs with energy and fly after it.

You chase it through the hell hole, the darkness of the world illuminated by the insanity of your power. You destroy countless buildings, and some girls who want to make girl nookie, but that word scares you and you kill them in a single move. You pant angrily as you look around the deepest reaches of this world, and find you are standing alone. You let out a huff of annoyance and swear, after you kill Koala Prime, that little platypus thing is next. Then the planet.

“Are you really supposed to be here?” A sing song voice tainted with gallons of corruption asks.

You turn and skipping through the darkness is a pink haired thing. Where her feet touch the ground flowers made of organs bloom and bleed all over the emptiness, but you don’t really care. She is a person who is not real Jager.
“You’re not the boss of me.” You say.

“I know! That’s a problem for me!” She says putting her long clawed hands on her hips and showing her sharp teeth. “How did you get here anyway?”

“I was chasing a thing.” You say and her face twists into laughter, rage, then despair, and finally something like apathy.

“I mean how did you wake up here! You don’t belong here at all.” Racist cunt. “It’s almost like you’re vibrating and wiggling. Like a maggot in someone’s eye.” She says cheerfully.

“I walked.” You answer.

She slams fingers into your side. “I don’t like lies!” She snarls, her mouth thick with the scent of blood and meat. Chick should brush her teeth more.

“I am a hyper dimensional cosmic being that sleeps beyond reality, and my undulations cause ripples that echo through multiverses and sometimes I accidentally ride the eb and flow of unrealities and get shunted into a new place.” You continue as your side wound grows teeth and gnaws on her hand. “Also I walked.”

“Hmmm. That’s strange.” She says spinning around and licking your blood, but once it sprouts small tentacles and tries to steal her teeth she just wipes off her hand. “Well, you really should go back! You are making everything scream at me, and it makes my head hurt.”

“Well, I can lead you to something that might help you accomplish your task, but I might need a teensy favor.” She smiles, and you see rot pour out of the corners of her eyes like tears.

“I will never join your dark crusade to werewolf the whole world!” It’s almost time for our shows. “But Doctor Who is almost on, so I can make an exception just this once.”

“Werewolf?” She asks.

“It means lesbian.’ You say.

The pink thing, who isn’t even near as adorable as your plant bro who made you a macaroni picture, pouts a little while furrowing her brow, but she doesn’t go into it. Clever girl. Like a velociraptor. You are suspicious of her once more. “Well, the one you replaced. I’ve been trying to get her to accept a gift of mine but it’s just been a teensy bit hard to make her accept.” She pinches her fingers close to show you. That checks out as a teensy bit. “So if you could maybe put it someplace she will pick it up that would help me out a bunch!”

You tap your finger to your chin then nod. “Alright, that sounds easy enough. What you got for me person less adorable than Manfred.”

She doesn’t bother objecting and hands you a pair of golden axes. Their edges are lines with something like a chainsaw and you—aww, how cute. She is trying to corrupt your brain parts with them. “Really?” You ask.

The girl looks proud, and you feel a bit like a prat. Ah damn. Okay, just act like you are getting corrupted. “What does that look like?” You whisper. Didn’t Ryoko have some comics about that right? Corruption. Just do that.

“Right. Oh, uh, oh no! I can’t control my fluids! My, uh, my hips are moving on their own! It’s like a giant arm is inside me. I can never go back to Japanese men now! What… what would my father think if he saw these videos? I am drooling there just thinking about it?” You ask tilting your head. She looks disappointed. “Sorry, no it isn’t you. You are like, the fifth most terrifying thing I’ve had in my head which is actually saying a lot.” You promise.

“I was just hoping for more of a reaction is all.” She kicks a meaty cancerous lump on the ground like it’s a rock, but you shrug.

“I said my hips are moving on their own right?” Well, you weren’t dancing. “Oh. Is that what it means? That makes sense.”

“Who are you talking to?” She asks looking up at you with black eyes.

“Number three on the list.” After Time bears and time devourers. “Anyway, where is this thing I can use?” You reply with eyes that speak of pure void. Yours are so much cooler.

She leads you through the realm while you send energy into the axes. Delightful laughter fills them, and you are pretty sure something really, really terrifying is being made a present inside of there. Or not. You don’t know their lives. You finally stop in front of a book bound in pulsing flesh and twisted teeth. “This is ‘The Script of Akash’ in it are false laws of reality that can be supplemented with the real world too—“

“Bored now! Shoot it with lasers!” You fire pure laughing energy, and throughout the world of man, your will is made law. Drop bears are seen as a threat to all Magical girls. Pure evil that can never be stopped. Fear, hate, pain, and pure laughter fills the world and all megucas know that drop bears=mega threat. A scar on the souls of all of them. “And now we play the waiting game. After Doctor Who. I have to sort of head back now small ape like creature with pink hair.”

“If you go that way it will lead you back to the Officio” She points a clawed finger in a random direction.

“You’re not the boss of me. You don’t know my life! Fuck your realm! You shout, then fly out.

You encase your body with energy and slam into the ground. You sneak into the base to avoid talking with people, then place the axes where they will slip and fall on other Risa. You send more energy into them, just to be safe, then tear off your clothes and flop in bed. Soon the Koalas will know fear. They all will. You stuff the large coat into inventory before you go to sleep, then sort of pass out. You will probably be where you should be when you wake up. Or you won't. Who knows?

Swear to Gornabrious Bopfrod though, if you miss your shows you steal every left shoe in the world until it fixes itself.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 04/09/15(Thu)09:38:33 No.39234964 Archived

You shake your head. Nah, you think you're good with what she brought you. ...Well, maybe a refill of the whiskey, at least. If you're reading your cards right, you're in for a lot of free time, and you want to catch up with your drinking.

"...Seriously?" Sayaka narrows her eyes at you for a long while, before shaking her own head and sighing. A small, guilty smile replacing her signature frown on her lips. "...Alright, fine. You're stuck in here for god knows how long, really, so I guess you deserve that. Just don't get too drunk that you suddenly decide to rip off Kurumi's legs and play single-player Squash with her skull, and I'll...try not to feel guilty enabling your alcoholism." She looks at you pointedly. "Are we clear on that, Murderface?"

No promises, you shrug. Sayaka's frown immediately reappears, and you finally relent. Yeah, yeah, sure.

Before she goes, though. How's Midori and Wendy? And...how's everyone dealing with Yuma?

Your Equerry smirks. "What do you think? Midori's alright, but worried sick about you. Wendy's high on painkillers, but she also kept asking about you. I believe her words were 'how's the retard with the brain problems doing?' followed by her throwing up into a bucket. So, they're both fine."

>> ☐ Deculture 04/09/15(Thu)09:40:07 No.39234977

...Nice. That's...yeah. And what about--

"Yuma, yeah." Sayaka cuts you off here. "I...honestly think it hasn't sunk in, yet. We haven't announced it to the entire Officio either, but it's not like Yuma had any friends other than Haruka and Kyoko, so I doubt the rest of the Offico'll care much, even if I put her portrait up on the Hall of Anamnesis. Speaking of Haruka, she's been sedated and placed inside her own Silent Room until further notice. Mami's...obviously upset, but you know how she is. And of course, Kyoko doesn't know about it yet, and it's going to really suck to have to tell her."

Ah. That's...that sounds right.

What about her, though? What about Sayaka? Is she going to be alright?

The blue-haired Eversor shrugs again. "I...like I told you, Murderface. It just hasn't yet sunk in for me. I know the stupid kid's gone, but..." She looks away, her eyes swiveling towards a particularly uninteresting part of the wall, but not really looking. "Being completely honest here, I think I'm going to cry about it later. Maybe if I stop and think about it for a bit too long in private, or when I finally tell Kyoko." She looks back at you, suddenly looking tired all of a sudden. "...Otherwise, I got nothing."

...Yeah. Alright. A moment of uncomfortable silence hangs between the both of you, before you break it hesitantly, stepping forward. ...Look, you're no good with this touchy-feely stuff, but if she needs a --

"Touch me and I'll rip your face off, Murderface." Sayaka holds up a hand, her face suddenly impassive.

You stop in your tracks and back away slowly.

Okay. Just so the both of you are clear on that.

Sayaka considers you with a frown, before pursing her lips. "I'll live, alright? Kyoko will, too. Yuma's not the first friend we lost in this business. And it's not that I don't appreciate it, just that..." She stares at you, before shaking her head. "Forget it. Just...thanks, Murderface. Really. You even took the trouble of asking, and that's enough for me. I'm grateful. Just don't get in my face about it."

Alright, alright. You get it already.

"Good. Now, if you don't mind, I REALLY have to go." Sayaka turns away, her knees wobbling slightly as she makes her way to the door. "Jesus Christ, I don't remember Kong hitting me this fucking hard. ...Must be because I haven't had any liquids since we got back. Guh." She stops in front of the doors and turns back to you, just as they begin to slide apart in slow, grinding snarls. "Oh, yeah. Before I forget, the official story is that you're chilling here because of Soul Gem corruption from Akashic Realm exposure, and so you need a couple of days to dry out. Nothing about..." She gestures to the wings on your back. "...about those things. Kyuubey wants us to keep those things confidential, even to the rest of the Officio. Just so you know."

...Alright, but what about the people watching the surveillance cameras inside the Silent Room? They'll see these for sure, right?

Sayaka shrugs. "Kyuubey's got that handled, I think. Don't ask me how, I think he just does. I know he's already told Enishi and Touno, though, and they'll be helping him monitor you, too."

Huh. Well. That's handy to know, at least.

"Yeah, I figured you'd like to know who's keeping watch. Make you a bit less paranoid than you already are." Sayaka laughs, before making to exit the Silent Room. "Alright, see you tomorrow, Murderface."

You bid her goodbye, but not before letting one last barb in. Namely, about the indirect kiss she'd been sharing with you ever since she started drinking.

Your Equerry stops in her tracks, before turning to glare at you, her cheeks completely burning red. She opens her mouth to say something, something particularly nasty from the way her lips begin to take shape around the oncoming insult - but she claps her hand over her mouth and stomps off quickly. The Silent Room doors slamming shut behind her and leaving you alone.

...That went well, you thought. At least your Officio isn't going to hell around you right yet.

"She's gone! Everyone relax!" IBARI crows, and a collective sigh of relief puffs from your Doll Collection. Each one standing up from the huddle in the corner and stretching, some of them patting sore shoulders and bad backs.

...They seem really humanlike, for dolls. It's just a shame that they freak you the fuck out.

Well, anyway. You've not got much to do for now. What do you do?

You frown at your dolls. Why the hell are they so spooked about Sayaka? ...Well, of course you know about her being the First Knight, and there's obviously some history between the both of you. But you don't remember much of it - or rather, you know just enough to know that there's a lot you don't remember.

Does it matter, here and now? Is it likely to be a problem?

Your doll collection looks at each other for a few brief moments - their porcelain heads grinding quietly as they swivel upon their neck joints - before they turn in unison towards you. IBARI stepping forward, a rather hesitant smile on her face. "W-well, good for nothing, I believe the answer to that depends on whether or not you view having a blade of righteous justice hanging over your head as a problem."

...So it is likely to be a problem, then.

"...Yes and no, good for nothing." IBARI replies, after once more looking back at the rest of your doll collection. As if trying to gather moral support from the rest of her sisters. "You know of the First Knight's existence inside your friend. And you know how at moments of extreme stress, the First Knight will rise in dominance and attempt to finish what she tried to start." She draws a porcelain thumb across her neck. "You got lucky the first time, good for nothing, but unless you do something about it, you'll have to be lucky every time. She only needs to be lucky once."

You frown here, not exactly missing the implication in the doll's words. But you can probably try and talk her out of it, right? You can try and dissuade her from--

"We don't think something like that is possible, good for nothing." IBARI mournfully shakes her head. "You are talking about the First Knight here - an identity that's not exactly known for her mercy and forgiveness, much less her flexibility. She's sworn an oath to carry out your execution no matter what, and an oath made by the First Knight is as good as done. No matter where you run, where you hide, no matter how long it takes. The only way to make her break her oath is to kill her." She pauses. "Well, that, or bind her to your thrall, but you've failed at it at enough times that you just gave up."

Hnh. That doesn't sound too good at all.

"It's not. But there's some good news!" IBARI exclaims. "You have her in your debt at the moment, something that not even the other good-for-nothing managed. That could help in getting her on your side - or at the very least, get you that moment of vulnerability for the killing blow. Either or, you have more options than the other did when it comes to dealing with the First Knight."

That's something, at least. Not too sure you feel comfortable in talking about killing Sayaka, though. ...You may have fantasized it a couple of times in the past, but--

"Times change, good for nothing. Sometimes, not for the better." IBARI shrugs. "We just hide from her because as we're doing all we can not to accidentally set her off. She probably remembers us most of all, since we did kill her a couple of times ourselves."

Oh? How'd they manage that?

"How do you kill a Holy Knight who's supposed to be unkillable in the first place?" Your blonde-haired doll tilts her head to the side. "Through treachery. Lies. Deceit. And the Fifteenth tearing out her heart and eating it."

Lovely.

As nice as it would be, the Fifteenth is clearly either Kharn or Risa (the latter of whom is known to eat people, as far as I'm aware). The golden weapon labelled XV is the chainaxes, so the time may come to get down to some ripping and tearing.

Kharn is just Kharn, and Risa is from the Sixth. The Fifteenth was wiped out several years before the start of the quest according to the wiki.

Risa is the spirit of the fifteenth golden weapon (and Kharn is their former bearer).

It may be excessive shadowruns, but I suspect that it's Kharn that is being referred to here, considering that she's visiting soon and the foreshadowing is often short-term. On the other hand, Decu just ran the parody HQR the other day in which I gathered that Risa is known for eating people (alongside other randumbness).
Either is a good fit and, seeing as the Fifteenth Officio isn't a factor in all likelihood, I'm going to keep suspecting that this prophecy is related to the chainaxe(s).

You decide to check out the swag bag that Sayaka got you first, before doing anything else. Saving the best for last. Your eyes roaming over your chair's unassuming yet succulent curves as you lick your lips in anticipation.

Soon, you think, running your gloved hand briefly on the lip of its arm rest. Soon.

"...Well, I suppose every one of them has to have some weird-ass kink." You hear WARUKUCHI remark not too quietly.

"That's a chair, though! An actual chair! She's looking at it like she's going to take it to bed, or something!"

"Ew. Nasty. This good for nothing's fucked up."

You ignore all of these as you draw your attention back to the bag of supplies, brushing back your hair as you do so. Hmm...three bottles of Kong, besides the one you just emptied with her. A small pack of one-use toiletries, appropriated from a rather swanky hotel in Mitakihara's business district - something you were briefly surprised with, but after a moment's thought, you decided you shouldn't be. Sayaka's the type to hoard this kind of thing from hotels, just for this kind of occasion.

You set this aside and continue to catalogue the bag's contents. Snacks - crackers, chocolate, those thin wafer sticks coated with chocolate that Kyoko absolutely can't stop shoving into her mouth by the fistful. Mints. A small pack of cigarettes and a small plastic lighter - nice - and what looks like a small piece of paper torn hastily from a notebook. The scrap scrawled on with the same kind of urgency, before being shoved inside a dog-eared second volume of Miracle Midori x Murder Mayumi.

Frowning, you pull out the paper and read the hastily-scribbled writing on the scrap of notepaper. The writing all clipped, terse script. Sayaka's writing, no doubt.

"Don't know how to bring this up without feeling like a dildo, Murderface, so here it is: Kyoko will probably want to ask you about going to the Second when she wakes up. She's been thinking about bringing it up with you ever since the shit with Oriko started. Do whatever you think is best. If you really care about Kyoko as your best friend - and she really does look up to you - you'll know the right thing to do.

-Sayaka"

...Hnh. Well. That's...she couldn't have brought it up while you were talking to her? Christ. Trust your Equerry to be brutally honest and loudspoken about everything, but when it comes to her girlfriend...

You put the piece of paper back carefully into the thick porno, folding it into the glossy dust cover. Still, it got its message across, warning you about what your best friend might ask when she visits you. More time for you to think things through, and less chances of you making a stupid decision.

Nothing else appears to be inside the bag besides what you've already catalogued, so you place them back inside, too, with the exception of the pack of cigarettes and the lighter. Tearing off the plastic packaging and then ripping the pack open, you tap out a single stick, hold it between your lips, and carefully touch the tip with the lighter's flame. Only managing to ignite the cheap plastic lighter after a few abortive tries.

The brand Sayaka chose for you wasn't your brand at all, and you wince at the harsh, unfamiliar aftertaste - but nicotine is nicotine, and you feel your shoulders unclench as you relax. The cold, chilling effect seeping out from your chest outwards. Getting you into that perfect state to reunite with your chair again.

It's been so long, you think as you draw a finger down the soft leather encasing it, the material slack enough for give yet tight enough not to be wrinkly and ugly-looking. Its luscious green upholstery calling out to you, begging for you to rest your tired frame upon it.

>> ☐ Deculture 04/09/15(Thu)13:26:46 No.39237833

>>39237812

And you do so - carefully perching above its seat before gently lowering yourself onto it. The leather creaking quietly as your body settles there, slowly but surely embraced by such unbelievable comfort that you can't help but groan. Loudly and embarrasingly as you feel the backrest perfectly - PERFECTLY - cradle your tired head and massage your neck at the same time. Your toes curling at the sheer, mindmelting comfort of it.

And surprisingly, your wings don't even get in the way. The pinions stretching out and then wide to prevent themselves from being trapped against you and your chair. Like you were always mean to sit on it no matter what happened to you.

"It's like she's getting off to this, or something." NOROMA mutters. "Doesn't she know we're here? Isn't she the least bit embarrassed?"

"I think she doesn't mind at all." IBARI snickers. "She probably likes people watching!"

"Wouldn't be the FIRST good for nothing, that's for sure." WAGAMAMA grumbles.

"...I want one. I should have a chair like that."

"Sure you do, YAKIMOCHI. Maybe when we know that you actually do want one and you're not simply being reactionary to what other people have. Grow up."

"I'm telling you...!"

You push this banter out of your mind as you focus on reuniting with your chair. Practically nothing's changed about it - it's still the comfortable, green-colored piece of heaven that you should really install in your office already. But then again, if you do, then nothing's going to get done at all.

Taking a drag off your cigarette, you close your eyes and lean back.

Enjoying this stolen moment of peace.

Your entire body so relaxed, it's unable to fight back against the sudden fatigue that hits it. Your body slackening, your breathing going deep and regular. Your cigarette falling to the metal grilled floor with a miniscule shower of embers as it falls from your nerveless, senseless grip.

And then, in the darkness behind your own eyelids, you begin to dream.

When you open your eyes - after an indeterminate amoung of time - you find yourself still sitting down, but not in the same slouched way that you remember falling asleep in. Instead of that lazy, sleepy slouch, your back is straight, your arms planted properly on the armrests instead of hanging off of the sides. Which makes sense, considering that you're not on your chair anymore.

You're on a fucking throne. A rather impressive-looking throne, seemingly made out of twenty golden swords. Each of them fused to each other to form the framework of the throne, and fused with a black crimson-speckled metal that you recognize quickly enough as fleshmetal. Exactly like Kharn's own.

It's a strange thing to notice first, because anyone else in your position would have noticed immediately that you're not exactly in your Silent Room anymore either.

No, you're in what seems like a throne room. A huge one, complete with red carpets and golden statues of naked girls and everything. Gold leaf on the walls, on the floor - and the ceiling! The ceiling is covered a painting of what looks lke an entire Officio of half-naked Magical Girls, each one trapped in a state of pure, bodice-ripping ecstasy. Like a huge harlequin book cover except with just the girls, and no musclebound blonde guy with the soulful stare and the pecs the size of melons.

But as unbelievable as everything has been so far, the thing that disturbs you most - besides the fact that your chair is GONE - is the two young women languishing at the base of your throne, chained there by what looks like leashes of black chain attached to red leather collars. One with long, unbound green hair, the other with chocolate-brown hair tied into luxurious twin braids. Each one of them as naked as the girls painted above you, except for what looks like the skimpiest kind of lacy underwear you've ever seen, and lying amongst a flood of velvet pillows.

And you know who they are. It's...it's impossible for you not to know them.

One of them in particular - the brown-haired one that had just stirred awake, glancing down at herself with an expression of ever-increasing surprise, before looking up at you with something approaching disbelief, and then, resignation. An angry kind.

"I don't know what the fuck is going on here, but I'm kinda pissed off, Matsuda." Wendy grumbles up at you, one hand reaching up to tug at the chain on her collar. The heavy links clinking noisily. "The fuck is all this?"

Beside her, the other chained girl - Midori - rolls to the side, still sleeping, still snoring. Drool trickling down from the corners of her dreamy smile, murmuring your name every now and then, along with something else. A title.

A title you don't even want to think about.

How do you react?

No, you shake your head. No, this is all wrong. This isn't your dream. What the fuck is this? Midori and Wendy, chained up to your throne, wearing nothing more than scraps of cloth? This gaudily-ostentatious, overly-designed throne room with the garish ceiling painting and enough tasteless gold to bankrupt Dubai? All this fucking red carpet that not only attracts heat and dust like no one's business, but clashes with the red enough that everything looks so fucking cheap in the end?

"This isn't my dream," you finally tell Wendy, wincing slightly as you rock from side to side, trying to get comfortable on your throne. It's not working. "I'd have my comfy chair if it was my dream."

Wendy stops tugging at her chain for a full ten seconds before blinking at you incredulously. "Your chair...? What are you, chair gay? You like a piece of furniture so much, you'll dream about it?" She shakes her head. "Okay, Matsuda, I know you're into some really weird shit, but--"

You? You, into really weird shit? You point at yourself, aghast. What's so fucking weird about actually liking comfortable shit, huh? Furniture that's actually nice to sit on, that helps your posture and at the same time envelops you in a blanket of comfy? Not like this throne shit! You slap the armrest with your free hand for emphasis. Oh, sure, it looks cool and all, but does the designer ever think about adequate back support? Weight distribution? You shake your head here. Fuck no they don't! Either they're too fucking drunk to actually design a damn throne, or they're being used as additional skulls for Kharn's!

"..Matsuda?" Wendy's eyes, perenially hooded by too little sleep, are doing their best to go wide with surprise. "...What are you--"

Agreeing with...most of your reasoning. I think it would be more interesting to see the struggle and revival of the ninth than the alternative, and we'll need all the help we can get.

I am reminded that Chiaki doesnt spend a whole lot of time with rank and file magical girls. If ever we needed to rally them in a hurry, there would be few better people to do it than the Ninth's famous couple.

Besides, you already established that this isn't your dream, you continue. Not by a long shot. Which means it's someone else's sick, depraved fantasy. A fantasy that involves tasteless, completely unergonomic furniture, excessive gold all over the place, and half-naked girls chained to thrones. Serving as salt licks to the dildo in charge!

Wendy glares at you for a couple of moments before turning away, cheeks burning red. "...S'not like that. I don't...I just wanted to check on you and make sure you're okay, that's all. It wasn't even supposed to be anything, not even the bar. Just something for me to hold on and look at you from. We're not even supposed to be talking, for fuck's sake!"

A likely story, you grumble underneath your breath as you finally rise and step away from your throne - reaching back to massage some life back into your numb ass cheeks. Carefully going down the steps of your throne's raised platform, down to where Wendy sat and Midori lay snoring.

"Anyway, I'm not even...I'm not even into this kind of thing. Mostly." Wendy continues to complain as you squat by Midori, reaching out with one finger to poke her in the cheek. The green-haired Callidus frowning cutely at this, before idly scratching the spot you poked with her knuckles. "Not even the same. So it's definitely not my dream, either." Another moment's silence, as you reach out to gently fluff up the pillow Midori is resting her head on, before slowly propping it up with a smaller one, to give the snoring Callidus better neck support. "...I'm not weird, Kong."

How do you respond?

It's dangerous to let them go. But I think it might be important.

On some level, Sayaka IS their First Knight. They may have artifacts that could trigger her, but as dangerous as that is, the First Knight could be a formidable opponent to what is coming, even if she's no ally to the Shieldmaiden.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST

>>39240631
She's hard to deal with. Arguably she's a very cheerful sociopath, but depending on who you ask that might just be something she forces up to deal with her mental problems.

I mean, she's probably still some kinda path. She's roughly as unrepentant about what she does as Wendy, and in her case, that includes a lot more human experimentation. For often completely ridiculous things.

Like cock drugs.

Generally she does mechanical and weapon maintenance for the Wonderland Corps, she formerly ran the Venenum division at the Eighth, and now spends an irritating amount of time babysitting her boss/friend/ex instead of doing things she likes, which has left her a little bit desperate.

She does, Amber used to clean it when she did general weapon maintenance for the Rabbits (now Jade cleans it), and no she pretty much just shoves it in the big ribbon around her waist in costume and...honestly yeah probably her waistband if for some reason she's carrying in civvie mode. It's usually in her inventory if she's not specifically armed for a mission though.

I wouldn't be surprised if she did it just because Murderface was cute when she was having an autistic fit over something and screwing with the Springfields is funny. I also wouldn't be surprised if she legitimately kinda thought it was cool.

She likes strong, reliable types that she can just let take control sometimes. Wishy-washy people irritate her pretty quickly, which is ironic because she's pretty guilty of that kind of thing herself. She's got a big mommy complex, too, so soft, motherly types basically do her in without trying - if she has someone she can feel safe and comfortable around and who knows what to let her sleep through and what to wake her up for, she'll be pretty happy.

She could probably be persuaded to play guard dog for someone weaker than her, too, or even take control and sort of take the top side of the relationship if that person could still give her the sort of safe, comfy area she needs to relax.

Murderface was kind of neither, but she was more like that sort of...the best friend that gets all of your jokes and even when they don't get your hobbies, they think they're kinda neat.

More than writeups tend to portray - as the narrator, she tends to omit things that aren't immediately relevant or bothering her. The first Nicole incident (when she was ~12) was the start of it as a major problem for her, but it was already manifesting in little ways before then.

It's calmed down in a way since Nicole killed her; she could settle some things in her mind because of it, and since then, most of her hallucinations have been benign, if not outright benevolent.

Uboa will outright pick up on things Wendy herself misses or blocks out from time to time, and they can share sensory information, too. And more or less do so automatically, to a lesser degree even when Wendy's not transformed.

I did skip the Amber bit in the Wendy autism, right.

She's really into heroic types, partly because they tend to be exciting and she gets to clash with them a little, partly because Amber has some Problems and I think in her mind she'll find someone that will just accept her and rescue her from them. Mostly, though, she just wants people that can keep her engaged and interested, because she gets apathetic and depressed surprisingly easily.

Brain problems, mostly. Apathy is a big thing for her, it's why she takes on big projects and surrounds herself in science, fire, explosion, and murders, because it gets her excited and she's worried she'll just sink down into a bog of existential gray if she -stops- doing those things and goes back to being depressed.

Most of what we see of her is an enormous coping mechanism! If she just went with therapy and medication instead she might be designing weapons for governments somewhere.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 04/11/15(Sat)09:32:41 No.39277321 Archived

You reach out with a hand to brush some strands of hair from Midori's peaceful, sleeping face. If this was actually her - just somehow brought into this crazy lucid dream with you and Wendy, a dream that felt too real for comfort - then you're relieved that she's actually getting some decent sleep.

You've been worried that she might have gotten it into her head that she needed to stay vigil outside your Silent Room, just like you did when the Venenum were frantically trying to save Yuma's life. Of course she doesn't need to - you're not teetering on the edge of life and death like Yuma was, after all. You've just turned into what is pretty much the Incubator's version of Satan. You're not dying.

...At least, you hope not.

"...Kong? Kong, are you even listening?" Your ex snaps at you from behind. "...Chrissakes, if you're worried about her, don't be. She's just probably literally sleeping, and--"

"What's aftercare and how do I do it?"

You ask this just as you turn to face Wendy, cutting her off in the middle of her grudging reassurance. Her eyes widening and the remainder of her sentence curdling in her mouth as she realizes just what you've asked, before her cheeks turn a heavy, ruddy crimson.

"...Where did you even hear that?" Your ex finally manages to reply, after a couple of moments and a few stuttering false starts. "Is that seriously what you're thinking about right now? ...Christ, you really haven't changed that much, have you, Kong?"

It's a valid question, you reason. Well, one that came from a maddened, blood-drunk goddess gaining sobriety long enough to drop all sorts of cryptic advice in your direction. You don't say that part out loud, though.

It's a valid question, you reason. Well, one that came from a maddened, blood-drunk goddess gaining sobriety long enough to drop all sorts of cryptic advice in your direction. You don't say that part out loud, though.

"..." Wendy awkwardly tugs at her collar, trying to meet your gaze - and failing. "It's...like, snuggling and talking and I-love-yous and all that shit. It's for, like...helping each other come down off of...you know. Intense weird stuff."

She pauses here, turning away and hugging herself. "Can we not...talk about this? It's kinda rubbing it in my face even more than this fucking dream already is."

Hnh. Well. You'll have to ask her again sometime. Seems like a tense subject.

Fine, then. If this isn't her dream, and as sure as hell it isn't yours, whose is this? Midori's?

Wendy manages to finally look at you here, and when she does, it's with something unreadable in her gaze. Those copper-brown eyes of her glancing towards Midori's sleeping form. She's still blushing, but not as hard as earlier. "...Want me to check?"

You blink at this. She can do that?

"'Course I can. Dreams are my thing, remember?" Your American ex replies as she crawls over to Midori, and you can't help but stare as certain parts of her strain against the lacy negligee she's wearing as she moves on all fours amongst the pile of pillows. The chain attached to the collar around her neck dangling almost enticingly between her breasts. "Just gimme a second, here--"

You do. And then you give her a second more. And a bit more.

Before you clear your throat and ask if what she's doing is actually checking. Feeling your own cheeks heat up at the sight of both of them.

"Huh?" Wendy looks back up at you. "Oh, yeah. I already checked earlier. It's not her dream either. Knew it even before you asked."

Then what was she--

"What did it look like? I was copping a feel, Kong." Wendy leans back from Midori, something approaching a satisfied smirk curling her lips momentarily. "I didn't get a chance to when we were alone in my room."

What. WHAT.

"...What?" Your American ex turns back towards you, brow furrowing, before she shrugs once more. "She was asking about what happened. I told her you were retarded." A pause. "Ate all my fucking brownies, too. ...Not the good ones, at least, but all the regular ones."

How do you react?

You frown at this. ...You thought she hated Midori's guts, you tell your ex.

A small, tired smirk curls Wendy's lips. "...I'm just fucking with you a little, Kong. I was the only one conscious and...not picking up the pieces enough to tell her what happened." She looks down at Midori, fingering the collar around her neck in narrow-eyed contemplation, before glancing back up at you with another shrug. "...She's been going out of her way to piss me off, but I'm not going to...you know. Be a dick about stuff like that. She sucked it up enough to come to me, I sucked it up enough to tell her."

It's here that Wendy reaches out with a hand, poking Midori's boob with a finger. Making your Callidus pause in her snoring to grumble, like an irritated cat on the edge of growling in irritation. "...Shit, I would have made her dinner if she showed up dressed like this."

Another pause, and this time you see your ex brush away a lock of hair from Midori's face, in unknowing and gentle mimicry of what you did earlier. Deft fingers tucking it back behind the green-haired Callidus' ear.

"...But yeah. She's not worth hating." Wendy draws her hand back, shaking her head. "I dunno. I'd probably be a bitch too if some dead bitch showed up and everyone acted like she was gonna take my girlfriend away. I mean, she'd be in pieces in a fuckin' dumpster, but...you know."

You nod after a moment. You're not sure you get all of it, but what's important is that they don't hate each other as you originally thought they would. Maybe things can work out, after all.

...Anyway. About this weird dream thing. If this isn't your dream, and it isn't Midori's or Wendy's either, then--

"It's...probably not a Callidus illusion, or anything like that. I'd know." Wendy pre-empts your thoughts here. "I think something intercepted what I was trying to do and turned it into...all this." She gestures with a hand to encompass the entire throne room, before tugging on her chain again. "...Dunno what could be doing it, though. Messing with someone's dreams like this, either it's someone completely hardcore like Malal, or..."

Or...?

Wendy shrugs. "...You tell me, Kong. If this isn't your dream at all, then why'd you wake up sitting on a fucking throne? In an actual throne room? And...well, disregarding whatever sick fantasies you got involving collars and chains, why am I and Midori in here with you?"

That's...but you're--

"You're the one with the wings here, Kong. Wings that, you know, let you fly by burning the souls of the damned." Your ex looks at you with narrowed eyes. "Don't tell me they don't strike you a little bit weird? Don't you think they could have something to do with this?"

You decide to try and get a look around. This seems like some sort of hint again, so you probably need to discover something about where you are at the moment.

Before you do so, however, you ask Wendy if she'd ever experienced something like this before. Something hijacking her dreams and stuff.

"...Yeah." Wendy nods after a long moment. "...Once. Don't remember it too great, but it was like this. A dream that isn't. Like a vision, or something."

Yeah? She ever find out what caused it?

Your American ex shakes her head. "...Nah. Like I told you, I can't remember it all too well. Probably...after I died or something, though."

...Yeah, okay. You'll just look around and see what you can find, seems like you're meant to. ...Can she promise to at least keep the sexual harrassment down until you come back?

"Fuck you, Kong. I'll play bongos with your girlfriend's boobs if I want to." A pause, before Wendy turns away. "...Yeah, sure."

Heh. Alright. You'll hold her to that.

"Asshole." You hear her grumble underneath her breath, and you can't help but smile at that.

Rising to your feet - wincing as you feel your lower back muscles protest at your stretching - you make to investigate this throne room you've woken up in. Nudging aside the pillows in your path with the toes of your shoes, your wings flexing and snapping close to your back as you do so.

...For a dream, this is too fucking realistic. It's like you're actually awake, rather than inside an illusion made by your own subconscious.

But anyway. As you explore the throne room - glancing about here and there, trying to catch some sort of obvious but hidden detail that would bring you a revelation that'd somehow figure into what you're supposed to do, or remember, or some other shit - it's here that you realize two things: the first is that this throne room is fucking huge, easily bigger than the Officio's General Assembly Hall. Second is that some sort of machinery is making the floor underneath your feet vibrate the slightest bit. A constant sort of thrumming that reminds you of an impossibly-huge engine rumbling on idle.

It's when you finally reach the far end of the throne room - approaching what looks like a towering pair of golden doors barring your way, their surfaces rich and inundated with finely-wrought reliefs of the Blessed Lady's mythology - is when you hear it, as well as feel it. Your eyes growing wide at the discovery.

Buried in the vibration of whatever machine rumbled underneath the floors, hidden amongt the ambient noise, was the sound of war. Not just a duel or a scuffle - of which you'd barely even have taken notice of, unless the people involved where someone you cared about - but actual pitched war. Orders desperately screamed from hoarse throats. Explosions - loud, bassy, violent ones - erupting in split-second blossoms, picking up live, writhing bodies and dropping them as corpses. Blades, weapons smashing into each other in quick succession, a dark applause that held the promise of blood and more blood. And the screaming--

CRASH. You take a step back as something smashes into the huge golden doors from the outside in a deafening collision, one strong enough that despite their obvious size and weight it makes the doors swing just the slightest bit inward.

"...Kong?" Wendy calls from the other side of the throne room, where you'd left her and Midori. "Kong, what's going on? Did you hear--"

Another crash. Louder this time, stronger, and this time the floor itself rocks at the impact. The doors swinging inward just a bit more, just enough for you to squint through. And what you see--

Magical girls. Hundreds, no, thousands of them, fighting each other. No, KILLING each other. Slaughtering one another in some sort of massed murder-frenzy. Not unheard of, of course, you've been in similar engagements before - you've CAUSED similar engagements before - but this was in another fucking scale entirely. This wasn't just some regrettable incident between Officios, this was what happened when an Officio geared up to kill another - fully and whoeheartedly.

But why? What the fuck would--

"Kong? KONG!" Wendy tries again, rattling her chain. "Kong, for fuck's sake--"

You squint just a bit more, and see that most of the girls on the losing side are wearing some sort of uniform over their costumes, lending them a somewhat uniform appearance. ...It's some sort of black mantle or cape, clasping around the shoulders and draping over the upper torso. An emblem emblazoned at the back of it - a shattered purple star set in front of the stylized rifling of a gun barrel.

You only have enough time to be horrified before for the doors to finally and explosively open, blasted inwards by something that also knocks you back to the center of your throne room. Your wings flapping frantically to set you back right, a task easy enough even by dream standards.

As the dust clears - and the sound of pitched Magical Girl warfare floods the room - it's here that you behold someone step through the destroyed doors. Someone you never thought you'd see, wearing an articulated suit of armor of elegantly-wrought gold, enhancing her costume rather than covering it outright.

It's actually possible.
The dolls said the knight form can take over when the person is going through very high stress. Regaining your body after being burned to death may be considered very high stress, even for an experienced Eversor such as Kyouko.
Theory: Psychic bitch what'sherface that just lost her only friend Yuma decides to off the one that killed her friend, Chiaki, the only way she can; through dreams and manipulation. She looks into the future, and brings the image of a future where Chiaki wages war with the Second into Matsuda's dream. Kyoko gets roped in, and her fuck you up mode gets activated. The Blood Knight is awakened.

Remember she casually rewrote reality. And even if your reasoning is correct and she can technically kill us is she gets close enough, once again, Homusatan can literally bend reality. You shake your head in abject denial as you behold the golden knight wearing your best friend's face, and speaking in your best friend's voice. The wide speartip of the weapon in her hands radiating a furnace-heat that sizzled the air around it and rapidly cooked the blood crusting on the blade.

No. This person, this...whoever this was, this wasn't Kyoko. The red-haired Eversor may have gotten mad at you a couple of times - she'd even punched you out during one of them - but she'd never looked at you with such hatred before. Never talked to you like that before, addressing you With such depthless fury. A fury ripened by the wounded pride of someone betrayed.

It was different with Sayaka, back then at the Akashic Realm. Half-limping and half-hobbling as you ducked and dodged and dived under each killing blow, inwardly laughing at how fucked up your situation was as you faced the First Knight as your executioner - it wasn't that much of a shock. You've always had an inkling that Sayaka would snap, sooner or later, and try to off you for real. That pessimistic, if realistic expectation of your Equerry finally resorting to murder blunting the impact of revelation a bit, even if you fought to get her back from that state.

But here and now, with the only person you've ever considered to be your best friend standing in front of you, looking all but ready to run you through with her own spear - you can't help but wonder just what the actual fuck you did to deserve this kind of shit. Feeling a cold pit yawning open in your gut in the hopeless fucking despair of it all, to have the only person you felt you could trust with anything turn around to want to kill you.

Still, you have to try and get to her. Dream or no dream, you have to try. Even if you can most likely wake up from this unscathed, you have to prove yourself that you can do it, when it actually happens.

"It's me, Kyoko." You begin, not taking a step forward but not retreating, either. "Chiaki, remember? We're best friends, right? What the hell is this? What's going on?"

Kyoko's one crimson eye narrows at your words, before her lips curl into a snarl. Her grip tightening on the burning spear in her hands. "That line won't work anymore, Akemi Homura. You said so yourself - Chiaki's dead. You killed her. She never existed in the first place."

A moment later, and she steps forward. "Had us all fooled, you know? All those years making a sucker of Sayaka - of Mami - of ME - pretending to be this quiet little foulmouthed kid with a temper, when she was actually the fucking Devil. Spilling the beans at the last fucking second, just before you killing Mami herself." She takes another step forward, a harsh rasping laugh escaping her lips. "Did it feel good, Homura? Offing' Mami, I mean. You shot her right in the back like a fucking coward."

What? No, you didn't--you'd never--

"Probably felt good, right? You did say you were looking forward to shutting her up. You told me yourself." Another dry, wheezing chuckle comes from Kyoko as she makes you back up, step for step. "And then declaring war on all the other Officios with your flunkies while you made your escape here, with Wendy and Midori." Kyoko shakes her head, her long unbound hair following her movement. "...Took too long to find you. Took even longer to get everyone organized, but we're all here. Eighteen other Officios, including the First. And we're taking you out, Akemi Homura. You and every single one of your own gang."

With this, the red-haired, golden-armored Eversor spins her spear once - the movement so quick, so fluid that the enflamed speartip leaves a giant ring of fire hanging in the air in front of the both of you. A ring that's quickly bisected as she brings the weapon up to point at you again, slashing the blade to the side with a brutal flourish. "And I"m taking your skull, just like I promised."

Jesus. Okay. Now you know why she's pissed. You didn't do any of that shit, but you understand why she wants to kill you so fucking much.

"NEARLY THROUGH, KONG! JUST KEEP HER OCCUPIED!" Wendy screams from somewhere behind you, the ear-splitting sound of metal trying to hack through reinforced metal becoming more desperate, more hurried. "FUCKING DREAM FUCKING CHAINS...!"

Alright. Try to keep crazy Kyoko occupied for a bit longer. Got it. Easy.

What do you do?

[]Duck low, try to knock her down and out. Get the fight on the ground and subdue her there.
[]Summon a Golden Weapon to defend yourself with, not to attack.

You find yourself swallowing painfully - your throat dry and hoarse - before asking Kyoko about Sayaka. Where is she, then? In every single operation that they're together, they never separate themselves from each other if they can help it. Why is Kyoko alone now, especially when she's taking the main objective?

"...Sayaka-chan's gone." Kyoko murmurs after a moment, the fire in her eyes dulling slightly, her voice growing colder. Number. "Oh. Right. You left when she witched out." She laughs here, a hollow, bleak thing that you should have never heard coming from someone like Kyoko. "She couldn't handle it. You killing Mami, Mami being gone, and then you leaving us at the mercy of everyone else...Sayaka-chan couldn't take it. She broke. And I had to kill her myself before she could hurt anyone else."

It's here that the throne room begins to shake underneath your feet, in the tell-tale tremors of military ordnance detonating somewhere near. More sounds of the war raging outside and leaking in, a harrowing backbeat to the horrors you're learning.

"Wanted to ask you why you did it." Your best friend intones, taking another step. And another. "Wanted to ask you if it felt like it was worth it. ...Was it? Was whatever it was you killed Mami for, what you betrayed us for...was it all worth it in the end, Homura...?"

You--

"TELL ME!" The roar of pain and anguish suddenly exploding from the red-haired Eversor is abrupt enough and loud enough to nearly bowl you over. Thankfully you manage to keep your feet as Kyoko continues her implacable advance, tears now streaming down her one remaining eye. "TELL ME IT WAS FUCKING WORTH ALL OF IT, MURDERFACE! TELL ME IT WAS WORTH EVERYTHING YOU DID, SO I KNOW JUST WHAT KIND OF FUCKING MONSTER I'M ABOUT TO KILL!"

You find yourself frozen here, unable to move. Not because of the promise of a painful, messy death brought about the burning spear in Kyoko's hands, but because of the anger in front of you. An anger that, even if you knew you didn't deserve, it felt like you did. Every sin she accused you of, you were guilty of committing. It was easy enough to avoid Sayaka's icy rage, even though the encounter itself still left you weak and exhausted - but in the face of Kyoko's fiery wrath--

"It wasn't worth it." You manage to murmur. "...I'm sorry, Kyoko."

You close your eyes just as your best friend screams again, bringing the burning spear over and around, to deliver the killing blow.

And you open them again as you feel something soft and warm and smelling of blood roughly shoulder you aside, making you topple sideways to the ground. At the same time you hear the tell-tale sound of an Eight Officio beam katana igniting, and then protesting with a crackling whine as its corrosive blade tries to eat into magically-shielded metal.

What the...?

"GET UP, KONG!" Snarls Wendy as she pushes against the burning blade of Kyoko's spear, both blazing weapons locked against each other. Her body now encased in her Magical Girl costume, with the exception of her scarf - the collar is still there, intact, and even with a bit of chain still hanging off of it. You can also see that she'd tried to cut through the collar itself, and that had proven futile. "GET UP, GET MIDORI! WE NEED TO GET OUT OF HERE TO WAKE UP!"

But what about Kyoko?! What about--

"I'LL HOLD HER OFF! JUST GET HER AND THEN GET ME, FOR FUCK'S SAKE...!" Wendy screams, before turning back to Kyoko and using the stalemate to try for a killing stab with her cleaver. It doesn't work, the blade pinging off her golden chestplate, but it startles your former best friend enough to back off.

"This isn't your fight, Wendy." Kyoko intones dully, coldly. "We were supposed to be saving you. Just put those things down and we'll get you away from her."

"Fuck you, Sakura." You hear Wendy snarl as you run over to Midori's sleeping form, one of the Golden Swords in your throne snapping to your hand as you make to cut her free. "You used to be cool. Now you just have a stick shoved up your ass like everyone else." With a mighty grunt, your ex finally breaks the stalemate, cutting right through Kyoko's guard to cauterize a single insulting line down the front of her armor, cutting right through an embossed emblem of the Second Officio, a spread-winged Eagle grasping a heraldic cross. "And dream or no dream, I'm going to take that stick out and beat you with it."

The chains binding Midori to your throne easily give way with just one cut. Tossing the Golden Sword, you scoop Midori up and make to run back to Wendy - when a bright flash of white light explodes into existence right in front of you, the smell of fresh ozone suddenly thick in the air.

Teleportation...!

You skid to a halt, Midori still in your arms, as you allow the light to dissipate and reveal the newcomer, despite your own mounting feat and panic. Despite the sudden, sinking feeling that you are too late - that you've always been too late - and what had arrived was someone infinitely worse than your best friend coming to kill you. Someone much, much more terrifying.

The harsh light of the teleportation locus finally fades to reveal a young woman of your height, of your stature. Her hair long, unbound, falling freely down her back in luxurious. Her costume resembling your old one in somewhat of a passing resemblance, there but not quite there, as if the similarities had been noticed and quickly made to be eradicated. Her eyes - cold and sharp and yet free of all judgment - stares at you from a face unused to anything more than a careful smile and a subtle frown. A face that did not show emotions too easily, lest they be used against her.

And completely, utterly gold.

"Justice comes, Chiaki Matsuda." The Magical Girl that is and is not your mirror image smiles at you, tenderly, almost lovingly. "Eternity awaits."

How do you react?

Decu is kill, so that's it for the thread tonight! Thank you all for participating! We'll begin with the most voted choice at an indeterminate date in the near future!

~Writeups for Thread 269 (4/11/2015)~

Wish, Pt 4: Angel of Death, by Dimunsis

http://pastebin.com/dar76hhu

Outnumbered and outgunned, the girls of the Fourth are pushed to their limit--blood, violence, death, and fear stalk the battlefield. Meanwhile, someone is watching...

Questions and comments are appreciated as always; please direct them to ask.fm/Deculture

For anything that doesn't require Decu specifically, I'll be here answering stuff for a while.

You have any more "headcanon" regarding Eve? From the details on the wiki and her brief mention in one of your writeups, so far I've got -

- dour, withdrawn, pretty quiet
- resilient psyche, a will of steel
- not a madman or a murderer or a psychopath, just tough
- the wiki says she carries a 1911 as her backup, so she either has 1. good taste or 2. a single-stack is the only thing she could get her dainty little hands around.

Past that, I know she's a Callidus, but the wiki only gives her power as "animation." You have any extant, unwritten headcanon on what that means exactly as a character-defining angle on her standard Callidus Tricks toolkit? Anything else about her personality, any other quirks? Does she have any real goals, or dreams?

Chiaki's not interested because she has plenty in that department, between Midori and Wendy. Besides, if Chiaki wanted to expand to a harem, her top choices would probably be Sayaka and Kyouko.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 04/22/15(Wed)09:02:13 No.39504163 Archived

You decide to grab Wendy and make a run for it. Even if this is a dream - even if you're fully aware that this is all just in your head - everything feels real enough that every cell in your body is screaming for you to get the fuck out of dodge. That to stay for just a moment longer would not just be inviting death, it would be to run screaming headlong into a drawn-out, protracted demise that would see you begging for the mercy of oblivion.

Ignoring Wendy's shriek of protest as you grab her around the waist with your free hand - Midori still unconscious, still comatose, a dead weight on your shoulders - you spread your wings and prepare to take flight, each black-bladed feather igniting with a blood-curdling chorus of screaming souls. The ghastly din thankfully drowning out the sounds that would have made you freeze in fear if you heard them: Kyoko roaring your name with an avenging angel's bloodthirst, the cacophony of a hundred ivory flintlock rifles readying to fire...

...and the decisive, well-oiled click of a Shield turning on its own accord and locking into place.

+ In the name of the True Blessed Lady, I do judge thee Diabolus Traitoris, Akemi Homura +

+ The sentence is death +

A golden light. Bright, hot, all-encompassing, erupts from somewhere behind you. You force yourself to move, but you can't. You can't even breathe. Even your wings are frozen into place, stretched taut to either side of you, immobilized, unable to even bristle in panic. You hear Wendy shrieking again, but this time in the keening, broken notes of someone being flayed alive. A searing, nerve-scorching agony that you yourself begin to feel just as Wendy finally goes still and silent in your arms.

And then--

>>39504163

The light fades, and you find yourself alone. No Wendy or Midori in sight. No golden-armored Kyoko roaring hatred in your face, no long-haired clone smiling as she takes you apart with the light blazing her Golden Shield. No weird-ass throne room, either. Just you in your old costume, standing in an endless expanse of white, and with a rather surprising lack of wings.

In front of you is a familiar figure encased in Culexus armor. The skull painted on her helmet easily recognizable, along with the rest of the scuffs and tears on her hardsuit.

After all that bullshit from earlier, after all the revelations and stomach-turning transitions from vision to vision - her harsh, vox-corrupted voice is a relief to hear.

Until you hear the annoyed, even disappointed tone it carries.

"I've tried my best to try and account for everything that could possibly happen," The Culexus says, crossing her gloved hands over her steel-studded kevlar breastplate. "I've done all I can to make sure there are multiple failsafes in place to nudge you in the right direction in case something goes wrong." She pauses here, the visor reflecting your face dipping briefly, before swiveling up towards you once more. "If everything worked as planned - even accounting for everyone's propensity to lose their shit at the most inappropriate times - you shouldn't be here. But you are. And that...that means we're fucked."

>>39504173

She clears her throat, a sound akin to gargling a mouthful of broken glass. "My name is Malal, Culexus Rank Leader of the Ninth Officio and Equerry to the Ninth Warmaster. Formerly Kaneda Madoka. I'm not really here, not like you are right now, and not like how my other, dumber selves often show up as. This is one out of five memories I implanted in your brain just before everything went to shit, a series of precautionary mental visions to trigger in the unlikely event that the worst-case scenario has happened. That worst-case scenario being, you turned into something you weren't supposed to turn into at all."

"This isn't going to be a lecture or another twenty-questions thing where you just get your earholes fucked with more cryptic bullshit. Let's be clear. We're way past that." The Culexus raises a hand, as if to stop you from speaking, even if you don't really have any words at the moment. "This is where we stand: the vision you saw right before this? The throne room and Kyoko and everything else? That's where you're headed right now. Ripped directly from my head when I dreamt it the first time."

She taps the side of her helmet with a finger. "You're about to become the fucking blight of the world, you realize that? The motherfucking final boss, instead of the hero I've spent all my life railroading you into. Something went horribly wrong down the road, and..." Malal spreads her hands. "...I just don't know. I don't know what happened for you to become like this. I have no idea what you could have done to yourself for you to--to get to this fucking point. What did you do? Give your Soul Gem to a Chosen? Is that what you fucking did?"

It's here that she lowers her arms to her sides, and you hear the creak of leather as her hands slowly curl into fists. "...No. You're not that stupid. You're not as stupid as Yuma was - or will be. I'm not really sure." She lets out a frustrated breath between gritted teeth, the sound resembling a rusty knife scraping over bone much too closely for comfort. "Well? What do you have to say for yourself, shit-for-brains? Was turning into the fucking Devil all part of your plan? Because if it was, then congratulations! You just fucking went outside the entire fucking plot! I have nothing - absolutely NOTHING planned for this!"

How do you react?

Anons, two days ago I discovered a writeup by Twiceborn called “The metamorphosis of Chiaki Matsuda”
Part 1: http://pastebin.com/BUrMHNxW
Part 2: http://pastebin.com/zzei60S9
Part 3: http://pastebin.com/9yVMfxpe
Synopsis: One day, Chiaki Matsuda wake up to discover that she has transformed into… a platypus
I enjoyed reading this, so I am sharing this story with those who didn´t know it

Also, this new Homura has a golden and COMPLETE shield. It was mentioned by the Homus in the desert eagle that the scarred shield was to extract her from the cicle of repetition, and TTO confirmed that the scarred shield prevented her to control Chiaki. So, basically, this Homura is controlled by TTO, no? Unless the golden shield protect her from TTO, in wich case it would be Pinky who is in charge.

Seriously with all the shit that Chiaki has been dealing recently I am pretty sure that she is near her breaking point. Whatever the breaking point may look like.

At this point Midori is just there to provide her some sanity points and make it appear like she has still something resembling a normal life left.

I have to know!" so Harry just turns around, pulls the trigger and nothing happens?

Yeah, it was like that, but this time it was the second time the scene happened, near the end of the movie, when he had fired 5 bullets, not 6.

It was mentioned by the Homus in the desert eagle that the scarred shield was to extract her from the cicle of repetition, and TTO confirmed that the scarred shield prevented her to control Chiaki. So, basically, this Homura is controlled by TTO, no? Unless the golden shield protect her from TTO, in wich case it would be Pinky who is in charge.

Didn't actually participate in either vote. What I mean is that the thing with Yuma actually meant something it provided development to her character and added new meaning to her previous actions. It also had some actual in-character justification. The same cannot be said for the Soul Gem thing.

Objectively, the mindrape thing was dumb, however it was also the main reason why Yuma flashback was as interesting and dramatic as it was.

"Do you realize just how much you fucked with everything? Do you really?" Malal snarls now, her vox-speakers turning the scathing reprimand to a growled threat. "Instead of just following all the fucking breadcrumbs I've painstakingly left all over the place - all the shit I made sure you'd be able to pick up on and use to your advantage - you just charged screaming ahead like a fucking retard. Ugh. Just...ugh." She shakes her head again, in clear derision and disgust. Not even bothering to hide her disappointment anymore underneath her usual veneer of affability and professionalism. "I don't even know if we can even salvage the situation as it is now, if you've turned into her. For fuck's sake--"

"Get fucked," You spit at her, cutting her tirade off. "Get. FUCKED."

Silence. A long, stunned silence, one made even more uncomfortable by Malal seemingly taking several seconds to realize that you were, in fact, speaking to her.

"...Excuse me?" The Culexus finally replies, her words a vox-torn query. "Did you just tell me to--"

To get fucked, yes. She heard you.

"...I see." Malal nods slowly, the visor reflecting your face dipping once, twice, before she steps towards you. Deliberately, calmly, each bootfall echoing in the closed space with in time with a placid heartbeat. "...You do realize you're talking to a prerecorded vision, right? But even then - even if I'm not actually here to hear you say that - what makes you think you have any FUCKING RIGHT TO SAY THAT TO MY FACE?!"

The Culexus ends her words in a vox-amplified, eardrum-bursting SHRIEK as she grabs you by your costume's collar with one gloved hand, the other bunched into a studded fist and hurtling towards your face - but you were expecting that. You knew, even if you remember absolutely nothing of your previous interactions with the Culexus, that she would simply explode once interrupted in mid-tirade. It was one of her triggers, and you didn't just set it off - you doused it in gasoline and flicked a lit cigarette at its direction.

Because you've just had enough of this bullshit.

The lethally-wielded, metal-studded fist whistles past you as you tilt your head the slightest bit to the side. At the same time, you hook both hands underneath her helmet, to use it as a handhold to pull her down towards you - just as you slam your knee into her midsection, right in the unprotected space between her ab guard and her breastplate.

The effect is immediate as it is immensely satisfying - the Culexus suddenly wheezes, then coughs, all wind forced out of her lungs. She tries for another punch - as solid as your first hit was, you know it's going to take much more than that to dislodge a pugilist as tenacious, to put away someone as used to brawling as Malal. So you dodge again, twisting away from a blow that would have broken your face in half - and then do something that you never thought you'd do to the Culexus.

You pull out your Golden Desert Eagle from your Shield - your cracked, scarred Shield - and shoot her in the kneecap. Point blank.

The round briefly sparks as it kicks against some sort of transparent kinetic shield covering Malal's suit - slowing down just enough that when it finally punches through, it simply tears away the crimson knee guard there, rather than take the Culexus' entire leg off. The impact, however, is enough to send Malal crashing to the ground, a stunned, shocked cry leaving her lips.

"Shut up," You snarl down at her. "I fucked up another one of your plans? Too fucking bad. I am fucking SICK of everyone treating me like a fucking pawn for their fucking plans. Pinky's plan, the Blessed Lady's plan, Kyuubey's--" You point the muzzle of the Golden Desert Eagle at the skull leering up at you. "...and nobody wants to let me know what the goddamn game is. No, it's fine. Let the fucking drunk amnesiac just stumble into shit, she'll work it out somehow, RIGHT?!"

"Don't you fucking point that thing at me--" Malal snarls, trying to get up. You step forward and keep her down with your heeled foot on her chestplate, your gun still aimed at her forehead.

"I didn't ask for this," You spit down at her. "I never asked for this. But I tried my best to play along, even if everyone and their fucking mother was doing their best to keep me out of the fucking loop. Is it really a surprise that I fucked up NOW? When someone offered to clue me in? What the fuck did you think I was going to do?"

Malal is silent here, and you take that as her capitulation. You swing the gun away from her helmet, just as it suddenly starts to rain. The mysterious precipitation soaking into your clothes, distorting the polished dark visor reflecting your face with moisture - making the skull painted on the Culexus' helmet seem to cry wet tears.

"So, how about since your plans are fucked, you stop complaining and tell me what the hell is going on so I can make my own fucking plans?" The words come so easily now, when back then you'd have hesitated and stuttered over them. "Because right now, there isn't one at all."

"...You know I can't--" The Culexus starts, but you cut her off again, once more aiming the Desert Eagle at her.

"Why? Because you don't trust me? Is that it? Is it because I'm a fuck-up? Or is it something else?" You shake your own head here. "Maybe you should've just put a fucking bullet in my head if I'm that fucking worthless. But you didn't. And here we are."

A moment passes between the both of you as thunder cracks overhead, followed by a flash of lightning. Briefly illuminating the lightless, lifeless city broken around you.

"God knows I wouldn't have blamed you." You finally finish as you take your foot off her chestplate, allowing her to finally get back up on her feet. She does so slowly, hesitantly, her breath sawing in and out of her lungs in vox-corrupted rasps.

"...Well?" You prompt her after a long moment. "I'm waiting."

"You're...you're changing it." She says quietly. "...You're not supposed to be able to do that."

Changing? Changing what?

"This. All of it. The vision I implanted." She points upwards, to the raining sky above you, to the shattered Mitakihara lying around the both of you. "This is...it's supposed to play back just the way I recorded it. And after this conversation, I'm supposed to--" The Culexus trails off, shaking her head again. "This is bullshit."

Supposed to...? You frown here. What's she supposed to do--

"A complete memory wipe. Another induced episode of amnesia." Malal shakes her head. "That'll make it the second...no, the third time this'll be triggered. Just enough for Kyuubey to try and start over, and if that doesn't work, then to try with the red or the blue one..."

Hey, she's right in that one of the bouts of amnesia actually helped, since it allowed the creation of the Chiaki Matsuda personality.
The one we suffered in Siberia didn't, though, since that one didn't have enough time to differentiate herself, beyond liking to drink water rather than whiskey.

But, remember. This is an "implanted memory" that we "changed", where Malal is apparently life-like. This could be an illusion. It may not be Malal's doing, and it may all be just bullshit. We don't know. We're in full Shadowrun territory.

The amnesia trick would work in a few instances - it's actually kind of clever, if not a bit heavy-handed.

But in this one situation, it doesn't work. We need to deal with the physical abnormality first - because if we don't get that fixed nothing else matters.

CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING

Consider this:
We assume the following:
The "dream" is entirely real.
Kyuubey knew of Chiaki's induced amnesia.
Kyuubey planned on this with Malal, because Malal knew of this beforehand and made plans for it.

QB could have lied. He knew of this, and he's simply following Malal's plan. He will wait until we are wiped, then he will feed us with more bullshit.
QB isn't on our side, that means the Officio can and potentially will be against us. We can't trust any friends related to the Officio, because they are under QB's power, and considering we are the very image of fear to every incubator, QB will take every measure to keep us contained until a proper "solution" is found.

We are alone.

It's the consequence of thinking we know better than others, killing Mami, getting rid of QB, and taking off with a chunk of the Officio still loyal to us.

Faking the amnesia is too problematic. Chiaki isn't that good of an actress, and the players can't keep their knowledge together for that kind of deception to work.

From thread 144:

>No, no, not that. The thing about making people forget. Culexus can do that at will? ...And can it be done in reverse, make people remember stuff they've forgotten somehow?

The Culexus is silent for a few moments, before shaking her head. "...No, Warmaster. We can only erase memories, and only the ones that qualify as short-term memory. Nothing beyond two, maybe three minutes. Anything more than that, you're risking damaging the person's ability to retain memories, not to mention irrepairable brain damage. Memory restoration..." Another moment of silence, telegraphed by the subtle click of Yuma's speaker switching off due to inactivity. "...well, Miss Malal probably would've been able to do something like that. She was the best of us, after all."

Hnh. Well. That's something to know, you guess. You thank her for the information.

"...Miss Malal didn't make you forget, you know." Once again, Yuma seems to read your mind, here, the vox-corruption in her voice not quite robbing the defensive tone in her words. "She HATED wiping someone's memories, even if it was just to make someone forget something traumatic, like seeing their best friend turn into a Witch right in front of them. She always said memories, good or bad, helped make someone become the person they were meant to be - and just removing them for convenience's sake is disrespecting not only the memory, but the person the memory belongs to."

You frown, here. You didn't even say anything! You're just trying to figure out what's been fucking with your memory, that's all. You're not accusing anyone here, just trying to find out what could've happened--

"And I'm saying you're wrong. Miss Malal couldn't have made you forget. It's just not like her."

Well, Yuma, you see, I have some bad news for you...

You're...

No. This is too much. This is too much to take in in such a short fucking period of time. You can actually feel your head ache as you think about it, as if every brain cell in your skull is actively repelling the thought itself. At the same time that you feel your own breath start to grow ragged and hurried, the beginnings of a panicked hyperventilation.

For Malal to admit, even a prerecorded memory of her, that she was the one behind your spotty memory - just because of her fucking plan --

No, you growl at her, shaking your head furiously. No more amnesia. You're not going to allow it. You're not forgetting anything else ever again. Not as long as you can fucking help it. You've made too many promises to too many people to forget them all over again.

You're not going to do to Midori what you did to Wendy.

That stops now.

"Do you think it's up to me? I'm part of this prerecorded memory, aren't I?" Malal snaps at you. "Even if we're talking like this, here and now, there are still some things that are set in stone. The moment you wake up, Chiaki Matsuda is gone. It's going to happen, and nothing bar rewriting this particular memory itself is going to stop it--"

She stops here, just as lighting fissures the very sky underneath her. Her visor reflecting the bolts of electricity as she looks up, and then the gold luster of your Desert Eagle as she comes face to face with its barrel.

"...Alright, that MIGHT work." Malal finally concedes. "But you're basically fucking with your own head, you know? Sure, you might not forget anything, but you're risking some serious brain damage with that. The kind of brain damage that makes you pee all over yourself while you twitch like a fucking Chihuahua. And it's going to hurt like a bitch--"

You'll take your chances, you tell her. Now, if she'll get on with telling you the shit you actually know--

"Alright, alright." The Culexus shakes her head. "Fine. I don't know everything, because I believe I also forced myself to forget a few key details when I recorded this, on the off-chance that this happens. But they're already in place, I know that for a fact, and they'll be there when you need them."

Alright. Fine. Nothing you can do about that. So? The plan?

"I'm getting to it." Malal snaps. "...Alright. From what I know, you're my plan to save the world. Remember when I said I dreamed about a lot of things as a kid? About the future, that kind of shit?" You nod. "I dreamt a lot about what I needed to do. Not just routine everyday stuff, but the actual steps I needed to undertake to make sure this thing with you and me finally stops. This cyclical thing that's turning everything to shit, and making people see a crazy psycho version of me in their dreams." It's here that she laughs, the vox speakers in her helmet turning the giggle into a sound akin to a tank changing gears. "I know, just in time, right? In the one last fucking timeline. Better late than never, I guess."

She shakes her head. "Anyway. So, yeah, I dreamed about everything. Most of it was incomplete but everything was detailed enough for me to just connect the dots and make plans accordingly. The rest I either improvised or came up with myself, but not after a lot of...second-guessing."

You don't like the sound of that.

"I'd've knocked your teeth out if you did." Malal says sourly. "So what I planned was simple: Go into the Akashic Realm, try and find one of you there, and then smuggle her into the Officio somehow. That took the longest. I had to ask for help." She chuckles, half towards you, half at herself. "You were pretty fucking pissed at me then, I think I interrupted something important, but you were friendly enough. Helped me find a live one, one that wasn't corrupted yet or twisted enough to be a liability."

The Culexus gestures to your Shield, on your right arm. "Weird about the whole mirror-image thing, though, even your double was spooked about it. But we were in a hurry."

...Well, why did she need one of...you, then? Christ, it's so fucking weird to think of yourself like that--

She holds up two studded leather-encased fingers. "Two reasons: first, we needed someone that would eventually be at the same level as the one of you responsible for everything."

The Transcendent One?

Malal nods. "The same. The second is that we needed someone to distract Pinky and get her attention. Someone she'll immediately recognize and latch onto, which would make collecting all the golden bullshit relatively easy."

Easy? Relatively EASY?

You're just gotten the FIFTH. Out of a possible twenty. And that's after the most terrifying ordeal you've ever gone through. How the fuck is that easy--

"I said relatively." The Culexus repeats quietly. "It's easier because most the users are going to gravitate towards you in some way or form. You're going to be in the center of things, whether you like it or not, and she - Pinky - is going to make sure of that."

...But why you? Why couldn't it have been some else? She said you had a clone who helped her, what about her? Why not let her handle this kind of responsibility--

"Because she was dying," Malal cuts you off. "She didn't have much time left. I believe she tried the same exact thing, with the Golden Weapons and all - but she made a mistake somewhere and they've basically turned her into a puppet they were slowly draining of life." She shrugs here. "She wanted to do something useful before she killed herself.

...Ah.

...Ah.

"The plan is basically that. Get an Akemi Homura who isn't corrupted and can't be controlled by the Transcendent One to grab all the Golden Weapons and stop the cycle. Before it compromises THIS timeline and fucks everything up for everyone forever."

That sounds...well, that confirms what you've suspected by now. So you just really need to collect the Golden Weapons, that's it?

"That's what I've been trying to set up. Everything else is just window dressing, and making sure you've got enough contacts and buffers to help you along in case shit goes down."

...Wait. If she found you in the Akashic Realm, then how did she smuggle you into the Officio? Through teleportation? Or--

You squint as you go back to what Kharn told you. About how you were found by Mami and Sayaka inside a barrier.

"Smart, right?" Malal chuckles. "I threw you into the safest barrier that I could find, then pitched that barrier right into the outside world. After that, all it took was calling it to Mami's and Sayaka's attention. Then just a bit of acting, and..." She sighs. "You know, of all the people I feel bad about deceiving, it's Kharn. She didn't deserve it, the snow-shoveling yokel. How is she nowadays?"

Married, you tell her, after shaking your head to steady yourself. ...Probably pregnant.

"Yeah? Well, that's good. Anyone earned her happy ending, it's her." Another chuckle issues from her vox speakers.

Then...about the procedure? What the hell was that all about?

Malal waves a hand. "Only a precautionary measure to make sure what happened to your clone didn't happen to you. Sounds crazy, I know, but the Maerorus program's pretty much the only thing that can stem Golden Weapon corruption." A moment. "Of course, Kyuubey may also be doing it to get a leg up on the First. I know what that little bastard is planning, and I wish I could be there to see it happen."

Right. That's...okay.

That's the rub, isn't it?
Because you didn't trust any one of them, you ended up sabotaging all attempts to get to the goal that you wanted.
A staple of film noir; if you hadn't been such a paranoid asshole, maybe you could have gotten a good ending.

If we are ever seen with our wings, it will set off a series of sanctions that will have our entire Officio executed and the full might of every single Officio on the planet and the First coming down on us, as well as likely uniting all remaining Golden Weapon users into a single force to fight us.

If Ahriman had killed Oriko, she would have fucked herself over since she still needs a meatbody to act through.
And we did still fight her, while she was using Oriko's body, anyway.

So, after all that speculation about Malal plan, all that theories (we are TTO, we are the last Clara Doll, we are this timeline Homura...), THIS is her master plan? Take a Homu from the Akashic Realm and make her fight with TTO? I have to say I feel a little dissapointed. What is your opinion?

Alright. You've learned...enough to probably drive yourself insane at the moment. But you still want a bit more. Maybe it's just because you're actually learning things that matter this time, rather than cryptic bullshit you have to constantly mull over.

So you ask Malal, then. Does she know who this timeline's Akemi Homura is? It isn't you, right? Of course it isn't you, she told you about what she and that clone of yours did in the Akashic Realm, and--

"No. That's the one thing I was trying to find out when Walpurgisnacht happened. I was hoping I'd be able to find her in the confusion of that kind of event, but..." She shakes her head. "I know she's contracted, though. Someone in the more powerful Officios. But you'll know her when you see her, and when you do..." The Culexus draws a leather-encased thumb across her gorget.

Ah. Well, at least you tried.

"Yeah, sorry. I'd have mentioned it first thing if I knew, anyway."

Yeah. Figured.

...Well, about the Spymaster...

"Yeah?"

Well. She...she did mention something about her, but it's not like you really want to know. It's just that, any and all information will be handy, so--

Malal chuckles. "I hear you. Okay, don't spread it around, but I have it from a reliable source that the Spymaster's been trained to...uh..." The Culexus seems to hesitate here, going with some rather awkward hand movements instead. "...you know. Do 'that' on command. Some kind of weird sex hypnotism shit that she was trained on by someone she got into trouble with."

'That'?

"That. You know." Even with her face hidden behind her helmet, you can tell Malal's blushing. "Orgasm. That kinda thing. When she hears a certain word."

Oh. That. ...What, you can train someone to do that? What the fuck?

"It's a sex thing. It's weird." Malal shakes her head. "Anyway, the word is 'Nevermore', and you didn't hear it from me."

"Sure." The Culexus snickers, and you both share a nod.

...Anyway. That's...probably all you're going to get from her, so this should be goodbye. You thank her for what she told you, and you'll try not to hate her guts too much for learning what she did.

"It's not something I'm proud about. It's just something that had to be done." Malal shakes her head as you light a cigarette and stick it between your lips, at the same time raising your Desert Eagle to aim at her head once more. "You don't have to forgive me, either. I know you won't be able to, and I won't ask you to, either. I'm fine with that."

...Isn't she even going to say sorry?

A moment of silence stretches out from between the both of you as she stares down the barrel of your gun. "I don't think I have the guts to even say that, not after what I put you through."

You give a smile. One that looked as tired as you felt.

She can at least try, right?

"...Yeah." She nods. "Sorry, Homura. For everything."

You brace yourself for the pain and pull the trigger.

The Culexus's helmet blasting apart into shards and bloody pulp, before the headless body itself collapses forward into your arms.

The last thing you hear is your own screaming amidst the roaring of your Silent Room's sirens.

The last thing you feel is your own clawed fingers tearing your own eyes out - anything in the agony of the burning, searing pain blossoming inside your skull.

...Huh. So it did actually hurt, after all.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

>>39508913

"Sempai! Hanegawa-sempai, please, wake up! Something's wrong with the Warmaster!"

You are a Magical Girl.

You've spent most of the day worrying about your reckless girlfriend of a Warmaster stuck inside a Silent Room and under heavy guard.

Mami and Kyuubey had promised you that this would all blow over soon, and that Chiaki would be back grumbling behind her desk before you even missed her.

You knew they were lying, but you didn't have the heart to tell them you knew.

Your girlfriend was never going to get any better. She was going to get worse, first.

And right now, with Kumatora hammering at the door leading to your own temporary sleeping quarters in the Officio - you have the sinking feeling that she did.

And that you won't be able to help her this time.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 05/01/15(Fri)11:05:36 No.39688461 Archived

"Hold on! I'll...I'll be right out!"

You shout at the door leading to your temporary quarters as equal amounts of panic, fear and horror force sleep out of your system - what little there was of it in the first place - and replace it with adrenalin. The sudden surge of it - and your hurry to get ready - nearly making you tear apart the expensive woolen sweater that Mami had loaned you as you stretch and pull it over your shivering, sweat-soaked frame. The cold moisture bedewing your skin a souvenir of the ultra-realistic (and ultra-horrifying) nightmare of your sempai being murdered for sins she didn't - and could never - commit.

This wasn't supposed to happen.

Everyone - including her - promised you that there wouldn't be any more issues after Siberia.

Malal promised. Kyuubey promised. Hell, even Madoka - her golden-eyed, smiling self - had assured you as much.

That after what you and your sempai went through during the Hell of Siberia, you wouldn't have to worry about another episode like this. Sure, there was always the danger of Chiaki being killed in action, of being slain by another Golden Weapon-toting lunatic she needed to kill - but at least you wouldn't need to worry about her suddenly going insane by the damned things, or being haunted by whatever sickness that festered in her soul like a cancer.

But it looks like you can't even get that, can you?

>>39688461

It's not like you didn't jump into two overlapping barriers to save her. It's not like you befriended her crazed, eldritchian ex-girlfriend to find the fragments of her shattered psyche in a twisted, labyrinthine map of her past, haunted by ghosts and demons and cackling phantasms.

It's not like you died trying to put her back together.

Sure, you were brought back, but only when Malal intervened. And even then, it meant your best friend offering her own life up as a sacrifice. Making you owe her a debt you're sure you will never be able to repay, no matter what you do.

You're not asking for much. You're not asking for a happy ending, even. You're not that stupid, to think that there's something powerful enough to assure you of that.

You just want her to be okay. To stop being tortured by the things she has to deal with in order to carry the burden she'd been forced into carrying.

But if you can't even have that...you're not too sure you can stand the idea of her suffering like this any longer.

Even if everyone else seems more than okay to stand by and idly watch.

>> ☐ Deculture 05/01/15(Fri)11:07:51 No.39688490

>>39688475

Ten minutes. Ten minutes is how long it takes for you to storm out of your temporary sleeping quarters, interrogating a panicked Kumatora about the state your sempai is in along the way to her Silent Room - before you're suddenly redirected to the Incubator's Office, to see Kyuubey on the double. You almost - ALMOST - defied that, if it weren't for the fact that you didn't want to cause trouble for your sempai. Not in the delicate situation she's in. Not like this.

Not yet, anyway.

Questioning your kohai on the way to the Incubator's Office didn't really yield much information - all she knew was that she was on duty to watch the cameras recording the activity inside Chiaki's Silent Room. She'd been about to get up and be relieved by Rea Ashford for the morning when suddenly all the feeds went completely black, at the same time the alarms set to trigger upon the detection of Witch energy went off.

"And they're all working fine, that's the scary part," Kumatora had said as the two of you finally stood in front of the doors leading to Kyuubey's Office. "The cameras, I mean, Hanegawa-sempai. All of them are working perfectly. But all they're seeing is black. Completely black. Nothing is showing up, no matter what we try - night vision, infrared, even echolocation."

And for the audio? "Just static. No screaming, no crying, no laughing. Just static."

Wonderful. Just...wonderful.

Please be okay, sempai.

Please be okay.

The doors slide open, and slam closed the moment you step over the threshold. You try not to be too disturbed at the sound of various locks automatically clicking into place behind you.

The room is...well, it's deserted. Deserted except for Kyuubey himself, watching over his array of monitors, each one displaying a black screen. The faint hum of static droning from a pair of headphones placed hanging from his narrow shoulders. Even from here, even with your relative inexperience with his kind - you never really saw much of Jyuubey during your time in the Tenth, and when you did it was during curt, abrupt meetings that had you being forced to look down at your feet in respectful submission - you could sense how tired he was, the fatigue coming off of him in palpable waves. And as he turns towards you at your approach - you could just make out the tiny eyebags underneath those perfectly-round, ruby-red orbs that was his eyes.

Well, at least you're not the only one who feels like shit around here, you think.

"Ah, Hanegawa. I apologize for the abrupt morning call, but you did tell me to wake you up in case a development arose in Matsuda's situation." He nods at Kumatora. "Ishikawa, thank you for bringing Hanegawa here. Consider yourself relieved. Get some rest, you may attend to your duties in the afternoon."

The black-haired Eversor blinks at Kyuubey, then at you, before shaking her head. "Begging your pardon, sir, but I'd like to stay all the same." She pauses for a moment, as if making a decision right then and there. "The Warmaster needs us. I'll sleep when I'm too tired to be of any use."

Kyuubey blinks, before chuckling. "And here I was thinking how lamentable it was that only Matsuda's indifference with wetwork has rubbed off on you, Ishikawa. Very well, you can stay for a bit longer. I'll notify the acting Warmaster to transfer your duties to someone else for the meantime."

Would exposition really have helped?
Besides the chances that Faust or TTO would overhear the plan and therefore work to stop it, since they randomly watch and listen over Chiaki's shoulder, Ahriman would still have offered to show "the truth, that Malal and the others have been hiding" and asked for Chiaki's Soulgem.
Some players, probably enough, would have still taken Ahriman up on her offer because they think Malal can't be trusted, or resent any manipulation by someone.

Hell, QB could have just fucking ordered us to prioritize searching for them.

Whatever, we're here, we're Queer, we're kinda focused on the rear, and we're going to fuck up fast and hard enough that hopefully we wrap back around to everything working out.

Malal did keep Faust away, but that was only when she was alive, and there was only one Culexus left by the time we took control.
And with the way we played Yuma, how could Malal trust her to do the right thing when she couldn't even be trusted to follow simple orders?

I remember QB telling us to acquire Golden Weapons when we brought the Golden Desert Eagle to him, but if he were to prioritize it, then it would just invite the other Officios to step up their own efforts to hoard them.
Also even if he did prioritize the collection of the Golden Weapons, the players, and Chiaki, would have still wanted to know more about her origins and the final goal for collecting the Golden Weapons, questions he couldn't answer without fear that Faust or TTO would overhear.

Misaka was also telling us to get the Golden Weapons, when she was in her trance, so that our shield could be repaired.

Pretty much everyone was telling us to get all the Golden Weapons, to varying degrees.
So QB telling us to get the Golden Weapons would only have resulted in us asking "Why?" and thinking he has an agenda (which would have been right) and therefore leading us to try to cock it up somehow.

And Faust finding out what the Golden Weapons were really for would have messed up the entire plan, given how much Godoka had to manipulate Faust into thinking it was her own idea and that it was a good one.

What's happening to your sempai? You ask this as calmly and as professionally as you can, even if your first instinct is to grab the furry little bastard and shake him down for everything he's got. He looks miserable enough already anyway - and you doubt that would help anyone, much less your sempai trapped down there in the dark.

"Ishikawa should have briefed you about the situation on your way up here," Kyuubey replies after pulling off the headphones hooked around his neck with a shaky paw - a tremor that you couldn't help but catch, even with your own sleep-deprived sluggishness. "And what little she told you is the pitiful sum of all we know about the situation." He nods towards his array of blank monitors - or, at least they looked blank, until you see the small white lettering blinking at the bottom of each screen: CAMERA 1, CAMERA 2, all the way up to CAMERA 8.

"Earlier this morning - approximately 3 AM - something triggered all the alarms inside Silent Room Regalia. Each alarm, as you're fully aware, is set to go off when a dangerous surge in Witch energy is detected. And approximately one second after the alarms themselves were set off, all visual feed from the cameras were reduced to this, and the audio..." The Incubator gestures towards his headphones. "Static. Just static."

He reaches down with a paw to tap at his keyboard. Each screen changing from infinite, depthless black to infinite, depthless green. Then red. Then purple.

"Night vision. Thermal vision. Echolocation. We've tried every visual filter available to us to try and penetrate whatever's obstructing the cameras, to no avail. And we've checked dozens of times - there is nothing wrong with the surveillance cameras. If there were, it's highly unlikely that all of them would break down at once, as not only are they hooked up to separate feeds and networks, but they're also regularly maintained."

Yeah, the threads usually end when Decu is too tired to continue and is about to pass out.
The only thread that I recall that this wasn't the case for was when there was a MASSIVE shitstorm over Decu miscounting votes for bringing coobs into the barrier.

>> ☐ Deculture 05/01/15(Fri)13:27:06 No.39690568

Kyuubey shakes his head here, ears swaying in the motion. "Whatever's occluding Matsuda from our sight, it's not something on our end."

Then...then what? If the alarms detected an influx of Witch Energy, then...

No. You can't say it. You can't bring yourself to. Even if the very same thing happened back then, in another Silent Room, back at Siberia.

Kyuubey seems to catch on despite this. "No. This doesn't look like a Barrier Event. If it is, then Regalia would have gone on emergency lockdown, with the occupant inside bombarded with enough antimagic to put this entire building out of power. As it is, it's only on temporary lockdown because I engaged it myself earlier, right after Ishikawa alerted me to what happened."

Alright. Okay. So it's not that, then. That's...that's less worrying. Still not the good news you were hoping for, but not the bad news you were dreading, either.

But she's there, right? Chiaki IS there? More importantly, is she still alive?

The Incubator nods. "Regalia still detects her as its sole occupant, yes. Her vital signs are stable, if a bit erratic a times. A few spikes here and there in her heart rate, but nothing alarming."

Good. That's...good. Alright. So it's just this weird...darkness thing that's got everyone spooked, then. That and the lack of audio.

Kyuubey is silent for a moment, before nodding once more - but more slowly, this time, as if the gesture itself had cost him dearly to make. "I...would be hesitant to say so, if only to avoid making light of something as serious as Matsuda's current state, but...yes, I would say that this mysterious darkness is the main issue, here. That said, I am treating this situation with the same kind of urgency and priority as I would Matsuda suddenly taking a turn for the worse. As such, she is confined indefinitely inside Silent Room Regalia, under heavy guard - or at least, until we figure out just what's going on, and then resolve it."

You shake your head here, your eyes narrowing at Kyuubey. How the hell is that different from how Chiaki is now, huh? Isn't she already being subjected to those 'precautionary measures'? You saw the multicolored squad of Eversors stationed outside the Silent Room. You saw just how absurdly thick the doors were - almost six feet of solid steel - trapping your sempai inside that cold and lonely room, all by herself. She's already a prisoner, how much more of one can Kyuubey make her?

"Hanegawa." Kyuubey sighs in weary, tired tones - and you couldn't help but almost feel guilty at your tirade.

Almost.

"It seems that Matsuda's rubbing off on you as well. At least, the part of her that absolutely despises authority, no matter what." The Incubator lets out a strange sound - and it takes you a moment to realize that he actually chuckled. "But I understand where you're coming from. It must seem excessive that I'm confining my Warmaster to the most well-equipped Silent Room this Officio has, for what seems like a minor mutation. Not only that, I've stationed an entire squad of Eversors to stand guard. But rest assured, Hanegawa - I do not do things lightly. I rarely do things without purpose or reason. And in this, in what I did...there is one. A very good one."

...And what is it? What's the reason?

Kyuubey looks at you for a long, silent moment, before shaking his head. "I can't say. Not right now, at least. But I will, in time."

Hnh. Well, that's fine. You already have an inkling of why, anyway. But you're not going to share if he isn't.

How do you respond?

After so many posts are made in a thread, it stops automatically bumping back to the first page and will eventually fall off of page 10. In a lot of threads this might be a problem if people are too active, but Decu ends threads when he goes to sleep anyway so there's very, very rarely a crunch.

From the FAQ

>Why won't my thread bump?

>All threads have a set bump limit (varies board to board). When this limit is reached, a thread will no longer "bump" to the top of the board, causing the thread to descend through the pages until it is marked for deletion and pruned. This method of post-limiting, while sometimes inconvenient, assures that content is kept fresh on the boards.

Bump limit for /tg/ is 300 posts, for the record, and we're at around 190. MGNQ is usually fairly active until it falls off the board, though, and Decu is usually long done posting by then.

Fine. That's...that's fine. Everything he said and he's not willing to say -- that's fine. He's an Incubator, and you're just a rank-and-file Callidus when all's said and done, Warmaster's aide notwithstanding. There may be stuff that's plainly out of your pay grade to know or ask about. Hell, Kyuubey probably's breaching protocol right here and now, by letting you in here and telling you all these things. And you appreciate that. If he has a way to fix the situation, you can probably be sure that he'll do whatever it takes for it to be carried out, without you getting on his ass about it.

Just...you wish he wasn't as evasive as he usually is.

But yeah. That's fine.

You just want to know how you can help, that's all.

You want to know how you can help your sempai.

Kyuubey glances at the darkness staring out at the both of you from the eight screens of his monitor array, before turning back to you, a sigh of what sounds like relief leaving his lips. "Now there's a trait I wouldn't mind Matsuda getting from you, Hanegawa." He shakes his head. "As of the moment, I have individuals seeking persons of interest that would be able to provide assistance or information about Matsuda's situation. Trusted allies in other Officios, those who owe me debts to guarantee their loyalty and discretion of this matter. I also have the Betrayer preparing to make her way her in order to share her input, although it must be said that I'd already asked her to come here even before this...event."

He pauses for a moment, looking at the completely-darkened screens in front of him once more. "Hanegawa, if you truly wish to help, then I want you to make sure that everyone feels that nothing is awry. Yes, Matsuda may be a complicated situation right now, but that doesn't mean we lose ourselves to panic or uncertainty. Nor should we allow those in our charge to feel as if everything is now balancing on a razor's edge, right at the precipice."

>> ☐ Deculture 05/01/15(Fri)15:14:42 No.39692183

The Incubator lets out a sigh, before turning back to you. "Go about your duties, Hanegawa. Perform them with the same eagerness and gusto that Karasawa Enishi reported that you were gushing with when you first took up the role of Instructor for my Callidus rank. Do not let anyone have time or reason to suspect that something's wrong."

Wait. Is that...did you hear him right? In other words, he just wants you to act normal? Pretend that everything's okay until whoever Kyuubey's having interrogated coughs up the answers needed to fix Chiaki, if there are any at all?

Is that it?

"More or less, yes." Kyuubey nods. "Things may seem dire, but we shouldn't let this affect our day to day, Hanegawa. If only for keeping up appearances, we must ensure that no one has any right to look at us with suspicion. So go about your duties without allowing yourself to appear as concerned and distracted as you no doubt obviously are." It's here that he smirks - or at least, he looks like he's smirking, even if you're sure he doesn't really do facial expressions all that much. "I am not completely blind to what happens in my Officio after all - most certainly not with my Warmaster and her aide."

How do you react?

[]Alright. Can I at least visit her from time to time?

You nod at Kyuubey's suggestion. You don't...you don't really like it, but what he says makes sense. You can't put into words just how much you want to haul off and punch the little bastard off his desk, but you also can't help but hear the logic in his words. If someone like Kyuubey's spooked, then what about the rest of the Officio when they find out? Not to mention the inherent...cut-throat nature of the other Officios.

Sure, you've heard about how each Incubator are brothers or something, and they are siblings of a sort - but that kind of familial unity isn't usually emulated by the Officios they lead. That's why Magical Girl casualties in an operation happen. That's how bloodthirsty murderers like Kharn get their reputation. If anybody else found out about what happened to Chiaki, well...you don't even want to think about it, really.

So, yeah. You don't like it, but you'll go along with Kyuubey for now. Just smile and wave and pretend nothing's wrong.

For Chiaki. Just for her.

...Can you at least visit her, though? From time to time, at least. You ask this just as Kyuubey turns back to his array of monitors, his perfectly-round crimson eyes gazing up at the screens as he cycles through the visual filters again, before pressing one of the headphones' speakers against his ear. Nothing but darkness. Nothing but static.

"You are free to visit her, of course." The Incubator nods. "I've already notified Heartcatch Squad of the possibility of you visiting Matsuda personally. However, I do have to remind you that she is not allowed to leave the Silent Room, nor is anyone else allowed to enter unless authorized. And any unauthorized behavior is going to be punished severely, to the maximum extent possible of the laws set by this Officio. Is that understood, Hanegawa?"

Isn't...isn't that a bit excessive--

"Is that understood, Hanegawa?" Kyuubey asks again, now looking at you this time.

...Yeah. Yeah, okay. You understand.

"Very well." Kyuubey nods and goes back to his monitors. "Please give Matsuda my regards when you see her."

You don't even bother with the salute. You turn on your heel and walk away, making a beeline direct for the exit.. Acknowledging Kumatora's whispered farewell with a nod and a smile of your own - a smile you didn't even feel. You just wanted to get out of there before you said anything that you'd regret afterwards.

Besides, Kyuubey was trying to fix things, as irritating as he was. It's just...it feels like he has an agenda of his own. Like he's not trying hard enough. That no matter what happens to Chiaki, he's still going to benefit from it somehow.

Little mutant bastard cat. No wonder your sempai hates him so much.

What do you do now?

[]Visit Chiaki now. You can play pretend all you want later. You just want to check up on her first.
[]Do your daily tasks for a bit first, then see about checking up on Chiaki later. If you're going to play the part, you might as well do it properly.
[]Check up on Kyoko. She should be alright now, right? Maybe you can ask her for advice on what to do.

---APARTMENT 666, NINTH OFFICIO HOUSING FACILITY – SEVERAL HOURS AFTER THE WARMASTER’S IMPRISONMENT---

The distant scent of lime and papaya hung in the air like a gentle fog. I could feel her hands – small and slender, soft and gentle – grazing across my skin, over the half-assed bandage job I’d done, over fresh scars and a few old ones, neatly-manicured fingernails tracing across each with a hypnotic sort of expertise. The gauze was matted against my skin, and it stuck uncomfortably as she unwound it – my whole right arm and a chunk of the left, a makeshift packing job around my midsection, and down a leg.

Jade Nakajima had the patience and grace of someone who’d done this thousands of times already – sometimes for me, sometimes for Amber. Usually for Nico, back when they worked together. Guess she was a Venenum for the Seventh, though you’d never guess she was a magical girl at all looking at her.

…Felt good to get the burns aired out, even if it stung. I could change the shape of the arm, imagine it was something else, but when it snapped back to normal, it still hurt like hell. Didn’t get better when she was cleaning it, but for the sake of not making shit weird, I did my best to sleep through most of it.

You can sleep through a lot of shit if you practice enough.

…Well, if I slept through it too hard, I wouldn’t be talking about it. Probably wouldn’t tell her, but it felt nice being pampered a little without…y’know. Without any implications. If she saw the little smile on my face, she didn’t say anything.

…Shit! Yeah, she saw it. And rather than say something, all she did was tighten the new bandages on my fucking arm harder. My eyes snapped open and I stared up at her, and she gave me the tiniest, shittiest little smirk. ...If nothing else, it was a lot cuter than anything Nakajima…the other Nakajima…usually managed.

The bandages – the ones Jade used – were unique. It was something she'd learned to put together when she was with Nicole, a sort of…extension of her magic, I guess. Gauze carefully bathed in a poultice of clean water and blood. Hers, not just any dumbfuck's. That was her thing. Bodily fluids. Some shit about energy transfer, usual healing crap. Not really my field.

…She could kiss a cut and make it better if she set her mind to it. Never did. Didn't like people enough for that, she'd rather bleed than get that close to them. Didn't really blame her.

"That's the worst of it," she murmured in her usual airy, disinterested tone. "Do you feel any better?"

"I can't feel my hand."

"That means it's working." Moments like this reminded me that Jade was nobody's damn nurse. …Probably learned it from Nicole, that she couldn't afford to take shit from her patients.

I pushed myself to my feet, wobbling a little. Took a second of clenching and unclenching my fist to loosen the bandages up and get my blood flowing again. A second later, Jade thrust an ice-cold juice box into my hand. …I was hoping it would be like, apple juice or something, but judging by the smell and the fat little bat on the front…

"Finish the whole thing." Her eyes met mine for a second. …Couldn't tell what she was thinking, but it might have been worry. …Or maybe I'm just that lonely.

…I need a girlfriend, Christ.

"Wendy. Finish the-"

"-whole thing, yeah." She smiled and patted me on the head, and…can't say I hated that.

"You'll be fine in a few days as long as you don't push yourself too hard. Which I'm certain you won't." She turned to head back out to the living room, and I tried to get a good look at her ass through her-

Alright, get a fucking grip, Cooldown. This is pathetic.

...It took a little courage to test out the juice box. Didn't exactly love it – this wasn't my first fresh blood rodeo, though, and it was a little refreshing. Coppery and syrupy, and it tingled on my tongue from what I assumed was all the magic or…I don't know, maybe that's how maids tasted. Or she mixed painkillers in. Like, really good painkillers.

…That'd be nice. Just blank out for the day, catch up on sleep. Nobody could walk out of Wonderland without needing to pass out for a few days. Not even me. Maybe especially not me.

Dunno how long I was out before Jade was shaking me awake again. Thought she was room service for a minute, she might have slapped me. …When I came to, she told me someone was asking for me at the door. It was about the last person I expected.

“Can…can I come in?” Green – what’s-her-DDs, Midori whatever – was standing at the door, shuffling her feet, squeezed into bike shorts that were a little too small for her and a hoodie that she probably thought made her look flatter. It didn’t.

I’d like to say I slammed the door in her fucking face. I almost did. I wanted to. …I don’t know. I was just…tired. Maybe I wanted someone to talk to that might talk back a little. Jade was cool and having a maid around was kinda hot, but she wasn’t exactly chatty.

…Maybe I just figured talking with Green would let me figure out Kong’s deal faster than trying to talk to Kong would.

I let her in without a word, motioned her back to my room – I knew better to try and kick Jade out when her weird samurai tokusatsu show was on. She didn’t seem all that thrilled about it, but she warmed up a little when I offered her some brownies.

(Good ones were on the bottom shelf of the fridge. She didn’t get those. Those were for me. And Jade. And a weekend where we didn’t need to do anything.)

It took her a long time and about three brownies to get to the fucking point, but I dunno, I didn’t mind that much. She had kind of a cute look to her, not that I was checking her out exactly – nibbled on her lip a little when she was thinking about what to say, kept fussing with her hair. Seemed like she didn’t get out much more than Annie did – had to be foreign, or maybe half or something. Her skin was lighter than mine, and her eyes…

Actually, she kinda reminded me of Ol’ Batshit, but instead of scary she was just, you know…awkward.

“…I want to know what happened on Sempai’s mission.” Rookie spat it out eventually, quiet and even. My fingernails dug into my palms as I resisted the urge to snap at her about how I didn’t fuck her stupid girlfriend.

“I didn’t fuck your stupid girlfriend, Green.” ...Never been good at resisting urges. She gave me a sharp look – surprisingly sharp, on a face like hers – and bit back her retort.

“You’ve got some fucking chip on your shoulder, but I’ve been trying to back off. Alright? She still grabs my ass and shit, it’s hard. It’s like she can’t recognize me without feeling me up.” …That wasn’t fair, and it’d probably get her in trouble later. I didn’t really care. I was about to continue when Green cut me off.

“I trust Sempai…I don’t think she’d do that to me.” Her voice was even and stern, but those big, red eyes bored into me like a fucking laser. “I just want to know what happened to her. How she ended up…like that.”

“With big fucking skeleton wings powered by the screaming souls of the damned.”

“What!?” She looked mortified, and I couldn’t help but smirk. Yeah, she was that kind of person…too pure for all this bullshit. Or maybe just too…green.

Heh heh.

“Your girlfriend’s retarded. Like, serious brain problems. So we’re fighting through asstons of fucking demons – like real honest to shit demons, not…you know. Not like the kind you see on TV, or the kind you dream up in the middle of the night. Shit’s fucked in the special way Wond…the Akashic Realm fucks shit.”

…Already looked like I lost her.

“…It’s basically like…Double Hell. It’s where common sense and all the good in the world go to die.” Dug a cigarette out and lit it. She seemed kinda…into that, almost more than what I was saying, just stared at me while I lit the damn cigarette. Maybe she was a pyro. …Or just afraid of fire. She edged away a second later.

“Don’t try to imagine it, just like…There’s a lot of the fuckers. We left Sakura behind to deal with Red Bitch-“

+After you got punked.+ An unwelcome piece of imaginary shit chimed in while I was trying to explain.

“Shut the fuck up, Nico.” Green screwed up her face and I winced as I realized I said it out loud.

“I didn’t…say anything…? And that’s not-“

“You wanna hear this or not?” I took a long drag on my cigarette and hunted for my place again.

“Arright, so we sent Mickey back after her. It was just me, Miss Tomoe, and…Matsuda. We pick up on What’s-Her-Stick and we confront her, and the first two things Matsuda tries to do are fucking…chat with her and hand her soul gem over.”

“…You’re lying.” She scowled at me, and I growled back.

“Fuck off. Why would I lie about how fucking stupid your girlfriend is? Does she not do completely pants-on-head retarded shit around you? Because she has brain problems with a capital fucking handicap space.”

…That one went over her head, but she settled into a low frown.

“So she hands her soul gem over and…like…explodes into being Satan.”

She frowned harder.

“...You know. The Shieldmaiden. Harbinger of the apocalypse. Celestial rapist. The…Nemesis of the Golden Land or…something like that. Christ, I know you guys have church pamphlets in the lobby, did you seriously never read one? This is basic shit.” I didn’t read the pamphlets either. I was pretty sure Annie made half of her sermons up on the spot anyway.

…Yeah, I wasn’t winning her over with this.

“Look, anyway, she went all batshit, suplexed what’s-her-face into the ground and it was fucking awesome, we got the bitch stick, something something power of shitty J-pop, and we left. And then that Culexus died, and your Incubator started shitting and crying everywhere and shoved Matsuda into lockup.”

A minute passed before she offered anything at all.

“You’re…not good at reports, huh…”

“You want a report, ask Mickey. The fuck are you even here? I hate you. You come here just to eat my brownies or something?” …Didn’t hate her that much. She smelled pretty nice. Kiwi shampoo I think, something kinda familiar, but I couldn’t really place it.

This time it seemed like she actually got the joke – her expression softened a little.

“Well…Everyone else is injured, busy, or Sempai. You don’t seem to really do anything, so I figured you’d be free.” She reached for another brownie. I put my cigarette out on it an inch from her fingers before I took it for myself. Yeah, fuck you, Green.

“I do the paperwork Miss Tomoe doesn’t have time for and Matsuda doesn’t fucking bother with. …Least, that’s what it’s turning into.” She took a different brownie instead, but I felt like I won a moral victory.

“You..? Paperwork? …Wait, you’re really Tomoe-san’s assistant?” Her eyes widened as she popped a hunk of brownie into her mouth. I swallowed mine.

“Fuck did you think?”

“…Well, I thought you two were effing.”

…Effing.

“Effing?”

“…Fucking.” Green corrected herself with an irritated little scowl. …Surprisingly cute. “I thought you two were kind of a thing. Like, pet play…or something. After the meeting-“

“She was worried I’d get carried away and hurt someone. Someone that pissed me off. Like you.”

She fidgeted a little, staring down at her lap.

“…I’m not sorry.”

“…Hey. Lemme ask you something. …She even give a shit? Was she even mad?” I wasn’t gonna like the answer, but somehow we’d gotten over to this.

“…We talked about it.” Green was a shitty liar. “Later,” she added. “A lot happened that day, so…”

“Yeah. Sure. I bet she spanked you and then it was all okay, right?”

“…S…something like that.” Her cheeks flushed a little, and I felt my knife squeeze into my hand. I could kill her. I could kill her right here, ditch the body. Wouldn’t be hard to pin it on some mindfucked remnants of staffbitch’s followers.

…I didn’t.

…Bros before hos. Matsuda and I were…it was complicated, yeah. But I wasn’t some stupid crazy slut in some cartoon that’d just knife someone for being inconvenient. We were getting along okay, and that was…enough…for now.

I followed her gaze, figured she must have seen my knife. I wasn’t really hiding it. Glanced down at her hands and caught a glimpse of steel between her fingers, too– butterfly knife, maybe, or a switchblade. Probably a switchblade, carefully covered with one hand while she fidgeted …Wasn’t as shitty a liar as I thought, if she could keep that expression up while she pulled that out of her hoodie.

…Nice thighs, too.

“…You need anything else?” I pushed myself to my feet and shoved the rest of my brownie into my mouth, letting my knife dissolve back into the sea of my subconscious or whatever. She made a little noise, a negative, and did the same. …Her mouth was full, she stole the last fucking one when I turned away.

I saw her to the door, and she finally offered me an awkward smile.

“Um, thanks…I know this was weird. I guess…I mean, you’re not as bad as I thought.”

“Yes I am. Get fucked.” I offered her a half-assed little wave before closing the door on her.

…Should have just stabbed her. When’d I get so soft…?

Since a lot of them focus on covert or espionage work, focusing their energy toward something easy to conceal even in disguise or out of costume is probably a priority for a lot of them. It's not actually universal by any means, though.

That said, in the main part of MGNQ we mostly see Midori (who is legitimately a little bit of a knife nut) and Wendy (who most certainly is one and has a bit of a special attachment to her kitchen knife), so it's easy to get that impression.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 05/03/15(Sun)10:56:51 No.39726758 Archived

You decide to visit Chiaki now. You can dance all you want to Kyuubey's tune later - besides, you know you'll just be useless being anything other than worried sick if you don't.

Best to just get it out of the way now.

If things aren't as bad as you dreaded they were, then you won't have to feel like you're inches from locking yourself in a bathroom stall and having the mother of all nervous breakdowns all day. On the other hand, if things ARE worse than what Kyuubey let on, then at least you'll be able to use all day racking your brains about what you can do to help - instead of locking yourself in a bathroom stall and having the mother of all nervous breakdowns all day.

...Get it together, Miracle Midori. Get it THE FUCK together.

You didn't get brought back to life by a pink-haired absentee goddess and her butch biker outfit-wearing timeline clone to get panic attacks whenever something bad happens to your girlfriend.

No more panic attacks. Not now, not ever. Not even when said girlfriend is turned into Satan and starts going crazy while being in Satan mode.

Because no one will be there for Chiaki.

No one who really knows what kind of hell she's going through.

You make a beeline direct for Silent Room Regalia, blithely ignoring your smartphone alerting you that it's fifteen minutes until your first class as a Callidus Instructor. Usually, at this point, you'd already be there in the classroom, fidgeting nervously in front of rows upon rows of empty seats, waiting for your 'students' to get in and get settled - but not now. Not right now, when there are much more important things than teaching a room full of bored teenagers the difference between an illusion and a mirage, and how to flick open a butterfly knife the fastest and safest without looking like an absolute prat and stabbing yourself in the hand.

Just as you round the corner, though, you hear a voice. A familiar voice that you've forgotten about in your panic and worry at your sempai's latest predicament. A voice, perenially rendered with the irritated edge of interrupted sleep, arguing with a calmer, smoother, but somewhat more nervous one.

"You think I'm scared of you and your faggot patrol? I don't give a steamy bareback FUCK about what your Incubator says. I was there. I need to see her."

"Miss Cooldown, please. Our orders were clear. No one is to enter Silent Room Regalia at this time."

"What's up with you? You like staying up late at night, motherfucker? You and your color-coordinated cumdumpsters?"

"I work better in the dark, Miss Cooldown. That doesn't have anything to do with our orders. Please--"

"The fuck kinda name is Ecstasy Darks, anyway? My last name is Cooldown and I think your name is dumb."

"It's a--"

"I know a bitch named Bloodysunday. I know a bitch named Pearlharbor. And I STILL think your name is dumb."

"..."

"I won't ask again, you rainbow colored cocksuckers. Let. Me. Through."

Therefore, the logical inverse is that, If the soul gem is in 100% contact with the body, there should be no effective difference in pain threshold between a meguca and a human.

You decide to try and step in, yourself. As tempting as it is to watch Wendy make a fool of herself - Ecstasy Darks proving to be the consummate poker-faced professional, even when dealing with an increasingly-irate American - you also know that isn't helping anyone in the long run. If anything, letting Wendy go on could create enough trouble that anything you might be planning could be thrown in jeopardy.

And...well...you'd be lying if you couldn't hear the urgency in Wendy's words. The same kind of panic and dread that had woken you up in a cold sweat, with the memory of your nightmare still fresh in your mind. The wounds it left still bleeding and raw.

You know how she felt, and you can't exactly blame her for trying.

And so, taking a deep breath - and briefly checking your reflection on your smartphone's screen - you step forward, loudly clearing your throat. Making Wendy pause in mid-tirade - and the beleaguered, color-coordinated Heartcatch Squad to first bristle in alarm at the sound, then visibly relax as they turn to look at you. Ecstasy Darks, most of all - even with her carefully-impassive smile and relaxed body language, you couldn't miss how her shoulders lost the tiniest bit of tension in them when you finally made your approach.

"Aide to the Warmaster present. Salute." The Eversor with the bobcut coldly remarks, and all five color-coordinated Eversors salute you in unison. The simultaneous act done with such ferocious, aggressive enthusiasm that you almost flinch - something that would've definitely ruined the confident smile you flashed Wendy with as you made your way to them.

"Getting them riled up won't work," You tell her, barely managing to keep the smug from your voice, even more when Wendy narrows her eyes at you. "Our Eversors aren't as hot-tempered as the ones you have back home, Miss Cooldown. They don't bait easily, especially the Ninth's. You'll always have a hard time goading them into going against their orders." You return the salute as nonchalantly as you could, pulling it off like you didn't spend days in front of a mirror getting it just right. "Is that right, Miss Darks?"

The dark-haired Eversor nods. "Of course, ma'am. Our orders are absolute, and until we're told otherwise by our superior ranking officer, we follow them to the letter."

"Can you explain to Miss Cooldown why is that?" You smile as Wendy's frown turns into a full-out scowl, a spitting image of how your sempai would look if someone were to replace her pancakes with waffles.

At this, Ecstasy Darks smiles. "Because Rank Leader - and now Acting Warmaster - Sayaka would be very disappointed in us, ma'am."

"Bullshit." Wendy spits. "You nerds scared of Megabitch Mickey?" The curious nickname makes Squad Heartcatch bristle again, most especially the blue-haired one at the back. Kurumi Erika or something...? "I knew you guys were faggots for wearing matching color costumes, but I didn't know you guys were just a bunch of dickless dipshits, too. And you call yourselves Eversors--"

"Miss Cooldown." Ectasy's voice is cold, sharp, sharper than it had ever been since she started trying to politely dissuade Wendy from doing anything rash. "You are an honored guest and sub-contractor for this Officio. We are aware of your connections to the Warmaster. And you may say anything about us, we don't particularly care. But say another word besmirching our Rank Leader's - and now Acting Warmaster's - peerless reputation and we will be forced to take action."

"W-wait! WAIT." You shove yourself between Wendy and Squad Heartcatch, just as the American prepares to launch her own venom-laden, verbal assault in reply. "Everyone, please! It's way too early in the morning for something like this, isn't it? Let's all relax." You smile at Darks. "Anyway, I'm here to visit sem--I mean, Chiaki-san. Kyuubey should have notified you that I could--"

"Oh, yes, of course." Ecstasy glances at her squad mates, and all of them step aside to let you through. "The Incubator notified us of your authorization as early as this morning, ma'am."

"...You're authorized?" Wendy murmurs in withering tones, before shaking her head. "...Figures."

You can't help but feel bad there. Maybe...there's some way you can bring her in, too? She did tell you what happened in the Akashic Realm with Chiaki, when all the details about that mission had generally been swept up underneath the rug. She deserves to see how your sempai is now, maybe she could help find a cure--

There's a sharp clang as a rather hefty plank of steel is dropped onto the metal grating floor. THAT made you jump, and also forced a couple of snickers from Cooldown as she watched you try to get your breath back. You glance at the plank of steel - noting how it seems to have been part of Regalia's security doors, its absence giving you a small slit on the doors to peek through. Barely enough to put a hand through.

...What? What is that? What's with the peephole--

"For visiting purposes, of course." It's the blonde one, goes by the name of Myoudouin Itsuki, who answers. "It's the only way that any authorized personnel are allowed to visit the occupants of Silent Room Regalia."

But...but you thought... Your eyes grow wide here, and you look around you for support. You thought he meant--

>>39728693

"It's not like that, I'm afraid, ma'am." Ecstasy shakes her head, after nodding at Itsuki. "The Incubator has deemed it too dangerous for the occupant to accept guests the usual way. If you have any messages or objects to pass on to the occupant, then we'll do our best to see to it that it's delivered."

You narrow your eyes at them. But you're an Aide to the Warmaster! Surely that counts for something...!

"Orders, ma'am." Ecstasy replies, her voice once more polite, almost irritatingly so. "The whole absolute thing, if you remember."

Butt...!

"Take it or leave it, ma'am."

Behind you, you can hear Wendy muffle a snort with her scarf.

Short, cute, good way to pass time.
Buuuuuuut, like everything else on 4chan, somebody screwed it up. And then people would shout at Private Fuckup for fucking up.

So eventually, at some point, it became part of the process for somebody to fuck up, and for somebody else to go "YOU HAD ONE JOB TO DO" or "ONE JOB, GODDAMNIT" and finally just "ONE JOB."

And now here we are, at the point where anyone actually trying to start it doesn't even bother and we only sometimes even get to One Job and why am I explaining this, I've been here for over three years now. Fuck. I need a drink.

They can't be serious. Kyuubey can't be serious. This? This is how they're treating Chiaki now? This is how he repays the one Magical Girl putting her body, her soul and her sanity on the line every time she has to deal with a Golden Weapon-wielding maniac threatening to fuck everyone over? To be spoken to through the meter-thick doors leading to her prison cell via some temporary glory hole?

Ecstasy Darks frowns at this. "Miss Hanegawa, I realize this is a difficult time, and I'd love more than anything to let you see the...the occupant in more ideal conditions, but..." He's even got them calling her 'the occupant' now, rather than by her name. Or by her rank. "...This is what the Incubator allows. This and no more. And I agree, it's no way to talk to someone. We treat our captured with a bit more dignity."

Then...? Why can't they just let you and Wendy through? It's not like we're going to be turned under Chiaki's thrall, or something--

"Funny you should say that," Darks smiles, before gesturing to the slit. "If you please, Miss Hanegawa."

Grudgingly, you step up to the makeshift viewing portal. Your eyes squinting at the darkness it showed. No, it wasn't just darkness, or the absence of light - it was as if it was absorbing the very light from around it. Devouring it.

"Chiaki?" You call out to your girlfriend somewhere in that darkness. "Chiaki, I'm here!"

Nothing. Still nothing.

And then--

You almost shriek as an eye suddenly manifests from the darkness itself, staring - no, glaring out the hole and into your own eyes. It takes you a moment - and forcing yourself not to jump back in the sheer, knee-weakening surprise of such a sight - that you recognize the eye and who it belongs to.

"Sem...sempai?" You whisper, horrified, relieved, saddened, angry and fearful all at once. "Sempai, I'm here, we're all worried--"

+ I REMEMBER. + Her words stab into your mind, jagged, rough, desperate. + I REMEMBER NOW. REMEMBER WHY I KEPT FORGETTING. WON'T FORGET ANY MORE. WON'T FORGET MIDORI. WON'T FORGET ANYONE.+

"...to me? Green? HEY! GREEN!"

Something takes hold of your hoodie and tears you physically away from the door slit - and you find yourself sprawled on the floor, right on your ass, with your face wet with your own tears. You look up, blinking in the suddenly-painful light, as the faces of Heartcatch Squad - plus Wendy's own - looks down on you. Some in concern, others in alarm, and one with a knowing, if anxious, look.

"Ma'am, are you alright?" Ecstasy Darks reaches down with a hand, and you take it with one of your own, while the blue-haired Eversor of Heartcatch Squad takes your other. Belatedly, Wendy moves to steady you by your shoulders, her rough, calloused hands somehow a comfort to feel. They feel sort of like your sempai's - just a bit softer, a bit more gentle.

"I'm...I'm fine," You manage to gasp out, forcing a smile. "Really, thank you. I'll be okay."

"What the fuck was that about, Green?" Wendy growls as you glance back towards Regalia's doors, your insides giving a sickening wrench, your heart pounding against your chest in adrenalin-fueled arrythmia. "You just suddenly started talking gibberish all of a sudden, after staring in there for ten fucking minutes--"

You blink at her. Wait. Ten? But it's only been--

"Yes, ten." Wendy cuts you off. "We tried to ask you after five minutes if you see anything, but you just told us to shut the fuck up and let you concentrate." She gestures towards the door's viewing slit, where nothing but darkness could be seen within. "Ten fucking minutes, Green, and then you started talking this spooky monkey talk." She stares hard into your eyes, and somehow you get the feeling that she's trying to tell you to keep quiet.

"What the fuck did you see, Green?"

How do you respond?

Each 'bad' choice we've made has had some pretty terrible alternatives, honestly.

If we hadn't handed over our Soul Gem, we wouldn't have been half as competent during the Ahriman fight, and our squad would've been in much more danger. We might've had another major casualty ala Kyoko, or even a death in the squad.

Choosing to forget would've forced us to start from square one on a lot of things, which wasn't helpful back in Siberia and probably wouldn't have been helpful here, either.

This is rough, but it's also really the only way forward.

If I understood correctly, what happened was that by refusing Malals memory erasure, Chiaki actually regained ALL her memories? Is that right?

I seem to remember the spirits inside the DEagle once said that they once told everything to one Homura incarnation. Who then promptly shot herself.

Is thats what happened to Chiaki now? A millennia worth of memories fighting WN and beyond hitting her all at once?

Wonder if the Homura spirits inside the DEagle could do anything to help?

That said, the first procedure had some side effects that nobody anticipated, namely the amnesia that broke little Misaka's heart. :(

Found it. Thread 192.

>After a few moments, you ask Sayaka to stop.

>"Recognize anyone, then? We've still got halfway to go"

>You shake your head. No. It's...that's the reason. You don't recognize anyone.

>You feel you should, somehow. You feel you should remember at least one of them. But...no one. You don't recognize anyone. Not even the slightest.

>Sayaka's silent for a moment here, before she slashes her fingertips across the queue of portraits. In quick succession, she picks out five among the rest - and you remember these as some of the first ones that you saw when the screen started to scroll.

>"Suzumiya Kaoru. Eversor. KIA." A smiling, brown-haired Magical Girl with ribbons in her hair fills the screen. "She saved you from a Charlie-Class Witch when you got sent in along with her during your reorientation. Died from her injuries - the Venenum couldn't get to her fast enough."

>Another portrait, this time of a cold-eyed platinum blonde girl with sharp purple eyes and a perennial frown. "Busujima Tokiko. Vindicare. KIA. The both of you were sent for a fire mission, to support another team when some Magical Girls from the Third and Tenth went rogue. The both of you got ambushed. One of them was a Culexus - and she burned Busujima's Soul Gem out while you hid in the next room, unconscious."

>She does this to the three other girls. Kuuonji Nanaya. Shiraishi Suwako. Minami Kuroe. All of them worked with you, fought with you, and died trying to protect you.

>And you don't remember them at all.

>"One of the reasons I...really didn't like you all that well, Murderface." Sayaka murmurs as she finally lets go of the screen, the portraits flying back and rearranging themselves in order. "You always forgot. And you didn't seem to care. You never did."

>...

>"It's not your fault." She adds after a moment. "I don't think it is, anyway."

>Funny, you murmur, wiping at your eyes with the back of your hand.

>That makes her the only one.

You swallow hard, before shaking your head. You didn't...you didn't really see anything, you tell them. Nodding at Wendy, and then looking out towards Heartcatch Squad. Just darkness, really. You thought you saw something move inside it, but...

"Well, fine, you didn't see anything. But what about the gibberish you were suddenly saying?" Kurumi Erika snaps, her brow furrowing. "Granted, we didn't understand a word of it, it legitimately sounds like a baby just stringing random syllables together and then screaming every now and then--"

"Sleepwalking." Wendy cuts in, still staring at you. "She was sleepwalking. Falling asleep on both feet and then dreaming something scary. Right, Green?"

This earns chuckles and scoffing from Heartcatch Squad, with their leader smiling thinly. "Come now, Miss Cooldown, do you honestly expect us to believe that--"

Quick as a snake and twice as deadly, Wendy rounds on Ecstasy Darks, not only springing right up on her face but pinning her to the nearby wall, the cleaver in her grasp. "I expect you to fucking listen when a fucking qualified expert on this topic is speaking, you hipster-named emo shitbucket." The American frowns, studiously ignoring four other gleaming, gemstone-infested weapons aimed at her back. "Somnambulism. Sleeping disorder. One of its triggers being extreme, high-stress situations. Not to mention that I think she's pretty sleep-deprived at the moment, if her eyebags are anything to go by."

"But--"

"Let me fucking finish, Darks." The American snarls, pressing the blade of her knife just a bit harder against the Eversor's neck. To her eternal credit, Darks doesn't even blink here, her impassive mask unbroken even in knifepoint - although you do see a drop of sweat make its slow, leisurely way down her cheek.

Kyouko is going to be sent after Chiaki, and how else could she take it but as a betrayal? That's not including if Sayaka will come after Chiaki as well, and this time she'll agree with the First Knight to put Akemi Homura/Chiaki Matsuda to death.

Misaka will want to come with Chiaki, making her into a target, with limited access to resources her ability to repair Tiny Pete will be compromised, not to mention the Fourth is going to try to get their prototype back.

It's not something she'd readily admit to being into and it's not something she necessarily requires to enjoy herself. It's comforting for her as someone who tends to be tired and insecure and kind of indecisive to just relax for a bit with someone calling the shots unambiguously, without her life or anyone else's immediately on the line. More than anything she enjoys the security and stability.

The sex parts are pretty cool too. ~~And the whole thing, at least with Mami, might hit her right in a kind of weird mommy complex.~~

Ah, I see. I think that reasoning isn't completely misguided, but makes a lot of assumptions - if she's busted out in a shower of blood and murder, yes, people are going to feel betrayed. If she's busted out with any degree of care, then Chiaki's friends are liable to actually listen, since all she's really done is trigger an Incubator.

Naturally, they'd still have to make a big show of the hunt anyway to scramble and avoid a purge, but I suspect only Sayaka would be a big dick about it, and we can placate her with J-pop. Flawless plan. This is all conjecture, though.

We both had the same idea in mind - Wendy trying to get into Regalia - and I threw out a bunch of lines of just pure, senseless shit-talking, with the reasoning that she's trying to bait them into taking a swing so she's justified in caving in some rookie heads. Decu came up with color-coordinated cumdumpsters, though, and I think that easily took the cake. He did the whole somnambulance tirade, too.

Chiaki breaking out confirms every worst case scenario made by three people we don't know we can trust and a huuuuge biiiiitch.
If she's broken out it'll be by two Callidus that make equally bad choices from time to time, though. It could be bloodless. It won't be consequenceless. But it could potentially be bloodless.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 05/10/15(Sun)10:13:17 No.39868789 Archived

Yeah. Yeah, it was just a bad dream, you tell the raven-haired Eversor.

You've been having them a lot. In fact, you've been having nothing but nightmares for days now.

"I see." Ecstasy Darks replies, her voice so even, so level, that you wonder if she actually realized that Wendy is a sneeze away from severing her jugular vein. Not even your sempai could react with that kind of stone-cold stoicism at having a knife held at her throat - but it's only because you know she'd have drawn a firearm and aimed it at the knife-wielder's head the moment the blade kissed her skin.

A moment of silence passes as Ecstasy stares at you from above Wendy's shoulder - and it's only when you look back that you realize one of her eyes - her right eye - is black-pinned gold, in contrast to otherwise normal left one. The eye there a startlingly-clear and startlingly-normal sky blue. And her hair isn't really black at all - it's green, as dark as green could ever get that it almost looks black in certain lighting conditions.

Not a bad look, as looks go. Certainly not as flashy as Murder Mayumi's look, but edgy enough to be striking. Maybe you could get her in somehow? A rival perhaps, or--

You inwardly grimace, and mentally slap yourself. That's...this is not the time for that. Your sempai is hurting - something's happening to her - and all you can think about is how to insert another character into your porn? Get it TOGETHER, Hanegawa. Get a grip.

"Just nightmares, then. Alright." The Eversor finally says, give you a curt nod, before turning to Wendy. "Miss Cooldown, I realize you're working underneath Miss Tomoe as a contractual subordinate, and that grants you certain privileges inside the Officio. One of them is me giving you ten seconds to stand down and put your weapon away."

>> ☐ Deculture 05/10/15(Sun)10:16:14 No.39868823

>>39868789

"Ten seconds, huh? What happens if I don't give a rat's ass about your fucking ten seconds?" The Callidus snarls.

"Then I put you into the fucking ground, Miss Cooldown." Ecstasy finishes, still with the same cold, proper tone in her voice, still with the same placid, nearly aloof expression on her face.

And immediately - as soon as Darks throws down that particular gauntlet - Wendy's scowl turns into the biggest, most shit-eating grin you've ever seen her make. It's a disturbing sight, considering that you've never seen her smile since...well, ever since you met her, really. And from what you know about her, what you can tell from interacting with her, she's not the sort to smile a whole lot. Or at all.

With her knife still at the Eversor's throat, that murderer's grin still on her face, Wendy begins to count the seconds down. Quietly, almost tenderly, like a lover whispering sweet nothings to her partner's ear.

"Ten," she whispers. "Nine. Eight. Seven--"

You stare unbelievingly at Wendy, your eyes wide. She's not as stupid as to pick ANOTHER fight, not when Ecstasy had already conceded the point--

...

No. No, of course she is. That's exactly what she would do.

And, you realize a moment later, it's exactly what your sempai would have done, too. If you were in her shoes, with her outside of the Silent Room you're being kept in - the first thing she'd do would be to pick a fight with the armed guard keeping her away from you.

Is this why, sempai? Is this what you saw in this...crude, hamburger-inhaling American...?

What do you do?

My pet theory is that Homucifer inserted herself into Madoka's system as the final arbiter of who gets "saved" and who "goes to Hell". Basically prejudging everybody before Madoka gets the chance to save them. Only those she deems "virtuous" get to be saved by the Goddess.

It's a pretty neat scam. But... It would, of course, make it nigh impossible for Madoka to fulfil her wish of saving everybody.

"That's enough," You say out loud, loud enough to interrupt Wendy's whispered count, willing your voice to remain calm and level despite your own rising annoyance. Stepping forward, you place a hand on the American's arm - noting how soft she felt beneath the warm, fluffy layer of her pink woolen sweater. "This isn't helping anyone. This isn't helping her. Back off, Wendy." You hiss this in a stage whisper - and whether she actually heard you or not, Wendy gives no sign.

You shake your head again, before turning to the green-haired Eversor and talking to her. Doing so while remembering what you learned from a certain blonde Vindicare with the smile that could always render your sempai speechless.

"Squad Leader Darks, thank you and your squad for your time, and for your steadfast service to the Officio." You give her and her squad a smile that, while not exactly a perfect clone of Mami's, is certainly damn close to the original. You should know - you practiced for ages in front of a mirror, with a stolen picture of the blonde's smile as reference. "I'll make sure to convey to Kyuubey how much I appreciate him choosing a squad of such exemplar performance to protect the Warmaster during these trying times."

Wendy turns here to blink at you - just as all five members of Heartcatch Squad collectively blush, before saluting in perfectly-practiced harmony. "Of course, Miss Hanegawa." Darks replies, her placid voice now tinged with what sounds like awe. "We live to serve the Officio. We live to serve the Warmaster."

"...Tch." There's another long moment before Wendy finally acquiesces. She makes a small noise, an irritated clicking of the tongue - before finally pulling away from Darks, the knife disappearing in her hand in a flicker of black shadow. The blade leaving an angry red line in the smooth, milk-white skin of the neck it's been pressed against all this time, a line that Darks doesn't even notice so much as acknowledge.

No, she simply rejoins her group in their formation in front of Silent Room Regalia's doors, at the very head of the pack. Like nothing out of the ordinary had actually happened.

"Unless she's actually witching out in there, of course. In which case, it's Miss Sayaka we're--" The blue-haired one of the group starts to grumble, apropos of nothing, but a brief glare from Dark's gleaming amber eye grinds her tirade to a halt. "Er...yeah, of course." She finishes lamely. "We live to serve, yadda yadda--"

"That'll do, Kurumi." Darks cuts her off again, before turning back to you. "Please don't hesitate to come by again, Miss Hanegawa. I'm sorry if this is all we can give you - just peeking through a hole in the doors is no way to talk to someone you care about, but..."

--Orders are orders. Yes, you know. And no, you don't hold it against them. You give her another golden smile before making to pull Wendy away. The American Callidus allowing herself to be pulled along, although you get the feeling that she's deliberately sandbagging you every couple of steps, making you grunt every now and then with the effort. Either that, or she's snacking on hamburgers right that moment, trying to make herself heavier just to give you a harder time.

You'd like to think that she's above that kind of behavior, but something tells you that she'd do it, too.

Anyway. You drag her to somewhere you know that you won't be botherered - that is, one of the long-unused classrooms in the floor above that of Silent Room Regalia's. A classroom that hasn't seen use in years, because the students that had needed it would not be needing it anymore, nor would they be needing anything else. Seeing as how they've already used what they learned to give their lives in the hell that is Walpurgisnacht.

A Culexus instruction room. Bare, except for the tables and chairs that you'd see in a typical high school classroom, complete with marker board and teacher's desk. Completely and utterly featureless, devoid of any warmth or life that any other classroom would have. Hell, even the instruction room where you had the basics taught to you in the Tenth had something, in the form of a picture of Jyuubey taped over a dartboard - but this...well, you'd be sad if you didn't have your sempai to worry about.

You look around again, suddenly completely aware of the deafening silence, and wonder if you've made the wrong choice in the surroundings. It almost feels like a tomb. Not a scary one, just...a place you need to steer clear of, just to let the spirits inside rest in peace. A place to respect. A place to--

"...So she's been down there for like two days and you're already dragging strange foreigners into empty classrooms to bang, or something?" Wendy suddenly says, lighting a cigarette with a snap of her lighter. "Not that I'm saying no. Just...seems a little cold. That's all."

You let out a sigh.

...Sorry, Yuma. Really. You're so, so sorry.

How do you respond?

Pinky is, at best, a dangeous ally.

She might help, she might not. Either way the cost is likely to be high.

Or she might not care at all: But we're talking about possibly giving Pinky a backdoor into Chiaki's soul.

But, if we don't, she could tear herself to pieces.

It's dangerous either way.

More specifically, a Malal pre recorded mind thing gave us a bad end nightmare as some kind warning/explanation of what would happen in the worst case scenario path, which she believed Chiaki was on currently. But Chiaki said fuck that, then shot the image in the kneecaps, and both found out that somehow the image had developed a mind of its own.

They chatted for a bit and it divulged how to disable the memory wipe fail safe. Chiaki did so, but now it seems that she's in a bad way as a side effect. Might be due to memory overload or something. We dunno.

Jumping a fictional character you control off a building to see what happens comes with no risk.
This is the inherent problem with collective interactive media. Some players approach quests with the same mindset as they would Twitch Plays Pokemon.

You ignore the crude bait Wendy all but dangled right in your face, and tell her what you saw instead. Making sure to leave nothing out, including what you got from Chiaki's desperate, hurried pulses.

To her credit, the American Callidus in front of you is a surprisingly good listener, only interrupting you when she needed you to slow down and repeat things you might have skipped or stammered over in your hurry to get everything on the table. She doesn't even stop you from briefly sobbing into your hand, once you recount just how scared - how hurt - Chiaki sounded inside that horrible room.

She did however grumble something about your sempai being a Class A retard of the highest proportions - a title she'd already bestowed upon Chiaki when you visited Wendy in her apartment a few days earlier, and an insult you nearly slapped her for if you weren't already fretting with what's going on - before handing you a handkerchief, a freshly-washed checkered one. Just like everything she owned, apparently.

By the time you've finished relaying everything to your fellow Callidus, you'd already reduced the handkerchief she loaned you into a wet, soggy scrap of checkered cloth, while four spent cigarette butts litter the floor beside Wendy's feet. She puffs on the fifth with seething contemplation as you ask her what everything means - and you're struck here by how even more sullen she looked, how much more haunted than before. As if your retelling of what you saw had quadrupled the enormous sleep debt she would never be able to pay back.

"...She's dying." The brown-haired Callidus finally says, and when she speaks, it's with a weariness that reminds you of your sempai again. Not the kind of weariness that comes with physical fatigue, but a weariness of the soul, of someone tired of the world using them as a fucking masturbation aid.

This is true, it's obviously not a 'smart' decision, however I know that Decu or any other writer puts these choices in there on the off chance that you'll actually pick it for whatever reason and depending on how oddball the choice it makes you kinda want to see where they're going with this even if you wind up picking the "safe option" and I for one, want to see where were going with this.

because before hand it looked like we were just gonna walk around following someone else's plan until Warptunnel night 2.0 or something, putting all the waifus on a pedestal and not letting them do ANYTHING, and then crossing the finish line and having Malal say "good job shithead you can follow instructions, get in Yuri Valhalla and scissor until the end of time. you didn't actually earn it but you get it by sake of being the pawn." and while smart and safe decisions may have gotten that, it just seems like a waste.

"That, or witching out. Maybe both. It's...it's always gonna be hard to tell, in a place like that. Then again, Silent Rooms kill everyone eventually, it's just a matter of when."

"Either way, priority one is getting her out of there." She takes a long drag on her cigarette, before taking it out and considering its glowing, burning tip. "Problem is obvious. We're not gonna be making any friends if we do this unless we do it very, very carefully. Darks and her crayola crew are gonna be a thing. Can probably take 'em, but I'd rather not do this loud if there's any other way."

She awkwardly fidgets with her lighter, before looking at you.

"...Probably better I didn't end up taking 'em on before, in light of this fresh new bullshit." Wendy meets your eyes, before looking away again, shaking her head. "Dammit, Kong..."

How do you respond?

[]Dying? That's...you don't even know what you're talking about, do you? Chiaki can't die, doy you know what she's been through? A Silent Room's nothing.

I would like to point out to anyone that thinks going rogue is a practical choice:
Everyone still needs Grief Seeds to not Witch Out due to magic use.
A Witch Core may even be needed.
Going rogue takes us away from any way to get Grief Seeds short of hunting Witches ourselves, and thats not going to be possible if we're actively hunted by everyone.

But of course, you don't give a shit because you want something interesting instead.

Its funny that only people who seem to NOT have read the Siberia Arc ask that.

Because the Siberia Arc etsablished:
>Midori dislikes killing
>Midori hasnt killed anyone during her time as Meguca
>Midori hasnt even told Chiaki that she never killed anyone because she is afraid that Chiaki would think she is too soft
>She went out of her way to try and save everyone in the Witch Barrier; Mirai, Kharn the Retard, Malal despite being dead, even Pinky
>There are people who actually think she would go full HOTLINE MIAMI on a bunch of Megucas who just do their job

Now get the fuck out you filthy secondaries if you cant even pay attention to what a single character is like.

That depends on if Chiaki can handle the memories of TTO leaking through right now.
Since we stopped the memory wipe, not just Chiaki's memories but all of the memories are flooding through.
If Chiaki becomes the TTO, then its game over because that body is now Homusatan's, not ours.

There aren't that many rogue magical girls, and most of the ones that survive have secret benefactors (Incubators) who use them as even more deniable assets. They're also not actively hunted with the full force of an Officio, let alone the First, because they're not important enough to expend such resources.
Chiaki, as Homusatan, is worth using everything that the Incubators have at their disposal. She is the one thing that they are willing to be unreasonable about.

Not to mention, Chiaki's Soulgem may not accrue despair in the same way as a regular magical girl, but it is still susceptible to Faust Corruption, and that pulls Chiaki towards becoming Pinky's puppet, and again taking her out of player control.

Kyuubey lied to us, he didn't tell Chiaki anything and said not to worry because he knew Malal's mindwipe was going to come into effect and he wouldn't actually have to tell us anything because it wouldn't matter. He told us enough to placate us and let the safeguards do their thing.

You shake your head. That's...no. Didn't she hear what Kyuubey told all of you - those involved with the Prophet mission - what was at stake, here? If someone sees Chiaki with those wings--

"Man." Wendy huffs loudly, cutting you off. "If only we had someone that could create some kinda illusion to hide her fucked up skeleton wings. Just someone who specializes in that kinda thing, learned and practiced it all their contracted life. Like their entire toolkit as a Magical Girl revolves around illusions, an' visual concealment, stuff like that."

You blink at her. And then blink at her again. ...Does she mean Callidus? Because, there are two of them in this room, and--

"OF COURSE YOU DENSE MOTHERFUCKER!" The American snaps at you, loud enough for it to echo around the otherwise empty room. "That's where we come in! We get her out, get her to the Church, and my people'll keep her safe. Then...then we can figure out a better way to deal with those fucking wings, without the whole ticking fucking clock of her dying on us hanging over our heads."

You stare at Wendy, feeling your gut wrench at just what you're discussing here. Rebelling from the Tenth had been easy enough for you, since the Ninth did indeed take you in, and you've made your decision ever since you saw her standing over your gurney in a bloodied maid uniform - but to actually rebel against the same Officio that took you in? Not only that, but one of the most powerful ones around, barring the First? That's...

"So what, you just want to leave her in lockup to suffer, is that it, Green?" Wendy's quick to notice your indecision here, her copper-red eyes suddenly full of the kind of vitality someone gets when they've found someone new to hate. "I've seen a lot of bitches in Silent Rooms. I've SPENT some time in Silent Rooms. You don't go tits-up crazy like that until things are really going to hell."

WShe shakes her head. "Look, I know you're scared, but is that all she's worth to you? Huh? Fucking Daddy said no, better let her rot in here?"

W-what? No! Of course not! You'd never...you'd never do something like that to Chiaki!

You glare at Wendy, and she meets you stare for stare, your indignant crimson eyes boring into her sunken, tired copper-brown own. A few moments later, and it's Wendy who breaks the deadlock, turning away and looking down at her own booted feet.

"...Sorry." She murmurs finally, ash falling from her now-spent cigarette. "I get it. I just...I don't have any good ideas for fixing it either, and I don't know how much time we have. I'm gonna guess fuck-all, and I'd rather treat it as fuck-all until we've got a better idea."

That's...nnh. You don't want to say it, but the American has a point. You don't know how much time she has left inside that Silent Room, if it really IS killing her. And sure, getting her out is going to pretty much turn one of the most powerful officios against you - but wouldn't that be enough to make sure that Chiaki at least survives all this? If it ended up that you had to be hunted or killed/executed for your rim

Somehow I feel like trying to break us out of the silent room is going to take us right there.

That was a prediction where we betrayed QB and we didn't have our full Officio's support. Seen where Kyouko said that Chiaki had shot Mami and made Sayaka Witch out.

We'd already be sending more lives into the blender because the Ninth would be purged regardless.
Escaping now, going against QB, doesn't do us any good and just makes the situation worse.

Or reporting to QB to try attempting to turn the Regalia anti-magic field off?
Since, you know, the anti-magic field had no effect on Chiaki's for anymore.
Asking what the Venemum found from her examination?
Sending a drone into the darkness with a hard line connection?

I want to see Wendy look like a complete idiot when the anti-magic field goes down and Chiaki's situation only gets worse because there's nothing helping to keep the overflow of memories at bay.

Miracle Midori does not hesitate in the face of Shempai being in danger and she was never a glowing beacon of morality.

We picked her up on a job where she was acting as a cover for a rape.
When we went bloodcrazy she stepped in to stop us and and got stabbed several times in the process.
In clear spite of this she still took the first option she could and leaped headfirst into overlapping hells to save us and even died trying to put is back together again.

While I don't necessarily agree with the conclusion that Chiaki is dying, I think it's safe to assume we have the time to look into other options regardless.

If she is dying, rushing will probably hurt us.
If she isn't dying, rushing will definitely hurt us.

So my conclusion is just that we have at least a LITTLE time to look into alternatives.

Just because she's willing to risk everything doesn't mean that she does the direct confrontational, physical violence route.

She analyzes the situation. She considers who she is dealing with. She considers their strengths, weaknesses, what they want and how they think.

Then she acts in the manner that gives her the highest chance of success towards her chosen outcome.

Running headfirst into a situation without considering what she has, can get, and get other people to give her, is not what she does.

You say that she took the first option she could and leaped into overlapping hells.
She did no such thing.

She got Souji and Misaka to get her gear. She asked what the situation was. She collected Intel on the opposition (Kharn) before going in. She collected equipment to increase her chances (the tranq gun and extra ampoules, the communicator and beacon). She identified her mission objective and what she needed to do to achieve it.

Not go off half-cocked in a panic.

Alright you know what lets tear this apart.

>Midori dislikes Killing

True, everyone who isn't crazy doesn't enjoy the act.

>Midori hasnt killed anyone during her time as Meguca

Also true, but do you think killing is the worst thing she's seen or could have done? do you think there is some giant black gap between killing someone and not? like there aren't worse things people can do to another human that they haven't mulled over with "at least I didn't kill them, that counts for something!" before.

>Midori hasnt even told Chiaki that she never killed anyone because she is afraid that Chiaki would think she is too soft

Now why would she do that?, Why would she be afraid of Chiaki thinking she is soft? could it be because she'd be put on a pedestal and not be able to do anything to help Chiaki when she is in danger? why would she think that if she so vehemently avoids killing people and would never do it? wouldn't being a bedwarmer be a relief for her in that case? Why does she even have the impulse to try and protest it? Because she will kill someone if it's for Chiaki, She wants to keep her safe and will cross that line in defense of her, but is afraid of being robbed of the chance and having her taken from her, that's why she tries to put up a front. She has a moral compass but she also has limits.

>She went out of her way to try and save everyone in the Witch Barrier; Mirai, Kharn the Retard, Malal despite being dead, even Pinky and so suddenly she's Mother Teresa? she's incapable of having reasons for doing things and just does them ~because nice things are nice~ and will always do nice things for strangers all of the time?

I hate your Midori, She lacks fucking depth, she's not a character anymore, she's been turned into a carboard cuttout pure waifu from your projections.

But heavens no the picture of the real Midori has a bit of grime on the edges of the frame, can't have that.

We first encountered her when she was assisting with the gang-rape of a third party (and possibly had already done so at least once before). >Also she's on the front lines because there are things she can do other than killing people
The whole idea was that as a Callidus, she could go Full Spy on someone, cloaking and moving around the battlefield, shanking people when and where they least expect it.

Of course, we never got a chance to see her use that ability like that, since in the one instance she could have done that the players had her charge headlong into an enemy's prepared position like an Amerifat eversor.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 06/30/15(Tue)09:25:40 No.40923444 Archived

...No. No, you can't make a decision right now, as horrifyingly tempting as it is to. You want to get your sempai out of there as fast as you can, but until you've found out more about what's going on and you've explored as many options on what to do as possible, you're not doing anything that could potentially make this situation worse.

Wendy looks at you for a long minute before shaking her head, her scowl deepening. "...Jesus. Green, the person we both care about is fucking DYING in there. She even fucking told you herself. How the FUCK could this situation get any WORSE?"

You don't exactly see the knife in her hand, but the telltale glimmer and the brief rise of tension in the air is enough to warn you. "Come on, Green. Give me your worst fucking case scenario, and I'll tell you why it's bullshit, and why this is all just you being too fucking scared to grow some balls and DO something. Just fucking try me."

You grit your teeth in your own mounting frustration here. ...Maybe this was a mistake. Maybe you should've just gone solo instead of expecting the American to be of any help. Figures that the one person who you thought would understand the most of Chiaki's situation and recognize the need for a delicate hand would also be the most difficult person to deal with...!

Just as you make to tell Wendy just how little you care about what she thought about your decision is when you see it.

A small shadow, peeking from around the corner, from somewhere behind Wendy. You'd seen it earlier, but had dismissed it as an errant shadow cast by something else inside the room you'd dragged the American in - but now, in the center of your vision, you realize that it's not a shadow at all, but something real. Something with eyes, eyes that may have been trained on you since you stepped in here.

...No. That's...that's one of Wendy's, right? Probably. You've read up what you can on her, as well as inadvertently quizzed Mami about the American during that one moment of weakness where you let paranoia take over good sense. Wendy's Callidus ability mainly had something to do with sentient illusion manifestation - which was a fancy way to say that the American could manifest something into reality that was and was not, at the same time, real. And whatever it would turn out to be, there was a good chance that she wasn't in complete control of it.

You let out a sigh and confront her about it. The brown-haired Callidus blinks at you, and when she speaks, it's with clear and genuine surprise, followed by her usual brand of off-the-cuff irritation.

"The fuck are you talking about? I don't have anything like that out here right now. What, you think I wouldn't be able to tell or something?" She turns to look at where you pointed the shadow to be. "...I don't see anything. Fuck, Green, if this is some kind of joke, I'll--"

The both of you freeze as the shadow steps out from where you saw it. It's...it's a small figure, childlike, just a few inches taller than Misaka. Wearing clothes that would have looked in place in a different time period, or on one of those frilly balljointed dolls that you've always thought looked cool until you realized how much they cost. Its eyes glowing a bright, startling blue, even with the lack of light casting its other features into shadow. Hiding the faint trace of a wide smile on its lips.

But none of those details that you notice almost immediately upon spotting the shadow makes you freeze.

No, it's the feeling - a gnawing, irreconcilable paranoia - that even despite having seen nothing like it before, you immediately know what it is. And who it is.

"...Manuke?"

[1/2]

>> ☐ Deculture 06/30/15(Tue)09:29:01 No.40923484

>>40923469

The name leaves your lips in a surprised whisper. The small figure seems to flinch at that, its eyes flickering towards you - and with the sound of porcelain clattering on a tiled floor, it flees the room in a stilted, yet blisteringly-quick run. Quick enough that it's out of sight before either you or Wendy could even react.

And when the both of you finally do, it's by immediately giving chase, your track shoes squealing a frantic accompaniment to the gunshot-loud thump of Wendy's boots.

"That was--" Wendy starts as she runs beside you. Normally she'd be outstripping you right now - you've seen how fast she can move if she put her mind to it - but the sight of the figure seems to have caught her off guard enough that the surprise of it was slowing her down.

"Chiaki's," You tell her. "It's sempai's. One of her..." You can't even stomach saying the word, because doing so feels like condemning her to the doom that you desperately want to snatch her out of. You shake your head instead. "It was watching us back in the room. We need to catch it, it might know something about what's going on with sempai."

Wendy opens her mouth to say something, but seems to decide against it in mid-run. "Fine," she finally says, moments before spitting out a curse as the figure seems to speed up, disappearing into one of the many corridors of the Culexus facility. "...Christ, look at that thing go. It's like a fucking bat out of hell..."

How do you catch your sempai's familiar?

And this is the official picture of Hazuki Amane, Warmaster of the First. The first thing that comes to mind is that Hazuki and this timeline Homura are the same person. Personally, I don't believe it for five reasons:

1- While in Warhammer 40k there is only 1 Talon of Horus, is possible to build more (standard weapon for the First, for example). They can be different people wearing the same weapon, too

2- Hazuki is blonde, although this can be resolved with a cheap excuse like hair dye or this timeline Homura is different than the original (but it is unlikely, because all the magical girls in MGNQ that came from the original series and spin offs (Malal, Chiaki, Sayaka, Kirika...) have the same physicall appearance of the original characters, so It's likely the same applies to this timeline Homura)

3- According to Decu, the name and face, with the rank if is important (rank leader or warmaster) is accesible in the official page of the Officio. So Hazuki Amane's face and rank are public known. Malal admitted that she was trying to locate Homura during WPN, and failed. Well, if Hazuki is this timeline Homura, that would have been a piece of cake, right?

4- When Homura teleports in the dream, Chiaki notices her height, stature, her eyes, her costume with changes, her long hair... And she doesn't notice that is blonde when it should be the first thing that she should notice? Also, the text says "is and is not your mirror image". I think the description states that this timeline Homura is physically identical to Chiaki in terms of body stature, eye colors and hair color.

Look like the Claw of Horus.

>> ☐ Deculture 06/30/15(Tue)10:07:05 No.40923957

"Let's split up," You gasp at Wendy, cursing your own lack of cardiovascular endurance - it's only been a few minutes since you began sprinting full-out after Chiaki's familiar and you're already out of breath. "Cover...cover more ground that way. Corner it somewhere."

"But--" Wendy begins, but you push her to the side, forcing her to take the adjacent corridor as you continue to run after the fleeing figure. You hear her spit something foul in English once more, before finally relenting - her bootfalls receding into silence as the chase takes you farther, deeper into the deserted Culexus training floor. Leaving you alone with your own clumsy footsteps and your less-than-inspiring asthmatic wheezing. ...For frig's sake, you really need to cut down on the damn snacking.

...And the binge-eating.

...And the random times when you try to build up your resistance to alcohol by surreptitiously sneaking off to buy a six-pack of beer from the convenience store at the lobby, and drinking them all by yourself.

You can't keep up with your sempai like this.

Anyway. After making a mental note to ask your fellow Instructor, Karasawa Enishi, for some weight-loss tips, you find yourself predictably - and miserably - falling farther and farther behind the fleeing figure. You try to head it off in some of the floor's labyrinthine turns, trying to seek a shortcut to cut in front of it - but whatever you try it seems to either slip past or even double back. The closest you got to catching your quarry was when you managed to sneak up behind it - and it's when you tried to capture it in your embrace was when it turned its head a full 180 on its porcelain neck, looking at you with clearly-frightened eyes, before running off like a shot.

It was frightened of you. For some reason, Chiaki's familiar was...scared of you.

>>40923957

Why? You ask yourself as you wheeze into a stop at a junction, trying to hear the tell-tale clatter of porcelain feet in the deserted, tomb-quiet Culexus floor. And more to the point, how did you know it was her familiar in the first place?

The horrifyingly-familiar voice that suddenly speaks up behind you - along with the sudden grip of clawed fingers around your waist - makes you freeze in your tracks, and turns the breath you've been trying to suck into your lungs feel like acid running down your throat.

"Wouldn't you like to know, broccolihead?"

And it's then that you smell it.

The spicy, sweet scent of cinnamon and rotting corpses.

How do you react?

And the last and most important one:
5- Decu is an expert in tricking his readers. He never made important plot revelations until the last second. He leaves false clues and made anons originate all tipe of theories. Take Malal: no one guessed her true identity until the exact moment she removed the helm, and the strongest theory was that she was this timeline Homu. Take the Red Culexus: there are many theories regarding her identity, but what do we really know about her? Nothing. There are not a single solid clue about her, only speculation.
Another constant in Decu work is the shadowruns, who create all sort of theories and paranoia. Take Ruri, for example: even more than a year later, there are still serious doubts about her identity, and Decu hasn't give any real clue about her (knowing full well how uneasy that make us feel).

This is one of the best aspects of Decu writing: the ability to troll his readers, build tension and make a sudden revelation at the end. And now, in a drawthread, out of the blue, he reveals something as important as the identity of this timeline Homura? For free? I don't believe it. I think he is trolling us. What, you see the Talon and immediatly assume they are the same person? You see the resemblance between the costume and quickly jump to conclusions? Both figures have an Horus Talon and posses suits similar to PMMM Homura, yes, but it is not like Decu to be so obvious. It's not his style. If you are going to spill the beans, why not say it directly? I asked him on ask.fm if they were the same person, and he only responded "Hahaha!" (Something he does when facing a complicated question).

Why make a black figure instead of a well-drawn Homu? I think there is a trick here. My opinion is that this can be a false clue, because once again we can make only theories, with nothing concrete in the threads.

I am aware that many of the things I put here is speculation and theories grabbed by the hair. What I want is for /tg/ to realize that there are enough evidence to doubt the obvious similarities between Hazuki and this timeline Homura.
Feel free to discuss if you disagree with me and if you think I am wrong, but please, PLEASE, don't simply call me a retard without giving reason. If you think this is stupid, fine, but at least try to say why do you think so. I am trying to be constructive here, and I only ask that you do the same hazuki is supposed to be an incredible seer, so she could have made the first aware of homus importance. hazuki could then have trained her, which would lead to them using the same weapon.

No.

No, this is impossible.

She shouldn't be in here. She couldn't be out here, outside of the Akashic Realm, outside of wherever your sempai's Shield brought everyone into...!

How did she get out?!

You try to say something - anything - but the words just wouldn't come out. All that does are some feeble, choked attempts at vocalization, noises you're spared the indignity of hearing yourself with your heart pounding in your ears. Despite that, you hear the crazed pink-haired demon's giggle easily enough, as well as her sigh of disappointment as she gives your waist a playful pinch with her claws. The sharp points easily piercing through your hoodie's cotton fabric.

"Oh, this won't do, Midori-chan, this won't do at all!" The broken goddess exclaims breathily, clicking her tongue in a mother's admonishment. "Look at you, you've gotten fatter since the last time we met! Now, I know Homura-chan's suddenly developed this strange and gross fixation on softer, cuddlier girls, but you can't let yourself go like this, you know!"

You manage to suck in a breath complete enough for you to actually try speech again. But even before you could, the twintailed monster reeking of an abbatoir made specifically for human slaughter stops you.

"Shh. Don't...don't ruin the moment here, Midori-chan." Pinky giggles. "Now's not the time for questions. You know why? Because I know what Homura-chan did. I know what Homura-chan's doing. And I know what she's become."

"And you know what? I'm really, really happy for her. In fact, I'm..." She pauses, cackling this time, a sharp and unnerving laugh that rakes painfully against the insides of your skull after being stabbed right into your ear canals. "I'm actually really excited! Because this changes EVERYTHING! It changes everything I've been planning for her, everything I've been planning on doing, everything I've been plotting for these last few fucking CENTURIES!"

Another fit of giggles, all of them rusty with the poisonous edge of insanity, makes her shiver and bury her face against your back. The sensation of something wet and warm being pressed against you there making you immediately shiver in both fear and revulsion. "It's not going to be the lopsided curb-stomping I've been SOMEWHAT looking forward to."

"It'll be a massacre, Midori-chan. Just the way I like it."

No. That's..no. She has to stop. THIS has to stop. Chiaki's...can't she see what's happening to Chiaki?

Silence reigns for a moment, before Pinky replies, her usual petulance coming to the fore.

"You keep calling her that, you know. That's not really a cute nickname for her. She's Homura-chan." Another giggle. "And why should I stop something? Homura-chan's finally getting her wings, like a beautiful butterfly! Or like, you know, a swan! After it rips its way out of the ugly duckling's chest!"

That's not how it goes! That's not how it goes at all!

"Details, details! Still, though, you can say I'm...tickled PINK at the current developments!" Pinky laughs. "Ahh, it was kind of cute how she thought she could hide it from me...!"

How do you react?

It looks like it'll only make things worse.
And this situation is something that Pinky is happy about, so why would she want Chiaki to suffer less? We need to give a reason why she should cut her fun short.

Eh, 4chan is a weeaboo nexus, and anyone that's above like, basic weeb level knows the japanese names of characters from shows they watched.

Most people in here watched Madoka, most people that watched Madoka of their own volition probably saw Sailor Moon to some degree, and even later adherents to the magical girl genre may have looked into the 'classics' from before.

And since this quest has been a gigantic pile of cameos, with relative power and might of those cameos sort of being proportional to the age and popularity of the sources?

Yeah, there are a number of us that have been waiting for team Sailor Senshi to appear with baited breath. Speculation was always likely they were in the First, and there were good odds on Usagi leading the first before this reveal, based on her likely power level.

Because PMMM is fundamentally derived from the darker aspects of Sailor Moon, as a deliberate inversion of much of the rest of the genre which drew from the other aspects of the show - comedic romance, mostly.

Read the third line in >40925227 very carefully.

Everyone has been building all speculation based on potential cameos. PMM is the base setting, but characters are drawn from the entire genre. All speculation worth a damn needs to take the entire genre into account to have any weight.

The bigger a given character/show was, the more likely their cameo in MGNQ will be powerful. Decu already mentioned he had plans for the Sailor Team a long time ago, and locked them out of writefagging for that reason.

You are dismissing the primary source of new characters in this work- the wider magical girl genre. PMMM is NOT the primary source for them. WH40k is giving us cameo ROLES onto various characters, and those roles tend to land on PMMM canon characters or expies or clones, but the vast majority of named characters come from non-PMMM sources.

I'm sorry to hear about all this discord, my god namefag, but lets list some older stuff that might be relevant and fun to watch in your free time.

Sailor Moon: both the classic series and the new Crystal series. Both are being made available on Hulu if you want to support the official release. The original series is a bit long, and exists in a monster of the week format, but the development of the characters and their personal arcs around that are worth the investment of time.

Revolutionary Girl Utena: a bit different and a bit out there, but fun all the same.

Pretear: A nice look at ideas of power and corruption against the backdrop of a seemingly innocent magical girl series.

Different Anon with a few more suggestions:

Cardcaptor Sakura - another "keystone" of the genre, if you will. Another monster of the week theme, courage and belief in your abilities will win but it won't always be pretty.

Lyrical Nanoha - aka Gundams cosplaying as little girls. The series hits some REALLY dark themes and it takes very concerted efforts to draw people out of them. Overwhelming firepower helps, but you still need to address the issues head-on.

Being a namefag is tricky, just as being a tripfag. In an otherwise anonymous environment it paints a target on you and allows people to call out certain consistencies or inconsistencies in your behavior. To do it you either need to have a thick skin and not take bait or give it, or you need to somehow be universally likable and loved.

And that universally part doesn't just mean in your own mind, it means you actually have to be perfect (by whatever flawed metric that could work for everyone or enough people for it to matter, and that is undefinable) in your perceived conduct.

Good luck.

"Please...please help me." You bite back everything else that comes to you at the moment. Things that, while they may have snapped someone like the Betrayer out of her completely insane and idiotic bloodlust, would probably not work as well with the pink-haired eldritchian horror that had tormented your sempai for...for God knows how long. So instead, you appeal to her...better nature, like you managed to a long time ago. A lifetime ago. "Please tell me how to fix Ch--" You choke back her real name before you can utter it, and replace it with one that you will never associate with her. "...Homura. Please tell me how to fix Homura."

"'Fix' her?" Pinky echoes out loud. "I don't remember Homura-chan needing fixing in the first place, Midori-chan! Sure, she's still a bit loopy in the head, but like I keep saying, she's growing! Finally filling out the costume that's been hanging loosely off her noodly frame! And there's nothing wrong with that!"

N-no. No. She's lying, now. You force yourself to say it loud and clear, even with her nails digging into your flesh. You can hear it in her voice, even through the manic, gleeful edge of a mind as horribly broken as hers. That smallest hint of doubt and hesitation. She knows what your sempai is turning into, sure - but she wasn't expecting it to be this way, nor this traumatic. She's not even certain about what will happen to Chiaki at the end of her change, whatever it was!

Silence, before the crazed goddess' grip seems to finally slacken. Brief, sharp pinpricks of pain blossoming where she'd stabbed into your flesh as she withdraws. "Do you know, Midori-chan, that if you were any other Magical Girl, you'd be dead by now?" She giggles again, but it's less of the gleefully-insane sort and more of the normal, girlish one that you personally heard back at Siberia.

"...Well, I'll admit that what's happening to her right now is a bit weird." Pinky speaks up a moment later. "I mean, it doesn't really match up to how I really remember it." You hear her shuffle about behind you, her shoes scuffing on the tiled floor. "Like...she's not supposed to be screaming in pain, she's supposed to be laughing. But not like a HAHAHA laugh, like normies do, but a more stylish kind of laughing - you know, like how foreigners do it, with the hand half-covering her mouth, that kind of thing? Hon-hon-hon! Hon-hon-hon!"

You would have laughed if you hadn't been so focused on trying to look harmless. ...Well, you do so anyway, but it comes out as a terrified sort of quick, tremulous gasping.

"No, no, not like that, you sound like a fucking balloon deflating." Pinky snaps at you. "Oh, well, it doesn't really matter anyhow. What matters is that while I like what's happening to Chiaki, I don't like HOW it's happening." You hear her harrumph here. "So fine. I'll help you out, Midori-chan, but just this once, okay?"

Something happens behind you. You don't know what - you just feel it, like a static charge suddenly detonating in the air behind you.

You turn around, and see the familiar you and Wendy has been chasing is there, right where Pinky should have been. Looking up at you with complete and utter fear in her glassy, almond-shaped eyes. The ball of yarn at the top of her cap quivering as she shakes all over, her porcelain body rattling like delicate crockery during an earthquake.

+ Oh, and as for the reason why you know what that thing is, Midori-chan? Why it's scared of you? + The eldritchian horror's voice whispers into your mind. + Well, that's honestly really simple. +

You try to calm the familiar down, reaching forward with one hand to try and pat its head - but all it does is recoil, both its dainty porcelain hands coming up to shield itself from your touch.

+ What do you think I did to bring you back? +

And with that, as suddenly as she made her entrance, you felt Pinky's presence vanish completely, along with her telltale scent. As if she was never there in the first place. As if you'd only been hallucinating, and had just now snapped out of it. Her departure leaving you with a sick, hollow feeling, one poisoned with the gleeful implication of her parting words.

...No. No time to think about that now. Just...focus on Chiaki. Focus on fixing Chiaki.

You take a careful look around the room, before turning back to the shivering doll in front of you. It doesn't seem to be trying to escape, which is good.

Just as you open your mouth to talk to it, Wendy comes barreling into the scene, barely breathing hard, but clearly annoyed that you got to the quarry first.

"That's...well, I'll be fucked. How'd you manage that, Green?" The American shakes her head in disbelief. "I was just chasing it a couple of minutes ago. Would've cornered it in the next turn, but then it just disappeared, and..." She lets the sentence go unfinished, gesturing to the doll instead. "Either that was some stupid luck or you've got some tricks up your sleeve I don't know about."

You shake your head, deciding not to tell her. Nothing that she needs to know...right now, at least. Maybe later.

Right now, though, you have some questioning to do.

"Alright, alright." Wendy raises her hands. "Fine. You got your secrets, I got mine, so don't get your panties in a fuckin' twist. I just asked." She turns to the doll again. "Christ if they don't look creepy, though. Looking at one of them this close? I don't blame Kong for going fucking nuts. I probably would, too, if I'm being haunted by more than a dozen of the fuckers."

Creepy? It's here that you briefly forget your brief encounter with Pinky to argue with the American. Of all people, you'd have thought Wendy would have liked them.

Probably because her rifles can't hit shit anyway, what with their muzzles being clogged with dirt. If she fired blasts of pure magic, I wouldn't have a problem with this, but she's been demonstrated to fire actual musket balls.

3)Her trigger discipline is nonexistent. I've seen russian conscripts and people from Takbiristan with better.

With the speed at which she assembles multiple weapons which possess moving parts, far more complex than any other magical girl's weapon, you'd expect some shoddy craftsmanship in there anyway.

Haaving a name, ab identity hereis optional. Taking one up is a consious decision that shows a need or desire to be recognised; and thst ultimately taints the post with the stigma of the name. It opens up the post to preconcieved predjudice and stigma.

Ordinarily I'd let Wendy do it, but if she's creeped out I wouldn't bet too heavily on her kid skillz. Those things depend a lot on your own mindset, too.

Make sure to get down to about the same height as the doll, if possible, and make an unthreatening facial expression. Don't look her directly in the eye, and probably ask if there's anything you can do to help her. It puts her in a position of authority, sort of, and kids love that shit.

Normally, I'd go with having Wendy to the questioning, but she's also tainted with Pinky's touch in how she was returned from the dead as well. So I don't think that having her do the questioning will make things any better.

The "Get Fucked" moment, that had Midori, a support fighter armed with knives and who, as a Callidus, fights like the Predator by cloaking and going for backstabs, charge straight at the fully arrayed shadows and last hostile Remnant of Chiaki's soul.
Yeah, she died.
And then Madoka had to use the spare Soulgem, the one that we were saving to use on Mirai (who had talked with a fragment of Malal and was going to tell us everything she had gotten from her once we were out of the Barrier) in order to save Midori.

You shake your head at your American companion, before kneeling down in front of the living, breathing doll that is - unthinkably enough - your sempai's familiar. While you've no actual basis on whether or not it is a child, you're at least hoping that the act of getting down to its height, to speak of it as an equal rather than someone taller and much more imposing that them, would help things along. You try not to stare, either, remembering how direct eye contact could make skittish children feel even more intimidated.

...The effect is encouraging. Instead of recoiling again, it seems genuinely surprised at your consideration, its jewelled eyes with the piercing topaz pupils widening at your proximity. And while it hasn't exactly made a move towards you - even when you offered a friendly hand to it - it simply stands still, its own dainty hands clutching at its vest. Still shy, but making no move to get away.

Well. It's a start, at least. You glance back at Wendy, who seems to smirk from around the cigarette she'd just finished lighting. You shake your head at this, before turning back to the familiar, a question poised on your lips. One that the doll suddenly and directly answers, without so much as a prompt from you.

"Can feel her," Manuke murmurs tremulously, in clipped words barely resembling human language. "Can smell her. The Blessed Lady. Inside you. In your blood. In your flesh." Her porcelain head lolling on her neck as she shakes it. "Please, do not hurt Manuke, Vessel of the Blessed Lady. Manuke is...is only trying to help our Good For Nothing."

Vessel? You...you're a vessel for Pinky...? You glance at Wendy again, who shrugs with a rather obstinate silence. As if never mattered to her one bit, even if you did catch the crease of worry in her furrowed brow.

But then, what about Wendy? Isn't she a--

"Chosen. Different. Very different." Manuke shakes her head, still looking at you warily but also warming up to conversation. It seems she's really taking to being able to talk to you without having to look up. "Chosen is to carry the Blessed Lady's swords in battle, and die. Vessels are those who the Lady can use to bring her light to the darkest of places."

...That...doesn't sound too bad...

"To the faithful, it is not." It's here that Manuke's glasgow smile quirks into what looks like a wistfully-melancholic one. "To our Good For Nothing, it is."

...You don't exactly know how to reply to that. Or to react.

Shaking your head, you instead ask the question you've been itching to ask. About what's happening to Chiaki inside the Silent Room. And how to get her back to normal again.

"Our Good For Nothing was one," Manuke says slowly, her own brow furrowing with the mental strain of someone attempting to explain complicated things with a painfully-limited vocabulary. "But now she is many. Many Good For Nothings, called by their memories, attempting to take their rightful place, after our Good for Nothing broke off her shackles and unsealed herself." The familiar shakes her head. "They are fighting. They will not stop until one of them wins, and takes dominion. Control must be re-established. Only one needs to remain, or else, the bad Good For Nothing..."

Manuke raises one dainty porcelain hand, and with some obvious trepidation, places it on your offered own. It's cold, like porcelain tends to get when they get kept in storage.

"Bring our Good For Nothing her sword," The familiar pleads. "The sword she was chosen for. It should be enough to drive all Good for Nothings back where they came from, and get ours to stay."

The Sword she was chosen for? You blink at this. Well, your sempai does have a sword, but she wasn't exactly chosen for it. You don't--

...

Oh. Oh no. Your face pales at the realization. That's...that's not going to be easy.

"You think?" Wendy scowls from around her cigarette. "We're gonna have to steal a fucking Golden Weapon from the company vault, then find some way to get inside their most heavily-guarded Silent Room. All without triggering any fucking alarms or any other bullshit like that." She takes a long, slow drag, nearly burning the stick down to its filter, before exhaling a puff of smoke.

"Still." The American shrugs. "Might be fun. You never know."

...Really? Nobody said anything about stealking, or breaking and entering--

"What?" Wendy laughs here, harsh and gravelly. "You think Kyuubey is actually going to allow that? Seriously? No, seriously, Green, look at me and tell me with a straight fucking face that your mutant cat bastard daddy is going to let that happen." She grins at you. "Go on, just fucking try it."

What do you do?

All questions that Midori would ask.

Also, yes, QB would allow the introduction of a Golden Weapon if properly argued.
He is eminently practical and logical, even if he places the lives and welfare of the girls under him above even profits.

"Based on past patterns of when I entered the double Witch Barrier in Siberia, the Warmaster is most likely experiencing a separation of her sense of self and memories into disparate, and often times hostile, fragments.
"These fragments must fight each other, or create factions, with victory giving them control of her psyche.
"Specific locations and items from her past gave quite powerful advantages to the group of fragments that I assisted, and is also most likely the case in this instance.
"Therefore, given the connection and importance that the Golden Desert Eagle had to her, it will most likely give an advantage to the Warmaster fragment and those allied with her. A swift victory will restore her, much as it did in Siberia."

There's no need to mention Manuke when we can draw upon Midori's own experiences inside Chiaki's Barrier from Siberia.

Pfffff. Let´s see: Malal thread, visit Haruka (a prisoner in the 9th who can see the future), discover that the Prophet is Oriko, training with Sayaka that evolves into a fight and nearly has us killed, mission to Big Shell to steal a super-grief seed, random warmaster in training stuff, sex with Midori, Yuma thread (I strongly reccomend that you read this), terrorist attack by Oriko, reunion with the Church of the Golden Land and reunited with the ex of Chiaki, Wendy Cooldown. Being officially ratified as Warmaster, learn about the Akashic Realm, Oriko is in the Akashic Realm, go to the AR, but before encounter with Akuma Homura, fight to reach Oriko, hand over our soul gem to her, being transformed into Akuma Homura and later regain our sanity, defeat Oriko, who is possesed by Ahriman. Sayaka becomes the Fist Knight and tries to kill us, but the power of idol music save our ass. Return to the 9th, but Yuma dies saving us in the process. We have the aspect of Akuma Homura, so we are locked in Regalia. Reunion with the Clara Dolls, Sayaka bring us our chair, we sleep, have a vivid dream about Midori and Wendy being our sex slaves, Syaka as the Blood Knight attacking us and this timeline Homura killing us. We encounter Malal in our head, discover that she is the cause of or amnesia, we shoot her, but that result in a massive headache.

Though the explanation and argument for getting the Golden DEagle out of storage could be reworded so that the fragments can be focused by using an item with a strong attachment to the most recent set of memories, letting Chiaki recombine faster, rather than implying that she needs it to fight off other sets of memories and we'd be fucked if another Homura or Chiaki took dominance.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 07/04/15(Sat)09:51:36 No.41006193 Archived

You glare at Wendy in both mounting frustration and exasperation. ...Alright, fine, it's not like she's wrong, sure. While you consider yourself an optimist about most things, you're not stupid - it'll likely take more than an appeal to his better nature for him to allow you access not only to your sempai's vault of Golden Weapons, but to your own sempai as well. You know that already. You get the concept.

But for fu--for goodness' sake, can she at least not be a complete and total jerk about it? Or is that something that comes natural to all Americans? Is it something they can actually turn off at will, even?

You shake your head again, and turn back towards the living, breathing porcelain doll that is your sempai's familiar. Its - or rather, her - large, cerulean eyes looking at you with nothing less than a child's hesitant wonder and curiosity. Suddenly making you forget that you are in fact talking to a fragment of someone's worst nightmare come to pass.

...Ngh. She's even doing that small side-to-side shifting that kids do when they get fidgety, or impatient, or both. The effect is...well, you're trying your best not to scoop her up in your arms and twirl her around, or cuddle her until she shatters, or something. ...Can she shatter to pieces if you hug her too hard? She's a balljointed doll, and you know how fragile those can be, but at the same time, you never know with familiars, and--

No. NO. Focus, Hanegawa, focus. Get a grip. Your sempai's life is on the line here. Don't cuddle the familiar, no matter how cute it is and how adorably it's looking at you.

NO. STOP. You scream inwardly at yourself, beads of sweat dripping down your neck. WENDY IS LOOKING AT YOU.

KEEP IT TOGETHER, HANEGAWA.

KEEP IT TOGETHER.

You turn away briefly to cough into a fist in lieu of screaming your head off, before fixing a smile on your face as you make to speak to Manuke. Forcing your entire body to stay where it is while you ask her the most important questions - questions about your sempai that you'll need answered if you're to save her for the second time.

"No, our Good For Nothing is not dying. Not in mortal sense." Manuke shakes her head, her auburn curls shifting underneath her cap with the movement. "But she is suffering enough that it is same as dying, only more slowly. If our Good For Nothing suffers enough, there might not be anything left of her to come back to. Would be really good for nothing then."

Another shake of her head, slower and more mournful this time. "No way to be sure how long. Everything depends on how strong our Good For Nothing wants to remember. But...but sooner she is getting her sword, the better."

"Other way to save Good For Nothing..." It's here that the familiar glances warily about, as if making sure she isn't being watched. "Manuke is...Manuke is not sure. Bringing her sword to her should work, but...perhaps..."

She looks back at you, wringing her dainty porcelain fingers. "If...if knowing someone who can make a direct appeal to the Blessed Lady, a priestess or seer, then maybe...maybe she can intervene on Good for Nothing's behalf..."

What? The Blessed Lady? And a seer...?

Manuke nods furiously. "Someone who can scry into the Akashic Realm, or walk in its tides without fear of corruption." She turns towards Wendy, and somehow you sense a brief, unspoken moment of understanding pass between the both of them. "The Blessed Lady is really angry with our Good For Nothing, but if priestess can plead and bargain with her, she can save our Good For Nothing..."

Wendy, apropos of completely nothing, starts to chuckle. It's a miserable sound, completely lacking of her earlier venom - the sound of someone who can only laugh at how horribly life had taken a shi--a crap on them. When she finally speaks, it's with a tone that you've heard countless times from Chiaki herself - the tone of someone also struggling to hold back an ugly temper with humor. Or sarcasm. "...Jesus. It just keeps getting better and better, doesn't it?"

You open your mouth to react when a soft, four-tone chime comes over the Officio's PA system, heralding an announcement. It's usually only just audible in the more populated, bustling floors - but in the rather abandoned Culexus floor, it's almost deafening as it echoes through the empty halls.

"Calling for Instructor Hanegawa Midori-san, Instructor Hanegawa Midori-san." The clear, unhurried voice of the announcer is smooth, almost syrup-like in its dulcet tones. You flush a faint crimson as you realize that it's you being paged. "Rank Leader Karasawa Enishi-san requires your presence at Callidus Training Hall A. Please stop by at your soonest convenience."

Crap. Today's training...! You were hoping Enishi would at least be considerate enough, but...! You turn back towards Wendy and Manuke, the former shrugging at your gaze and the latter looking up at you with quiet concern.

"Looks like your day job's calling, Green." Wendy smirks, although it's a half-hearted one. ...The news that Manuke brought clearly having taken the wind out of her sails. "Still can't believe you're an instructor here. What do you teach the newbies, huh? Hide in the corner with some ice cream the moment they get into hostile territory?"

How do you react?

voting should be over by now so lets discuss how to go about this if we decide to smuggle in the GW the best plan i can come up with is

1)find out where sayaka keeps the vault keycard
2)steal the vault card from sayaka (she is distracted because of kyoko and the situation in general)
3)ask kyuubey to visit chiaki once more (we need permission to avoid triggering an alarm)
4)Get the gun from the vault (callidus bullshit so no one sees us doing it)
5)have the precure girls open the hole in the wall
6)put the GW through the hole (they don't notice because of callidus bullshit)
7)slip the keycard back into sayakas desk
8)pretend chiaki got the GW from her shield could that work or am i missing something obvious?

Wendy is, despite her otherwise poor social abilities, very good in the big sister role. Yuu is mighty fine imouto material. They'd be perfect for each other.

But anon, if Wendy goes crazy while holding the Golden DEagle, then she's more liable to kill Midori and abscond with the other weapons than bring it to Chiaki, going against the whole purpose of getting the DEagle in the first place.
And even if Midori wins in the fight against Wendy with a Golden Weapon, we're in the same position we were in originally, not being able to get the DEagle to Chiaki past the security and built-in safety systems of Regalia.

Just a thought, but maybe Pinky wants us to give Homura a Golden Weapon so she can COMPLETE her transformation into HOMUSATAN! As in, she wants to stop any progress Homura is making in controling her memories and slingshot her into NOPE NOPE EVERYBODY DIES territory.

Because she's like that.

You ignore Wendy's baiting - tired and half-hearted as it is - as you decide to attend the training. It's...gah, as much as you want to stay here and try to figure out a way to get your sempai normal again, going AWOL now - especially during your first week as an Instructor - is going to attract the wrong kind of attention. People are going to start asking questions, and you're not really sure you can lie to someone's face about Chiaki's condition if they asked you right in your face. It's not like you can't, of course, but...well, you're sure skiving off on your duties isn't going to help your sempai any.

Wendy shrugs again as you tell her about your decision. "...Not a bad idea. We can't really do anything right now - nothing important, anyway - and people are gonna get suspicious when they see you goofing off. Just try to get out of it as early as you can, so we can keep figurin' out what to do, and--" She blinks at you, before frowning. "The fuck IS IT with you, Green? Why the fuck do you stare so much?"

...No, it's just that...You shake your head, a small smile curling your lips. You were just getting used to her being a contrarian jerk about everything that you were expecting her vulgar disapproval about your decision.

"Yeah? What makes you think I like it?" Wendy growls. "I just said it's not a bad idea, but that doesn't mean I approve or anything. Besides, like I said, we can't do squat right now, not with it being the start of the day and there being too many witnesses around." She huffs, here. "So all you're getting is my agreement, Green. Don't let it get into your fucking head, alright?"

Right. You force yourself not to grin. ...You think you're starting to understand the American, now. Or at least, how she thinks anyway.

While it's true that Midori has been revealed to be a meatpuppet for Pinky, waiting for Faust to ASSUME DIRECT CONTROL, the idea of giving Chiaki her Golden DEagle was suggested by Manuke, who is not under Pinky's control.

There's no indication that Chiaki is making any progress in controlling her memories, and the previous time it happened, she needed outside help otherwise the Ribbon-Homu would have taken control.

Right. You force yourself not to grin. ...You think you're starting to understand the American, now. Or at least, how she thinks anyway.

Glancing down at Manuke as you straighten up, it's here that an idea strikes you. One that, as soon as you turn towards Wendy to suggest it, you realize that she's already thought of the same exact thing. At the same exact moment.

"...Yeah, sure. I can try scoping out the vault. Shouldn't be too hard." Another shrug. "Last time I checked it only had half a dozen cameras aimed at it and a triple-authentication system with a keycard access. Don't know if the mutant cat bastard changed it up recently, so it'll be handy to check again."

ALright. That's good. ...Wait, she checked? But she's not supposed to--

"Callidus, remember?" It's Wendy's turn to surpress a shit-eating grin this time. "Wasn't like I was going to break into it or anything, though. Just passed it while I was running errands for Mami. Figured, why not see what the cat bastard's using to stop any half-competent Callidus from stealing the world's most dangerous shit since the fucking atom bomb?" Another smirk, followed by yet another shrug. "Didn't exactly fill me with an overwhelming sense of safety, but hey, whatever works. This isn't my fucking Officio."

...Right. You narrow your eyes at your fellow Callidus warily. Well. She's only to scope the vault out. Nothing else. Is that clear?

For a moment, Wendy's smirk turned ugly, but it's smoothed out quickly with her trademark expression of half-asleep apathy. "...You think you can give me fucking orders, Green? You're just a goddamn aide, same as me."

Yeah, but you're the aide to the Warmaster, you counter with a smile as you cross your arms underneath your chest. That counts for something.

"No it fucking doesn't--" The American starts to spit out, before suddenly cutting herself off and turning away from you. You catch a hint of her cheeks reddening. "...Fine. Sure. Just scoping it out. Nothing else. Loud and fucking clear, Green."

Alright. Okay. Just so you're clear then. You nod at her, before looking back down at Manuke. Suddenly at a loss as to what to do with your sempai's familiar.

Like, do you take her with you, or...?

"O-oh, no, Manuke has to return to the Good For Nothing. Cannot stay here for too long." The doll shakes her head, and for the first time you see her smile. It's a strange smile, made eerie by the fact that her lips are painted to stretch the entire width of her face - but it's a smile nonetheless. "Sisters will miss Manuke. Cannot have that." She pauses for a moment, before nodding, as if making a decision. "B-but will step out again to tell about how Good For Nothing is doing...!"

Oh. Well. That's handy. You grin here and pat her on the head, in an attempt to show your appreciation. The doll in turn seems to like it, her too-bright eyes closing briefly in seeming contentment.

"Alright, enough of the fucking Kodak moment." Wendy clears her throat. "Get your ass in gear, Miss Callidus Instructor, or you're gonna have Karasawa shrieking your name over the PA system herself. She doesn't take kindly to being made to wait, you know."

Yeah, yeah. As you make to leave, you make sure you have Wendy's phone number on your cellphone, and yours on hers. This way, you'll be able to coordinate with each other in case something unexpected happened. ...Of course, she gave another wisecrack about you soon sending her your nude pics, which you only met with rolled eyes and a hurried goodbye as you finally set off, out of the Culexus floor and to the Callidus training hall.

Your sempai gets with some really strange types, you think on your way there. Of course, you're not exactly normal yourself, what with your idea of awkward flirting being something like drawing a multi-volume porn manga series with them as the stoic, smoldering deuteragonist, but...

...Wait. Wait a goddamn minute.

Was...was Wendy flirting with you? Back there?

...No. No, that's impossible. She can't...no.

You have Chiaki. You have your sempai. And besides, with their history...

You shake your head furiously as you feel your cheeks heat up.

Frigging...no, fucking Americans...! She's probably doing this to get back at your sempai somehow...! The NERVE of her!

You continue steaming about this latest revelation about your sempai's ex - right up until you stop in front of the Callidus Training Hall you've been scheduled to hold a training class in. From behind the sliding wooden door, you can hear the class not only just starting, but already underway. And from the way Enishi is shrieking instructions...well.

Suffice to say, this is going to be just like middle school again. With you stumbling into a full classroom, completely late, with nothing to show for your tardiness but your own clumsiness with punctuality. And about to catch a hell of a lot of flak for it.

How do you make your way into your own training class?

[]Professionally. Go inside with your head held high, maybe while looking irritated about the fact that you ARE late.
[]Apologetically. Duck inside, head bowed low, and apologize to Enishi as soon as you see her.

You decide to do this professionally. If there's anything you gleaned from the Ninth's own Callidus Rank Leader upon your first meeting, it's two things: one, is that she could stand to skip a few meals here and there, or at least cut down on the stress-eating - and two, that your usual standby of being meek and apologetic isn't going to fly. Not with her. She's too sharp, too experienced, to fall for something like that.

And besides, this IS your class, after all. Do you really want to look like a big blob of quivering jelly in front of THEM, of all people? You, who interact with the weirdest people on a daily basis, up to and including a grinning pink-haired goddess with as many anger issues as she does teeth? You, who chewed out the Betrayer and slapped her back into sobriety? You, who saved the Warmaster - and the woman you love - not just once, but twice? Do YOU want to be seen as weak?

Of course not! You force yourself to shout inwardly, despite the sensation of your own intestines tying themselves into knots inside your stomach. One hand immediately darting inside your jacket, pulling out a handkerchief to mop up the cold sweat on the back of your neck.

...Egh. Truth be told you don't really like speaking in public. You don't like being IN public, period. All the interviews you've granted as Green Green have always been through email and chat programs, and your book signings have always been done with a lookalike wearing shades and a jacket so thick you could call it a comforter.

Sure, you can act and lie well enough to be of some use as an actual Callidus, but your audience rarely numbered more than a handful, and you were usually gone before they realized what was happening. There was also magic to smoothen things over, to make your presentation indistinguishable from the real thing, helping you pull the hood over your victims' eyes.

Instead of a handful, you have thirty students, all in all, there until the end of the class. And instead of magic - which no doubt if you used would be called on immediately by some of the more astute newbies, no less - all you have is your easily-deflatable sense of confidence and an uncanny knack of figuring out just what you need to say or do to turn things to your favor.

But yeah. You know what to do. And you're going to do it.

Gritting your teeth, your entire body tensing at the brazen act of self-deception that you're about to commit - you slide the wooden door back and step over the threshold in one smooth movement. At the same time, you set a firm expression of irritated impatience onto your face - an expression consisting of slightly-narrowed eyes, a quietly furrowed brow, and lips pressed thin enough to form a straight line. The expression of someone who'd been made tardy by completely infuriating reasons, reasons that will never be uttered by anyone else in their presence, lest they tempt that someone's wrath.

And it...it actually works, at least with your students. All activity inside the training hall stops dead in its tracks - and from how your students are all paired off and clutching blunt knives in their hands, Enishi had started them off with close combat drills. ...Not exactly your lesson plan for the day, there - you were looking forward to sitting them down and teaching them the basics of social engineering, as part of every Callidus' toolbox. Still, knife-wielding lessons are just as important, you suppose...

But yes, before you get distracted even further: your ploy works well enough that your students immediately stand at attention and bow towards you as one, greeting you the usual morning greeting in perfect unison. You return the gesture, inclining your head a fraction and offering a curt, yet heartfel apology for your tardiness. They are YOUR students after all, and they're the ones who need you the most. Not--

"I see you finally found the time to join us, Hanegawa-san." Comes the slow, low voice behind you, one made smooth not just with practice and study but also with a lineage used to telling people what to do. You turn around to face Karasawa Enishi, the raven-haired Callidus Rank Leader of the Ninth. Her usually placid features twisted into a scowl.

"How very considerate of you. Maybe next time I'll pop on over to your quarters specifically and wake you up myself in time for class, that way you'll actually be punctual for a change."

In her voice, you could hear the ragged edge of a hoarse throat - it seems she'd been shouting ever since the class started.

How do you respond?

[]Smile apologetically. "My bad, something came up. I'm here now, though. Can you catch me up on what's been done already?"
[]Nod gravely. "Sorry. Aide business. I was going to call as soon as I got your page, but I thought it'd be best to just make my way here as fast as I can."

You nod gravely, while wincing inwardly. Well, as far as reprimands went, this was kind of tame, but the fact that you were getting it still stung. And you highly doubt the Karasawa heiress would actually take time off of her own schedule to give you a morning call. You'd heard enough about her needing to take hours just getting ready for breakfast. Something about brushing that enormous amount of straight black hair a thousand times after being carefully and painstakingly washed strand by strand, or something. But honestly it's probably because she liked to sleep in a lot. You'd put money down on that, definitely.

Anyway. You formally apologize to the Callidus Rank Leader, and use the same formal voice to talk vaguely about what got you help up. Namely, aide-to-the-Warmaster business. You also tell her that you thought about calling her as soon as you heard her page over the PA system, but you decided to head on over to the training hall as fast as you can instead.

This seems to go over well with Enishi, one eyebrow quirking into her impressively-severe fringe. "Yes, well, I'll give you credit for not trying to simper or moan your way out of accountability, Hanegawa." You frown and make to protest here, when she raises a perfectly-manicured hand to stop you. "I didn't say you were going to. It was simply what any other Callidus would have done in your place, Hanegawa, and I was simply expecting it. But you didn't. So, credit where it's deserved."

Ah. That's...alright, you understand now. In any case, you'll do your best to make sure it doesn't happen again.

[1/2]

>>41010436

The raven-haired Karasawa nods. "Apology accepted. I trust you to keep your word, Hanegawa." It's here that she smiles. "One can only coast so far with the Warmaster's favor, after all. Again, I'm not implying that you are, just that if you keep this up, the public perception will grow to suspect that you were appointed this task simply because our Warmaster favors you."

You try to fight your body's natural reaction to blush at this. Of...of course, you tell her. You know that most of all. You want to be important to this Officio, not just as its Warmaster's...companion, but also a more than capable Callidus in her own right.

"Very well. Just making sure." Enishi smiles again, before gesturing towards the sparring Callidus neophytes. "Now, as far as the class goes, you didn't really miss much. I started them off on close combat, get them used to the idea of using a knife. I'm please to report that they're doing quite well for neophytes." A chuckle. "No injuries so far, thank goodness, so we won't need to call in an apothecary just yet."

That's...yeah, that's pretty good. You can even see from here that your students are in fact having fun trying to stab each other to death with blunt knives. Some of them are even trying to do tricks with the knives, with one of them in particular displaying a flair with a butterfly knife and the flourishing movements it requires for the blade to be flipped out.

"We'll go with your lesson plan as soon as the period ends, of course." Enishi speaks up beside you, giving an answer to your own unspoken query. "I am looking forward to learning how the Tenth did things, Callidus-wise. I hear they can be very cutthroat if they want to."

>> ☐ Deculture 07/04/15(Sat)15:01:06 No.41010483

Just like every other Officio then? You resist taking the bait here, nodding in silence as you kept watch on your students instead. The flurry of activity briefly making you forget about the huge cloud hanging over your head - and most likely the rest of the known world, what with Pinky's promise.

And then, apropos of nothing, with her voice low enough that you nearly didn't catch it--

"Is the Warmaster dying, Hanegawa?" Enishi asks, not looking at you, instead staring straight ahead. Her voice completely level, with no hint of glee or deception.

...What. WHAT?

How could she know? It hasn't even been this morning since...!

How do you react?

Because if the definition can be expanded (to, say, female ejaculate), then a Red x Blue x Chiaki threesome sounds like a viable way to prevent Witching Out.

I'll add that this is a bit of a questionable canon territory.

Archival was the Maerorus guy, and he would insist that they cleanse their soul gems as anyone else, with one Seed for the whole deal. When I've been trying to make "corruption" a bit less of a buzzword in the setting, I asked Decu about this, and he said they eat witch flesh instead. Arch then went as far as pming me about that after I've asked Decu.

Now decu has restated that, so who the fuck knows, but our working version is that it's more like a really strong urge right now (enough to screw with emotional state, hence add grief).

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 07/11/15(Sat)10:41:11 No.41153668 Archived

"How...how did you know?" You barely manage to choke out your words around the lump of panic and fear suddenly lodging itself in your throat, a lump you hastily swallow and end up coughing frantically after. A few of the Callidus trainees nearby glance up at your coughing, and you wave their concern away before flashing them a thumbs-up sign. First Chiaki, then Pinky, now this...you're not too sure you can take this much excitement in one day. "Who told you?"

"Hanegawa, please." Enishi still isn't looking at you; instead, she's conspicuously inspecting her nails, brow furrowing underneath her severely-cut fringe as she scrutinizes her expensive-looking manicure. "I'll spare you the false modesty: nothing happens here that I don't know about, or won't know about eventually. Especially when it's about our Warmaster, who...well, I'm afraid to say that I've grown rather fond of." She giggles here, a small flighty sound muffled with the back of a sleeve-encased hand.

...Fond of sempai? You blink at this, before narrowing your own eyes at her. Is she--

"Now YOU spare me the typical possessive girlfriend routine." The Karasawa Callidus pulls out what appears to be a small compact from the depths of her sleeve, and open it with a small click. Now scrutinizing herself on its small, round mirror.

"For the sake of clarity and avoiding any future misunderstandings, I don't have any designs on the Warmaster. I'll flirt and think about tasting that forbidden fruit, but I'm not going to snatch it away from you, Hanegawa. Not when you've already claimed it for yourself." The black-haired woman sniffs here, seemingly offended. "I may be desperate, but I'm not some relationship-ruining hussy just because I want to get laid."

You...well, you didn't really imply that, just--

"I know. But I wanted to get it out of the way, all the same." Enishi closes her compact with a snap, a brief rustling of kimono sleeves and it's out of sight. "Well? Will you tell me the truth, or will you consign me to an afternoon of stalking a certain Eversor with blue hair, a chip on her shoulder and a propensity to run her mouth off to anyone who listens when she gets off her shift?" She finally turns to look at you, a wry smile curling her lips. "...Please reconsider. I won't be able to resist giving Kurumi Erika a couple of good-natured slaps upside the head the moment I get her alone, and I'd rather not court Miki's ire at my touching one of hers again."

...Urgh. It's...well, she's got you dead to rights, here. You don't want more people to know - Kyuubey DID tell you that the less people knew about it, the smoother everything will go - but Enishi might be able to help. Besides, she's a Rank Leader - she'd know about keeping things on the down low to protect the Officio, right?

But...if you talk now, then surely someone'll hear--

"No, they won't," Enishi sighs, the edge of frustration showing in her voice, like a knife's edge gleaming through silk. "I've taken the liberty of projecting a low-grade illusion in front of us. If any of our students are listening - and I'm sure some of them are - all they'll be hearing is me hectoring you about the merits of punctuality. And probably me crying about not getting a date for tonight."

...That's...

"I'm waiting, Hanegawa."

Right. That's...okay. You understand.

You tell her, then. Not everything, certainly not what you saw during your visit, nor what you learned from Manuke - but enough. Enough to drive the point home that the situation itself is...complicated.

"So she isn't really dying, just that it's such a delicate situation that she very well might just be." Enishi lets out another sigh as you finish your carefully-vague explanation, before shaking her head. "That's the Akashic Realm for you. No one really leaves it unscathed. In fact, I daresay our Warmaster got off lucky." Another sniff. "Omegon certainly didn't, poor thing. Only other person I know with enough weight on her shoulders to crush any ten people, and never once asked for help."

The Callidus looks at you, another smile curling her lips. "So, how are you breaking her out, Hanegawa? I assume that's what you have planned, right?"

That's...ngh...

Midori has seen this before in Siberia.she can ask QB to cross-reference the Witch signature from Siberia with what's in Regalia. I know he tried all the sensors and probes he has, but I don't think he tried scanning for a Witch Barrier.

20 minutes was what the original voting rule that came into being at about thread 100 was, but it got bumped down to 15 to speed up threads a little bit and because the extra 5 minutes didn't seem to make much difference.

Generally speaking if a lot of votes are coming in or discussion is pretty heated voting extensions happen.

So, apparently Enishi is ok with breaking Chiaki out of Regalia, simply because she has "grown rather fond of her". Also, is possible that she will uses her powers to help the plan. However, we need to keep in mind that Chiaki isn't the only Golden Weapon user, nor is she the only focus of 'shit happening' in MGNQ. So it's debatable if the Spymaster herself would be here, or if she has other, more immediate things to deal with...

LoL... In this case, she would probably just watch... because shit will hit the fan anyway... or she'd encourage Midori and/or Wendy to help the shit to hit the fan faster...

Whether that would help Chiaki or not is up for grabs...

I'm more worried about Enishi's motives though... I mean... She has a sister in the Second, and a Sister in the First, right? Both of these Officios would have an interest in Chiaki. The Second would probably burn-maim-kill her for being the second coming of the fallen Shieldmaiden...

The First is harder to guess at... but since all of its members are supposedly Witch hybrids (can't remember the proper term), then there's a chance that they'd keep an eye on Chiaki in case she turns into a potential asset, or a potential pain in the ass that needs to be exterminated...

If we ever have any free time with Chiaki, go to a library and find an original English collection of Edgar Allan Poe's poems. Then memorize The Raven.

You stare at Enishi, before shaking your head. Breaking your sempai out of Silent Room Regalia...granted, she's not the first person to suggest that, but it's not on the table just yet. Besides, you're more concerned right now about breaking in, and getting Chiaki something that she desperately needs.

"I see." The Karasawa heiress nods. "That's not quite as suicidal as my first suggestion, but you're still dealing with breaking enough of the Officio laws to get yourself locked in a tiny box for the rest of the forseeable future. Although..." She looks at you slyly here, a fox-like grin on her lips. "...I don't think you're particularly worried about that, aren't you, Hanegawa?"

You look at her squarely and say nothing. Letting your own expression speak for itself.

"Alright, alright, no need to look at me like I just slept with the Warmaster behind your back, or something." Enishi giggles again, before giving you a poke in the ribs with a finger. "Mind, I AM still the Callidus Rank Leader, and the next in line to become the new Head of the Karasawa Family. That makes it doubly illegal for me to even try and help you in this dubious endeavor. But still..."

She turns away, her last words trailing off into silence. When she speaks again, it's with a slow and deliberate tone, the way someone speaks when they're choosing their words carefully.

"I can't tell you how to break into Silent Room Regalia, but I can at least preoccupy Heartcatch Squad long enough for you to pull off whatever you need to do." Enishi begins to examine her nails again. "Thirty minutes, that's the most I can do. And it has to be in the cover of night, otherwise you're looking for a very loud and very messy infiltration."

Thirty minutes? That's...well, that's more than what you were expecting. You're not sure if that'll be long enough for whatever you decide, but that certainly helps.

But how's she going to do that? Is she--

"I don't know how they did it over at the Tenth, Hanegawa, and I find myself not really all that curious, but over here, we're polite enough not to ask our colleagues of the Hidden Blade to reveal their secrets. Especially well-guarded secrets passed down only from Karasawa to Karasawa." Enishi smiles. "That said, they'll be unharmed for the most bit, which I'm sure you were going to ask next."

...Right. Of course. You were just about to ask that. You don't really want anyone getting hurt from all this, you just want to help your sempai.

"Good. I'm sure Cooldown waved her knife about and talked quite a bit about slitting everyone's throats and being done with it, but that's not exactly how we do things here. Not anymore, anyway." Another contemptuous sniff. "We're not Americans. We're not SAVAGES."

Another rustling of silken kimono sleeve, and you find yourself staring at an offered business card. "Take it. My number's on the back. Tell me on the day you're pulling this one off and you won't have to deal with those color-coordinated hipsters for half an hour come nightfall. And they won't remember it either." She nods as you take it. "Just remember, when it all comes down to us getting tortured and Sayaka is putting the thumbscrews in, we never had this conversation."

It looks like you've enlisted Karasawa Enishi to help you in your plans. That'll definitely help.

While there's no way to know if Enishi's actually on our side or not... or her reasons for helping us, might as well go with it.

That said, if we want things to work right, we need to keep up the image that nothing's wrong... and the lessons would give Cooldown more time to scout out that vault and possibly think of ways to break into it.

Plus, being late to lessons, and then leaving early too, would draw more attention than we need from anyone with two brain cells to rub together, especially if they know that Midori's Soul Gem is linked to Chiaki's and what it implies...

Disagree. Leman Russ is the second most clever girl after the Spymaster (according to Wendy). Gavrill Madaraki (sister of the Warmaster of the 13th and Magical Girl Sundowner) is as clever as her sister, but also insane. Eversosrs CAN be clever, but most likely they are too hot-blooded to use their brain at full capacity. And also, Kharn is possible the most dumb of all Eversors seem to be muscleheads, but the notable ones don't strike me as particularly stupid.

Kharn's crazy, but she's not stupid, no matter how you look at it. Someone stupid doesn't survive as long as she did. If she was just plain stupid, she'd have just killed Midori in the Siberia arc, instead of actually listening to her after being bitch-slapped.

Then there's Sayaka, an idealist, sure, but definitely not dumb... and anyone calling Kyouko dumb deserves to be slapped lol...

Plus, I doubt QB wants complete idiots for his top Eversors...

Rump ragnaröked Midorifag detected. Activate the Dan Kim filters. All waifus are shit. Waifufaggotry in general is for desperate thirsty motherfuckers. Midori a shit. Wendy a shit. Sayaka is a beast to be tamed, then let go.
Kyuubey a final boss of the Chiaki harem. Kyoko is the easiest of them all.
Come to think of it, we haven't seen our little adopted railgun sister for quite a while.

You can't help it. You went into this expecting nothing but the worst - instead, you have the Callidus Rank Leader of the Ninth actually volunteering to stick out her neck for you. Risking life and career - all to help you save Chiaki from the agonizing death she's trapped in. Simply because you decided to be honest rather than lie outright.

So you let yourself go and hug her. Throwing your arms around the taller, softer woman with the glare that rivalled your Sempai's in both intensity and intent, made much more effective by her severely-cut fringe. Briefly you feel her freeze up at the contact, before you feel her sleeved hand gingerly pat you on the back, in lieu of returning the embrace. ...Haha, she's really awkward when it comes to physical contact, huh?

"It's...not something I particularly indulge in, especially with colleagues. But fine, just this once." The Karasawa offspring squeaks out, and you can't help but giggle and squeeze her tighter at that. The hand patting your back quickly increases in pace, feeling less of a gesture of camaraderie and more of tapping out while being locked in a particularly painful submission hold. You giggle again, and finally let her go.

She's...she's not really as bad as people make her out to be. She'll get someone to call her own yet, for sure!

"W-who died and made you Miss Lonelyhearts?!" Enishi laughs here, a forced laugh, clearly trying to camouflage her surprise at your prediction. "Mind, that's...that's very nice of you to say, Hanegawa, but you shouldn't tell people things like that just because you're grateful, you know? That sets a very awful precedent of getting their hopes up for nothing."

...You're not trying to do that! It's just...you know she'll find someone to love her! You just know she would!

Then again... I probably shouldn't... If I get into pervy write-ups... it's only a matter of time until I find a way to get tentacles in...

i don't really mind telling kyuubey about the "refocusing chiakis existence" plan as i think he will bite but telling him about the core element as a test is very risky.

"That's...alright, alright, no need to shout, you'll break through the illusion and cause dissonance." Enishi laughs again. "And don't misunderstand me. I'm not trying to score any points with anyone. It's just...well, it's our Warmaster." She shrugs. "Helping her when she needs it - it's only the decent thing to do, right?"

You nod. Kyuubey's trying to help her too, you realize that yourself, just that his kind of help--

"He's just playing it safe. But I agree, it's going to do much worse than good. Good luck trying to convince him of that, though."

Right. That's...that's going to be an ordeal of its own, really.

Anyway, er. Is it okay if you ask Enishi something? You look at her with an apologetic look on your face. It's probably something that'll make her mad, but you just have to ask. Otherwise--

"Otherwise you'll spend the rest of the day wondering if you did." It's here that Enishi sighs again, before flipping her mass of perfectly-long, perfectly-black hair over her shoulder with a hand, strangely reminiscent of your sempai back when she was sporting the ponytail. "I'll do you one better: what I use is actually a combination of expensive shampoos along with a herbal mix that--"

Is the lonely virgin thing a complete act or what?

Enishi falls silent here, both her eyes slowly opening to look at you. It takes her a few moments to actually speak, and when she does, it's with genuine awe in her voice. Her eyes, usually narrowed, are now wide-eyed astonishment.

"...What gave it away?" The Karasawa Callidus shakes her head in disbelief. "I'm...Hanegawa, this is serious. I never thought I'd ever be found out - no one ever came close to seeing through me. No one except you."

She grabs both your hands with her own, desperation clear in her voice. "Hanegawa, how...? Tell me what I did wrong! Please!"

I have no words, seriously. I simply didn't see this one coming, at all. Let's not admit to guessing though. Hell, with the option being there, maybe Midori really did notice IC, or had subconscious suspicions.

Plus, appearing professional might score us some more points, Enishi doesn't seem to like flustered behavior and all that if her earlier reaction to the late arrival was any indication...

I'd rather we didn't include anybody that only appeared outside the main threads if possible. There's enough characters just going by the main threads. And the write-up boom that happened since the last pic, and some authors might end up feeling left out if it turns out there's not enough room for their characters along with everyone else. And it would crowd it with people most of the fandom doesn't even recognize, and would steal space from their favorite characters. ~~This, of course, includes me, as nobody from my stuff has actually appeared in the main thread in anything more significant than a namedrop.~~

I had a better argument than this prepared, but I lost it somewhere. Anyway just do what you yourself want to do. If you want to go through the extra effort of including write-up characters, that's fine, too.

I wouldn't quite blame it on her, at least not alone, it's the whole situation with some being more equal than others.

It was also really blatant at the time that Decu was being forced into it and didn't want to do it at all.

Later on, a thing happened where Decu mentioned that there is for example zero issue with the canonicity of Malal's things so far, and someone dared him to make it canon, and he was like "okay it's canon faggot".

Then something happened behind the curtain, and this is apparently why Malal doesn't go to the channel anymore.

It leaves a really bitter aftertaste, because Malal is a pretty cool guy.

Imagination!

I was going to basically sit this out, but I feel this point deserves clarity at least - Malal didn't WANT to be canon again (because it requires adhering to an ever-shifting set of facts and it was making it hard for him to tell the story he wanted to tell) and he felt like he was being forced into it all of a sudden. The whole kerfuffle freaked him out so bad he just decided not to go back, because conflict isn't something he handles well.

The rest came about mostly because there were something like fifteen writers with almost no supervision doing whatever they wanted, nobody was being informed as to what was going on, there were basically entirely different factions completely out of touch with one another, and we just needed to do some sweeping organization so the setting didn't turn into a complete clusterfuck. We tried to take care of it in a way that made sure the newly non-canon writers would still get attention in threads and be easily-accessible for the people that enjoyed their work.

People can blame me or whatever, but it was what it was.

People are gonna find someone to blame no matter what you, or anyone says, regardless of logic.

Some people will love the write-ups, canon or otherwise, because they expand on an interesting setting, making it more rich, or even just because they give more content. Kind of like when you play a good game, and want to see more of it, and end up reading fanfiction, looking up fan-art, etc...

Other people will hate write-ups, or won't care about them, because the quest is all they care about...

Ultimately, there will always be SOME kind of conflict. Whether it's about write-ups, stupid decisions, waifus, or whatever.

She...Enishi's not being sarcastic, is she? Is she for real? She's not just doing this to make a fool out of you or something, right?

You stare into those wide-open crimson eyes, and very slowly realize the truth. The truth that you had unwittingly stumbled into in a moment of grateful, relieved kindness.

As your sempai would have cheerfully grumbled out in this exact same situation - The FUCK?

"I, ah, er..." You find yourself suddenly at a loss for words, before finally managing them after desperately kicking your brain for anything. ...Well, being honest got her to help, you might as well try it here, right? "It...it was really subtle, Karasawa-sempai, but I think you were just exaggerating your relationship needs a bit too much! Maybe turn it down a couple of notches, and then you'll be perfect...!"

"Relationship needs...?" Enishi echoes, seemingly shellshocked at this. "Turn it down a couple of notches...? I... I see!" The Callidus nods animatedly. "I'll definitely take note of this for next time!"

You...well, you're happy for her, and happy that you managed to help out. Just...why would she want to pretend to be a lonely virgin in the first place? Why would anyone?!

You don't ask that, of course. You don't really trust yourself to handle any more surprises right now. Instead, you tell her what you think she wants to hear, and she eats it up readily enough. Enough that she actually gives you the rest of the lesson off, for being such a big help and...well, 'having bigger fish to fry', as she put it. She told the class a moment later, and this got you smiling wider, as the entire class expressed their collective displeasure at your early departure. You never thought you'd hear anyone except your sempai being sad about you leaving, but there it is.

You made your exit soon after apologizing wholeheartedly and bowing to your students a couple of times. Completely missing Enishi's half-choked sob of misery that erupted the moment you left the training hall. ...Well, even if you did catch it, you were too busy feeling like a million dollars after what happened to think anything of it.

Maybe things are finally looking up! Maybe, just maybe, things will work out the way they're supposed to for once, and...!

"Excuse me?" A voice suddenly speaks up behind you, making you freeze despite its warm, smooth tones and crystal-clear enunciation.

A sharply resonant voice, tugging at your memories, scraping at your conscience. A voice that you never thought you'd hear before.

An idol's voice. An idol with long brown hair and eyes the color of melted chocolate. A voice that you've heard moan in pleasure and then scream in terror in the space of an hour. Eyes that you'd personally seen display a cascade of emotions, from love to hate and finally to stark fear - all in the span of a single night.

"I'm sorry, I'm a bit lost at the moment, but would you know where I can find Chiaki Matsuda-san here? I'm told she's an officer of sorts here, so..."

You turn to behold none other than Minase Iori before you, dressed rather smartly - businesslike, almost, like she's popping in for a walk-in interview. Looking completely nothing like the girl you nearly had raped a couple of lifetimes ago - and at the same time reminding you of that very same night as if it was just yesterday.

The night you met Chiaki, at the same night that you've officially hit the lowest, most absolutely disgusting point of your life.

What...

What is she doing here?

How do you react?

Not because it's Iori, but because Chiaki's situation is NEED TO KNOW ONLY!

Wtf... Iori isn't even an MG, and if CHIAKI wouldn't involve her in MG crap, Midori sure as fuck won't involve her in something that's classified even inside the Officio itself.

When it comes to official Officio business which includes the possible re-emergence of Homusatan, aka the thing that the Incubators as a whole fear more than even Faust and want it killed in horrible ways...

Well, I doubt they'd give a fuck about Iori if we'd try to use her like that. Plus, QB would probably think that she's aiding for her own free will considering her previous entanglement and her obvious attachment to Chiaki.

She's literally worth nothing...

That's also not mentioning that Midori wouldn't think of something like that and forcing her to do it is kinda bullshit.

Enishi is a desperate virgin, and miserable about it. Remember when NECO published a piece about Enishi? Enishi broke down on the spot.

She's been trying to hide it, even if it means she has to lie through her teeth to a junior after said (green-haired) junior had seen right through her "I am NOT a desperate virgin" act.

It's clearly not going very well for her.

I think the wiki is actually mostly done (got a few issues with layout though, there is a lot of cool stuff that the visitor won't find unless he searches for it). So I don't think we need any more help, really.

Unless you want to add minor characters that is, making a character page actually takes quite a bit of research. Or make thread summaries - god help you if you actually intend to do that.

Oh yeah, I have been doing a pnp thing and din't really get any feedback on even framework, I could use help with those walls of text - but that could be because it's really shit right now, the math in particular, so no one wants to read through it yet.

Not sure of thread summaries, but Character pages was something I was thinking of helping with, at least the ones that actually appear in the main quest if nothing else.

That and trying to update some of the existing pages to cover more recent events. From what I've seen there are a lot of character pages that don't cover stuff that happened even half a year ago real time wise...

See, that is the wrong part of the genre. You might think this is Magic Burst, but it's explicitly not.

This is noir, you know. If anything, you get the post-wish traumatic stress. Name a character in MGNQ for whom his wish actually does something.

"save meduka" was definitely not Chiaki's wish in the sense it would in MB.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 07/12/15(Sun)10:47:22 No.41176136 Archived

Relax. Just...just relax, you tell yourself, repeating it over and over in your mind like a mantra.

It's okay. You're okay.

Exerting every ounce of will left in your body not to visibly react to the presence of the person in front of you.

You did it before. You managed to keep it together the first time you saw her again.

It doesn't matter that you were with Kyoko and disguised then, it still counts. You can do this.

You can talk to the person you threw to the wolves without turning into a wreck.

"Hello?" The brown-haired idol tries again, seemingly slightly put off by your immediate lack of response. "I apologize if I'm interrupting anything, but I really just need directions. As soon as I get them I can be out of your hair, and--"

You shake your head, finally managing to breathe again. "I...it's alright. Sorry. It's...it's been quite the busy morning." You put on an apologetic smile that you also hoped looked tired, or at the very least fatigued - which you actually are besides everything else, so you didn't need to fake that too hard.

Iori's smile immediately turns apologetic as well, the sympathy in her eyes genuine enough to make your insides clench in and twist up. "Oh, I see. Well, I can definitely emphatize, I've had those kinhjtd of mornings before." She shakes her head, a sigh leaving soft lips tastefully covered in a rather conservative shade of lipstick, in contrast to your own dry ones that you didn't even have time to smear lipgloss over. "A hectic pace right off the bat, of meetings and recordings and guest appearances. It's all you could do not to collapse facefirst into your food during lunch!"

You nod, politely giggling at the idol's slightly awkward attempt at humor. Good, good. Conversation is good. Don't give her any time to look at you too closely. You're just a stranger, another forgettable employee inside the office building she let herself into. ...Add to that, how the heck did she get here, anyway? Surely someone should've at least kept her at the lobby downstairs, or at the very least escorted her around...?

No time to think about now, as the conversation turns back again to your sempai. The idol seems to be really eager to see her again, and it's here that you smile apologetically at her once more when you're quizzed about her location again.

"I'm....I'm really sorry, but I really can't help you. Chiaki Matsuda-san is indisposed at the moment, and we've been left specific instructions that she isn't to be disturbed."

That...well, that makes your sempai sound cold, but it's not like Chiaki's going to win Miss Congeniality anytime soon. That said, she's been getting better at the whole 'treat other people like human beings' thing - but that's neither here nor there. She's in no shape to receive any guests, and that should be justification enough. You don't need to feel guilty for that - you have enough on your plate already.

But while it should have been enough for any prospective visitor to accept, Iori seems to have other plans.

"That's...well, no, I apologize, but that's not good enough." She shakes her head. "Chiaki-san and I have worked together in the past, and I know how she can be a bit...standoffish about certain things, but I know she'll be glad to receive me today."

Iori nods to herself, as if making up her mind to stay the course. "I need to talk to her about something, and it's really quite urgent, so please--"

And it's there that you see it. A nervous tic, only recently acquired, the single flaw in her confident body language.

Her hands coming together at her front, thumb and forefinger of the right hand twisting what looks like a silver ring on her left middle finger. A subtle, tasteful little thing with a glowing garnet jewel set into the metal.

...That's...no. She couldn't have...

How do you respond?

Telling her the truth is OUT OF THE F'N QUESTION.

Even if she contracted, she's still a newb MG with no involvement and the more people that know a secret, the harder it is to keep.

Not to mention that we have no idea what Officio she might be a part of. Didn't QB promise to Chiaki to not contract Iori? Midori doesn't know this, but she would know that he has something of a policy about people that actually have proper lives from what previous threads showed...

So that being said...

It's not certain yet if she actually became a meguca or not. The ring might be a fake, modeled after the real things as a show of support and whatnot...

Still... as a Callidus, wouldn't Midori be able to check if another girl is a meguca or not?

As for Iori's possible rank... that could depend... Her attitude would leave her as a good Eversor, though her admiration of Chiaki might lead to her becoming a Vindicare... it depends on the Wish as well...

...

I just realized something...

Decu, in an earlier thread, said that we'd have the opportunity to recruit a new Cullexus...

Then don't turn her away.

Use her to our advantage somehow. Tell her just enough that you don't give away anything crucial, say all of this is strictly on a need-to-know basis, and insist that you have a plan to save her. Ask for her cooperation and tell her that, if all goes well, as Warmaster's aide, you guarantee that she can talk to her.

Probably even stupider, but she's not going to be dissuaded. Best we can hope for is distracted or redirected.

That's not really a good idea. Even if she's contracted, she's still a complete newb, not to mention that we have no idea what she can or can't do, not to mention that finding out would waste precious time.

Sending her to get taken care of by other people helps us by having her act as distraction while we do our job.

Also, I'm pretty sure Midori would want to keep away from Iori. There's always a chance that she might be recognized, and if Iori became a meguca, that would be even worse than normal considering the effects of negative emotions on the Soul Gem and stuff.

But the truck has a personal (and difficult) connection to the Warmaster and wouldn't take "no" for an answer, as she just demonstrated. Hell, considering what she knows of Chiaki, she's expecting to be allowed an audience at least. And Chiaki would probably have given her one.

You need to either read more or get some social skills. Hell, probably both. It's not that hard, you know.
But seeing as you have completely no experience with conversations, and lack general knowledge to read between the lines within a context (and catch the giant fucking hint at the end of it), I'll throw you a bone:

Enishi is a virgin and she's reduced to tears everytime she's reminded of this.
She tries to hide this but fails.
She is so desperate for a boyfriend that everyone can tell.
When Midori asked her whether the "desperate virgin thing was an act" after an otherwise respectable talk, it was like a slap in the face for Enishi. She put on her pokerface and lied through her teeth. Midori THEN tells her to "tone it down a few notches" because it's not a very good act.

Decu punctuates Enishi's misery by writing that she fails to hold back a sob as Midori leaves the classroom.

That last bit should tell you enough.

She could use her Wish to help Chiaki. Even in MGNQ, Wishes should be serious business, and with what we learned from Manuke earlier, we could probably come up with a Wish that could help Chiaki at least to an extent...

Still, that would be a Wish that's not made for one's self, and with unknown effects... Hell knows what kind of MG would result from something like that, or how long she'd last.

Urgh. Looks like she's not going to give up that easily no matter what you say - barring you telling her everything, that is. You're familiar with her type - the tough customer who knows what they want and will fight to get it, even if it's bordering on the unreasonable. She's being polite about it for now, and you're thankful for that, but you also know that it's only a matter of time before that changes for the worse.

No doubt she wouldn't be too shy to point out any misdirection or delaying tactics either - Iori's young, but she's definitely not the naive type. If anything, the idol feels like she's been through a lot for her age, an old hand at cutting through red tape, in the same way your sempai is in ending fights quickly with a gun in her hand.

Telling her the truth, of course, is out of the question. So you pick what you think is the safest option right now. ...It's probably also the laziest and the most inconsiderate, but you have to make do with what you have.

"...Alright, then." You force yourself to smile again. "I'll give my direct superior a call and see what we can do. Please excuse me." You pull out your smartphone from your jacket pocket and make to dial, when you realize with a cold start the mistake you nearly made - and correct it immediately. "Sorry, I didn't catch your name, Miss...?"

Iori blinks at you in frank surprise, momentarily stunned before managing to rally with a smile. "I...um, yes, of course. Minase Iori, formerly of 765 Productions, currently with 2020 Productions." Probably wasn't used to strangers not knowing her name, what with her being a celebrity and everything.

"Minase-san." You repeat her last name with a smile, before nodding. "Alright. Let me just make that call." And with that, you turn away and dial Sayaka's number. Holding up the device to your ear at the same time that you wipe your brow free of the cold sweat that had been breaking out there.

Decu can very easily change that. The story can always change according to the author wishes. The script is not set in stone. You are being unreasonable with your admiration for Sailor Moon.

Come on, come on, you silently plead as the phone on the other end rings twice, three times, then four. You heave a sigh of relief as Sayaka picks up on the fifth, cursing and grumbling all the while.

"Jesus Christ, are you serious? ANOTHER pile of paperwork I need to fucking handle? No way. No fucking way. I refuse to believe Murderface dealt with all this and didn't put a bullet through her brain the first day. Fuck." A rustle of paper, and the blue-haired Eversor's voice finally comes on much more clearly, as if she'd just picked the phone off the table just now. "...Miki here. Sorry about that, Midori. This is just--FUCK."

N-no, no, it's okay, you tell her. You've heard enough from your sempai too, about being buried under so much paperwork that death looked more like a release than a punishment with each pile she put away.

"It's just...there's so fucking much. And with Mami somewhere up in the fucking Moon, I'm handling EVERYTHING. Just...fuck." Sayaka sighs the expletive instead of shouting it this time, the sound of a slowly-eroding sanity clear in her voice. "Anyway. What are you calling for?"

A prickling at the back of your neck tells you the last thing you want to hear: Minase Iori is actually, actively listening to you right now.

How do you tell Sayaka about the situation?

[]Be direct. Minase Iori's here, she's looking for Chiaki, and she's not going to take no for an answer.
[]Be vague. Chiaki-san has a visitor, and it's very urgent.

I had a bad week. First our office department finds out our cunt of a manager hid the fact that he's dyslexic ever snce he came to work here and never bothered reading ANYTHING handed to him. This explains years of disgusting behaviour that finally came to a head in front of the CEO.

Then just today, I had to deal with the vapid GRRL GAMER girlfriend of my buddy who matched the prevalent stereotype SO UNBELIEVABLY WELL she actually fucking said, verbatim, "I'm such a nerd" because she caught an extremely simple Legend of Zelda joke. While her boyfriend's underlying joke about inventory management in RPGs went right past her.
I felt like I was in some sitcom that tried to be the new The Big Bang Theory. That post and the one in the last thread, and the identical one in this thread, was like living that nightmare all over again.

You decide to be direct about it, even with Iori listening to you. You figure that she'll appreciate it instead of you talking around her. Sayaka also sounds like she's way past that kind of bullshit, too, and would probably prefer that you give the bad news to her straight rather than beating around the bush about it.

"Minase Iori-san is here," You tell her. "She's looking for semp--er, Chiaki-san, and she's not going to take no for an answer."

A pause, and then a murmured curse. "Minase Iori? ...Fuck. That's, that's just perfect, isn't it." You hear Sayaka sigh through clenched teeth, before the rustling of paper overtakes everything else. A moment later and you hear her speak again. "Alright, alright, I think...I think I know what to do. Can you, uh, can you keep her busy for me for a couple of minutes? I just need to finish this pile, and then I'll take her off your hands myself."

"Ah." is the only reply you can manage at this moment. Keep...keep her busy? Just...how do you even do that? Give her a guided tour or something? That's not even going to help--

"I know, I know. I know what's going on, I know your history with her, and I know this is the last thing you need. But just..." Sayaka sighs again, frustration more than evident in that tense exhalation, before she continues. "...Just do this for me, alright? Find some way to keep her waiting for a while until I can get out of here." A pause. "Hey, why not have her visit Kyoko? I remember the both of them hitting it off, that'd occupy her long enough for me to break out of here and get to her. That way you can tell me how she's doing too."

But...but what if Iori asks about your sempai? You flirt with the idol overhearing this, but you don't care. Not right now, at least.

What's the official answer that you can give to that question? You can't keep dodging Iori's questions forever. You doubt you'd be able to dodge the first one, at that.

"Just tell her as much as you can without telling her everything." Sayaka answers a moment later. "Something about Murderface needing to be quarantined because of a previous mission. If she asks for more details, tell her it's classified. If she asks to be taken to Murderface, refuse, and say that it's off-limits to non-employees. Just keep telling her that she's in no particular danger at the moment, but she does need to stay in isolation for a while. I'll fill in the rest when I get to her."

Urgh. And you were hoping to focus on getting Chiaki out of there first before anything else. Now it looks like you need to play babysitter for a while, first.

How do you respond?

[]No deal. You have more important things to do than to show an idol around. Deal with this, Acting Warmaster.
[]Accept. You'll do it, but she'll owe you a favor for this.

This avoids suspicion from Sayaka, and having her owe us a favor might actually come in handy later down the line, even if it's for something as small as buying enough time to get her to listen to an explanation or something...

Plus, it's only a few minutes, it's not a huge delay and Midori got out of Callidus class a LOT sooner than what was expected, so if anything, we're ahead of schedule.

I think that, when we arrive at the infirmary, we need to use an illusion to quickly inform Kyouko that she can´t says anything about Chiaki´s condition or the mission details. Also, it would be wise to alter our features with illusion magic (like different eyes color, bigger nose, smaller mouth, things like that) to be able to justify that "maybe we look like that girl who helped the rapist, but we are not her"

1) Kyouko's not that dumb... she knows that the Akashic realm is classified to hell and back, along with Chiaki's condition.

2) Iori already saw Midori, if her features change, Iori would wonder why it happened, and since she's aware of magic, she won't just think that she saw things. Trying something like that now would just draw attention to the fact that there's something to hide in the first place.

It depends on what happens, and how much time Midori will actually spend around her. Also, odds are that she's more likely to recognize Midori from NECO's little snap-shot of her kiss with Chiaki on their date that one time rather than from the time of the rape.

Midori might stand out as the only other girl present there, but odds are that Iori's mind was much more focused on the guys that nearly raped her before getting Vindicare makeovers.

So yeah, if it happens, I expect that Iori will first recognize Midori as Chiaki's girlfriend rather than that girl that got her kneecaps shot out way back when.

...Alright. Alright, fine. You'll do it. But she'll...she'll owe you a favor for this. It's only fair.

Sayaka is quiet for what seems like the longest time. When she finally speaks, her voice is tight, guarded. "I...I wasn't aware that carrying out a direct order from an acting Warmaster necessitates the barter of favors, Hanegawa."

You remain silent here, despite the fact that the menace in Sayaka's voice is enough to turn your legs into jelly and your grip on your phone to turn into a white-knuckled death hold. A few moments later and your patience is rewarded with another sigh, and the Eversor's resigned capitulation. "But okay. That's...I know you have other stuff going on, so...sure. A favor. You got it. Just...just don't call it in for anything stupid, alright?"

No guarantees, but you'll see what you can do, you reply as casually as you can despite the tidal wave of elation washing over you. This...you actually managed to twist Sayaka's arm enough to grant you a favor you can call in for virtually anything. You don't know what it'll be for right now, but you know it's going to be indispensable when it comes to help your sempai.

Even with shit being continuously sent your way, you still know how to turn it into a positive. Granted, you did twist Sayaka's arm into it, and you'll probably pay for it in the long run, but...still. Negative into positives. Bad into good. Just like how Miracle Midori would.

"So, where is Chiaki-san, then?" Iori asks as you put away your phone and turn back to face her. While she's still being polite.about things, you do see that your phone conversation had tried her patience a bit, making the smiling idol somewhat prickly.

"Are you going to take me to her now, or are you going to lead me around in circles hoping to get me discouraged? Because if it's the latter, then with all due respect, don't. I despise being lied to, more than I despite needlessly wasting time."

The idol makes to cross her arms over her chest, as if to fully push home her current state of frustration in the matter - until her eyes flick over to the front of your jacket, stopping her cold. Her arms suddenly dropping to her sides instead.

...Weird. Anyway, you decide to be honest here - or at least, as honest as you can be under the circumstances. "No, I can't take you to Chiaki-san right now, Minase-san." She frowns here, and makes to open her mouth to protest, when you hold up a hand. "Not right now. But my direct superior has told me to take you to see someone else first. After that, she'll come around to take you where you need to be, personally."

The idol blinks at this. "Someone else? But..." She narrows her eyes here. "Look, I told you. If you're just trying to stall for time here, it's not going to work, and--"

You nod, smiling. "It IS stalling for time, Minase-san, but only for until my direct superior can get here. She'll be the one to attend to you in regards to Chiaki-san. But before that, I'm instructed to take you to someone else, first."

"..." Iori's frown deepens into something close to a scowl. "At least you're being honest about it, but why do we need to wait for your direct superior? Cant' you just lead me to Chiaki-san on your own? Or if you really can't, then just tell me where she is and I'll find my way around, myself."

If we say it's classified, then we can't talk about it, so she can just shove her questions. Plus, it could be Warmaster shit, Iori knows that Chiaki's the Warmaster, so she can assume that Chiaki will get caught in stuff that other girls can't talk about.

Not talking about it will only leave her with uncertainty. For all she knows, the 'classified reason' could even be a super-top-secret meeting, or that Chiaki's on a secret assignment and she can't be visited period but our direct superior can contact her if it's warranted or something.

Midori caught Iori fiddling with a ring that looks suspiciously like a soul gem ring. It's entirely possible a contract has already happened.

I do remember Chiaki telling her explicitly to avoid the fuck out of mutant cats, though, and that being a Magical Girl is a terrible fucking life. Iori's got a couple of psychological cracks, but we've had no evidence that she holds Chiaki's advice in anything but the highest regard.

My working guess is that she's thinking about it regardless, probably because an Incubator has approached her, and is wearing that ring because she's seen something similar in MG media, and wants to use Chiaki as her guidance councilor on the subject.

Remember, Kyuubey was surprised and put off by the fact that Iori could see him without him wanting to. I doubt that's gone unnoticed by other Incubators. Jyuubey, probably? As a way to twist the knife on Chiaki for dickbutt?

You decide to conceal the truth from Iori for now. Somehow, you have the feeling that telling her the truncated version of your sempai's fate would only serve to incense her insistence to see Chiaki to the point of obnoxiousness.

Worst case scenario would be Iori suddenly making a scene, before running off to try and find Chiaki herself. This would then result in the idol seeing something she wasn't supposed to be seeing, and...well, you just don't want to have to tell your sempai that one of her idol friends got deemed a security risk while she was indisposed, and was summarily taken care of. Probably with her brains being splattered all over the wall, or something.

So no. You don't tell her anything, only that the answer to her question is classified, and that you're not at liberty to discuss such matters yourself. Your direct superior will do so when she finally arrives.

"..." For the briefest of moments, you feel tension rising inside the idol, her eyes flashing underneath her furrowed brow - but it dies as soon as it flares up, leaving you with a sudden and strange sensation of being empty. If Iori noticed this, she doesn't show it, instead heaving a heavy, bereaved sigh. "Fine. I'll concede for now, and play along. If you say it's classified, then I can't force you to tell me. The last thing I want is to get someone in trouble for simply doing their job."

...Well. She's...being really understanding about this.

"Don't get me wrong, I'm completely annoyed that that term - 'classified' - has followed me all the way over from my new production agency." Iori explains, fingers hooking in midair to emphasize the quotation marks. "But I know it's there for a reason, and not used at all frivolously. This seems to be the same case here, but instead of sales figures, merchandising ideas and song choreography, it's...well, this." She shrugs.

You already said you can't talk about things, you say, your own frustration beginning to peak as well. Not even a minute ago--

I actually did consider this. However, I'm hoping that between the fact that Iori was warned rather colorfully by Chiaki about mutant cats and MG life, along with the fact that she KNOWS that MGs from different Officios get into fights, that she wouldn't contract with an Incubator from a different Officio.

After all, she'd have to realize that if she did that, there's a chance she might end up on a mission where she'd be on the wrong side of Chiaki, thus placing her friend in a very bad situation.

Chiaki and her made up during the Ruri mission, and agreed to be friends. Even Iori herself realized that she was really exceedingly lonely, so friends was, in her words, 'all she really wanted'.

That said, the switch in production companies is new information and suggests something else happened. She may be in a corner regardless, hence why she wants to call on Chiaki so personally.

I don't think she is. Iori's pretty sharp, she's mainly screwed up in the head due to the combination of her work and her loneliness. I don't think that Chiaki ever explained the entire Officio system to her, though, so she might not 'get' that different mutant cats run different Officios, and blah blah you can finish that logical line of thought.

She's got a lot of reasons to be at least sniffing things out, and not a lot of reasons, besides Chiaki's word, to be avoiding it. But Chiaki's both her crush and her most unbiased subject matter expert so I still think it's most probable she's at QB Heavy for advice first and foremost.

We can dance around Iori all we want once Chiaki's back at the helm lol. Why don't people get this? The sooner we work around all the obstacles and get Chiaki fixed, the sooner we can play our favorite gun totting MG murder-hobo.

Letting Iori ask a question can result in more developments, which can slow things down even more.

Just one question, then, you tell her. One question, that's all she gets.

Iori smiles again, for the first time ever since you started the call, her face brightening considerably. "Ah, so, then--"

And you reserve the right not to answer it if you feel it's too specific.

The light in her eyes dim slightly. Just the slightest bit. "Well, I suppose I can work with that." You can see the frown from earlier trying to replace the brittle smile on her lips, and it's almost winning. "So, about the question--"

And she can ask it while you walk to where you're supposed to be taking her first, you cut her off for the third time, before making for the direction of the sick bay. Where Kyoko would be laid up and recovering.

"Alright. ALRIGHT. For goodness' sake, alright!" Iori snaps, stomping a heel-clad foot on the marble-tiled floor before stalking forward sulkily. "Yes, whatever you like! Just please answer my question, so I don't...I don't have to worry myself sick about her!"

You stop in your tracks and whirl around at this outburst. Freezing as you see the tears glistening in Iori's fury-narrowed eyes.

This...this isn't a social visit, is it? This isn't just a sudden need to visit Chiaki, it's something more?

The tearful idol nods. "...Lately, I've...I've been having dreams. Dreams about Chiaki-san. And usually I just..." She reaches up to dab carefully at her eyes with white silk napkin embroidered with her family seal. "I just write them off as nothing. But lately they've been following a trend, and they've been so real that sometimes I don't know if I'm actually awake, or still sleeping." She lets out a small, helpless giggle here, before wiping her eyes again.

Dreams. That's...not really all that good. It could just be stress, but...

You shake your head, and smile at her as comfortingly as you can. You understand, you tell her. She can ask her question now, and you'll answer as best you could.

Iori smiles at this through her tears, wiping them away before twisting the ring around her finger once more. "Thank you. I...I'm sorry if I'm making a scene here, it's just, this has been on my mind a whole lot, and it just won't go away no matter what I do." She sniffs here, before blowing her nose delicately onto her napkin. "A-anyway, um. My question is....well, it's about our first meeting. Chiaki-san and I. She was hired by my agency to protect me from some...some undesirables."

You nod, feeling a sick, cold sensation worm its way through you guts. You silently gesture for her to continue.

"From...from what I remember, during that night, I was...I was nearly taken advantage of. The men who attacked me...they had a Magical Girl with her." She looks up at you, her face locked in a determined scowl despite the obvious fear in her eyes, the trepidation in her words. "I can't see her face, but I know it's her. And I keep dreaming of her. Night after night after night, ever since last week."

...And what happens during that dream? You prompt her, your own voice sounding as dry and as weak as it felt.

"...Every time, she kills Chiaki-san. She kills her with a knife through her heart, stabbing her from the back. And every single night, it looks more and more real that it doesn't feel like a dream anymore. It feels like a memory."

That's...

"But it's silly, right?" Iori looks up at you, smiling. "Chiaki-san...it takes so much more than that to even hurt her a little bit. Right?"

It would require Midori to be somekind of brainwashed secret agent then considering we have access to her thoughts right here and she is obviously not planning to backstab Chiaki.

Unless ofcourse its somekind of metaphor. Like if for example allowing Chiaki to keep all her memories will mean she won't be Chiaki-Chiaki but more Homura-Chiaki or somesuch.

In that case, this could be a hint that taking the DEagle to Chiaki could have consequences, and the backstabbing by Midori will be totally accidental.

It's been a long time since I've caught up to a thread before it ended, and not just because of the hiatus. And since Wendy's here too, I'll ask something I asked in a previous thread when the most authoritative person present was probably Attarou.

Decu mentioned Maerous needing to eat witch flesh or meguca flesh on his ask.fm. If Chiaki gets to that point, do you think Sayaka, with her crazy regeneration powers, would be willing to help out with that? Or is there some sort of magical bullshit that would prevent flesh eaten by a Maerous from regenerating?

While this falls more into Decu's purview I get the impression that Sayaka would be much more likely to murder us for being a horrible witch abomination.

That said, I'm sure there are people that would indulge us. Also worth noting, unless I'm mistake, absorbing soul gems is also an option.

After all, executing enemy megucas ain't that big of a deal, and eating a Soul Gem in private is easier than trying to make a steak out of an MG.

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 07/15/15(Wed)10:33:08 No.41238911 Archived

A couple of lifetimes ago - your life, basically, before your sempai shot her way through your kneecaps and grumbled her way into your heart - you never believed in karma. You never believed that someone's past would come back to haunt them.

People - especially Magical Girls - get away with everything. You've seen it happen. You knew those people, worked with them, ate with them, did your best not to attract their attention during meetings. Each and every one of them, eyes glittering and lips sneering with the satisfaction of doing unspeakable things that should have, by rights, seen them either dead or incarcerated. Each one of them confident, even smug, that they were living a life free of the legal, moral and ethical constraints normally imposed upon the living world. Sure, they needed to ascribe to another - their Incubator's - but all that took was obedience, not restraint. Not the way that the rest of the world had to fall in line with.

There was the guilt at first, though. Everyone did. They called it 'The Wall'. Guilt from their first kill, their first assignments, resurfacing at the least opportune time. Eversors screaming and crying from their deployments, caked with blood and gore, wailing barely-coherent confessions and apologies to the sky. Callidus breaking down in the middle of their assignments, turning their weapons upon themselves when the deceit became too much to bear, when they got too close to their targets. Vindicares locking themselves in their quarters, withdrawing from everyone, becoming mumbling recluses talking to empty air, clutching their weapons in their hands. Culexus, Vanus, Venenum - no matter what rank, everyone suffered it. Everyone went through it. And everyone - except you - got over it.

It wasn't that they were monsters, although you've had the dubious pleasure of knowing a few who deserved such a title. Do anything unspeakable long enough and it loses its edge. You become 'acclimatized', as your Incubator put it. It stops becoming taboo. It becomes as mundane and as tedious as...as paperwork. Read, sign, stamp. Find, murder, dispose.

Some girls arrive at the wall and slowly but surely find their way through it. They stop throwing up at the sight of blood. They no longer see corpses as the people they once were but simply useless biological matter that should be disposed of neatly. Ending lives becomes tedium. But they never see the work as something to be proud of, to brag about, to relish in. Some - like yourself - even attempt to bend the rules a bit, to resort to shortcuts, to make the act less...taxing on the conscience as it would usually be. Eversors train themselves to cut quick and cut clean, giving no time for the victim to feel pain. Callidus resort to simply knocking targets unconscious, either by striking pressure points or administering sleep-inducing substances with a brush of a needle. Vindicares go for incapacitating wounds instead of killshots, or use less lethal ammunition.

You...well, you tried your best to make your targets feel loved until the end. Made them feel loved, cared for, made them feel like they meant the world to someone. That as imperfect and broken as they were, they still had someone who considered them the most important person in their lives - right until you left them, happy, insensate, feeling no pain whatsoever - to your clients.

You...well, you tried your best to make your targets feel loved until the end. Made them feel loved, cared for, made them feel like they meant the world to someone. That as imperfect and broken as they were, they still had someone who considered them the most important person in their lives - right until you left them, happy, insensate, feeling no pain whatsoever - to your clients.

And then there were the other girls. The other girls who reached the wall, looked at it, and smashed through it with their bare hands. Never feeling the pang of guilt, never getting the nightmares filled with the faces of the freshly murdered. They not only relished the work, but anticipated it. Savored it. Counted every kill, every deception, every target. Taking not only gusto in their work but also a smug kind of pride.

You were never one of them. As...as horrible as you thought some of them were, you secretly admired them. You didn't want to be like them, no, but...you've always thought that someone like that, someone who could just fully accept their role sincerely and wholeheartedly - was cool. They frightened you, you'll admit that outright, but...they had that kind of appeal. A dangerous edge to them that demanded caution as much as admiration. Just like your sempai, before you realized how broken she was. How haunted she was.

That was the first time that you realized that what went around really came around.

The second time - well, it's happening right now, in the worst time it could ever come up.

You really, really wish your sempai was here with you right now.

You clear your throat, wracking your mind for a reply, forcing yourself to come up with something that wasn't quite the truth, and at the same time wasn't quite a lie. You've learned from long ago that those were the most effective kind of falsehood, the ones with a measure of truth in them. They were easier to say, easier to justify, easier to convince with and be convinced of. Even the most bald-faced, shameless liar knew that - that the lie spiced with truth much more easily goes down the throat of the person you were feeding it to.

"I'm...I'm sorry to hear about what happened to you, but..." You begin, allowing your own real nervousness at the encounter to come through, letting it give you that hesitant stutter that had never failed you ever since you started using it. Giving you the voice of someone who isn't quite sure of what to make of things right now, but is quite eager to help, especially in the face of tears. "...if you're talking about Matsuda-san's mission back then, when she saved a client from a, a gang of creeps--" You pause here to give her a smile. One just bordering on the edge of uncertainty, but sincere enough not to look forced. "--then I wouldn't really know anything about what really happened to the girl you're talking about. I was employed here a week or so after it. I'm sorry."

Iori's face falls. "B-but--"

You hold up a hand, still keeping the smile firmly fixed on your face. "But that's...well, that's the official response we're all supposed to give non-employees, Minase-san. We're not supposed to discuss mission details with outsiders, even if they were past clientele. But since you came all the way here to warn Matsuda-san about that Magical Girl, I...well..." You make a show of looking around furtively, before nodding at her. "I know for a fact that Matsuda-san wouldn't have allowed a loose thread like that hanging around. Not her."

You nod, firmly. "Matsuda-san may have a rough personality, and she's not the sort to bother herself with pleasantries very much, but she's nothing if not thorough. She doesn't leave anything to chance." It's here, then, that you allow yourself to be bold and take Iori's hands with your own - the idol making a noise of surprised hesitation the moment your skin touched hers. "I...Minase-san, I won't pretend I know what you've been through, and I know we've only just met, but I want you to know that you don't have to worry about that Magical Girl hurting anyone anymore. Not you, nor Matsuda-san, nor anyone else. Please believe me when I say that."

"I..." To say that your heartfelt plea had taken the idol by surprise was an understatement. But she didn't recoil, that was important. Nor did she sputter in petulant rage about how you seemed to talk like you knew her. It meant, as you realize now with a sick, heavy feeling in your heart, that this was a meeting that was a long time coming. That it was only now that Iori had worked up the courage to actually come HERE and try to talk to your sempai. That she'd held out as long as she could, allowing those dreams to fester in her mind, until they became too painful to ignore, to deny. She wanted them lanced, and the only way to do so was to warn Chiaki of her fate, or at least make sure that her assailant - you - were in no shape to carry out that dark deed.

And of course you're not. You'd never hurt your sempai. You'd never hurt Chiaki.

You'd kill yourself first before you could even think of such a thing.

"...I believe you." Iori finally says, and amazingly, she gives your hands a careful, hesitating squeeze. "T-thank you. I'm..." She shakes her head, giggling in relieved embarrassment. "I'm sorry if that suddenly came out of nowhere. It's...I've been trying to convince myself that something like that can't happen. That Chiaki-san certainly won't let someone like that...that girl live with what she did. Or how she'd let anyone hurt her - not with her absolutely destroying them first."

You ignore that stab of guilt and nod, smiling, returning her squeeze before gently letting go. "It just doesn't make sense, right?" Iori continues. "Matsuda-san can be a bit boorish and abrasive, but she doesn't do things halfway. Like you said, she wouldn't have let a loose thread hang like that. She'd have dealt with it the quickest and cleanest way." You see the light return to Iori's eyes at the same time that she smiles again. "Thank you. I suppose I just needed to hear it from someone else other than myself." Her cheeks redden slightly as she giggles again.

You shake your head. It's nothing, you tell her. You know exactly how she feels, at least with that. Sometimes, you need to hear it from someone else's mouth to truly believe something, even if you yourself know that it's silly not to believe it.

"I just...well, Chiaki-san and I didn't exactly part in good terms the last time we met, but..." Iori's cheeks redden again. "...I...she's important to me. I don't want anything to happen to her."

You force down another pang of emotion here. Not pity, not guilt, certainly not fear...

But something that makes you feel a hell of a lot worse.

It's fine, you tell yourself. It's normal. Just...make her feel better. It's the least you can do, after all. Especially after all you did.

"Ah!" Iori suddenly exclaims, nearly making you jump in surprise. "I just remembered, I introduced myself but didn't ask your name in return!" The idol shakes her head in self-admonishment, before bowing demurely in front of you. "I usually don't forget, this is so embarrassing...!"

A-ah. No, that's fine, really, you reassure her. Besides, things did get a bit emotional there for a moment...

"I...I suppose so, but that's no excuse." The idol straightens up, something like a dignified determination shining in her eyes. "Please tell me your name, so I can at least thank you properly."

Right. You were....you weren't exactly looking forward to this, but it had to happen eventually.

I'd like to draw attention to a question posted on Decu's ask

Q:How is possible that Iori has entered so deep in the Offico, to the point of being near the Callidus training room? Why no one is scorting her? Why a civilian is left alone? Why she walks alone in the building, with the possibility to access restricted areas? What is security doing, taking a nap?

>She looks back at you, wringing her dainty porcelain fingers. "If...if knowing someone who can make a direct appeal to the Blessed Lady, a priestess or seer, then maybe...maybe she can intervene on Good for Nothing's behalf..."

>What? The Blessed Lady? And a seer...?

>Manuke nods furiously. "Someone who can scry into the Akashic Realm, or walk in its tides without fear of corruption." She turns towards Wendy, and somehow you sense a brief, unspoken moment of understanding pass between the both of them. "The Blessed Lady is really angry with our Good For Nothing, but if priestess can plead and bargain with her, she can save our Good For Nothing..."

Ok, so far, we only knows two seers: Haruka and a theorically contracted Oriko. And both of them hate Chiaki, so we are pretty much fucked in that regard.
But what if we enf up in a situation were we don't have other choice than use a seer to help Chiaki? In that case, who do we ask for help and how?
I am asking this in case we face this situation in the future, and honestly, I want to read anons opinions in the matter

Well, it's come to this, then.

You take in a breath, let it out, and then speak your own name - your real name - out loud. Clearly and crisply, loud enough for the idol in front of you to hear.

"Midori," You tell her. "Hanegawa Midori. It's a pleasure to meet you, Minase-san."

For a moment, a cold feeling of dread overtakes you - of Iori suddenly shrieking about how you've finally revealed yourself to be her assailant, to be the true culprit of the crime that nearly ruined her life. You half-expect, in that terrible sickening second, that she'd laugh at how you fell for her ruse, hook line and sinker, incriminating yourself and justifying her revenge in the process. And then she'd thrust a hand into her bag, pulling out a pistol and then shooting you before you can react...

It doesn't happen, of course. Instead, the idol simply smiles at you. "Hanegawa...Midori-san? That's, well, that's a very apt name, if you don't mind me saying so--"

You shake off the remnants of that paranoid vision to return her smile, albeit wryly. "Yes, yes, I know. It's the hair. My parents weren't very creative." A moment, and you feel your cheeks heat up at the stare. "A-and it's natural! Honest! It's naturally green!"

"O-of course, I wasn't implying otherwise," Iori reassures you. "It's just that, well, another person I'm working with also has green hair, but I've always suspected that she dyes it, even though I've never seen her in a salon. I've always wanted a point of comparison, even if yours is a slightly darker shade." She giggles again. "Just to see if she's actually dyeing her hair or not."

Oh? You blink here, before nodding. That makes sense, you suppose. What's her verdict, then?

Iori stares a few moments more, her smile turning into a pensive frown, before she shakes her head. "I...I honestly can't tell, Midori-san. Without her here for a side-by-side, I can only go by memory, but..." She shakes her head. "Yours look very similar to hers, at least from where I'm standing." She reaches out to gently brush her fingertips through a lock of your hair. "...Consistency's more or less the same, although I do have to point out that you're not taking care of yours as well as you should be, Midori-san."

...Urgh. Y-yeah, you didn't really get much of a chance to wash it thoroughly this morning. You bear the admonishment easily enough, however, and make a mental note to take a proper shower before meeting up with Wendy again.

"...That settles it, then. She isn't really dyeing her hair, that harridan. How does she do it...?" Iori grumbles, before looking back up at you. "Thank you for indulging me, Midori-san. For the second time today."

It's fine, you reassure her. You're, uh, guessing that she isn't getting along with that coworker?

"We get along well enough, but..." Iori begins, now looking around as well. "...It's...well, it's immature of me to say so, but have you ever had the kind of coworker who's perfect in every way and knows it? And they don't waste any time in letting you know?"

...Yeah. Yeah, you're familiar with the type.

"And how you're just fed up with how they are that you're looking her all over for faults? Faults that prove they're still human, that they have their own share of imperfections?"

You nod furiously. You SO do. Definitely.

"That's what my coworker's like." Iori gives a small shudder. "And I've yet to find anything wrong with her. Not a single blemish. Not even a pimple."

That's...wow.

"Exactly! And the worst thing is, she knows it!" The idol lets out a groan, before shaking her head. "Ugh. Let's...let's not let me ramble on about work, Midori-san. Not right now, at least." She offers you an apologetic grin. "You were taking me to meet someone, right? Before your direct superior comes and takes me to Chiaki?"

You nod. That was what you were doing.

"Then lead the way, we can talk while we're walking." Iori smiles, and you gladly do so, heaving a sigh of relief as you lead the idol to sick bay, where Kyoko should be holed up. The first few corridors you tackle in comfortable, if slightly awkward silence, with that uneasy bond between strangers that had been forced through the entire spectrum of emotions through happenstance.

It's at the third corridor that you remember something. Just...how did Iori get here in the first place? So near the Callidus training floor, even?

You ask this before you can stop yourself, and Iori blushes again. "I...well, a receptionist was going to lead me to a waiting room, but I snuck off the moment her back was turned." The idol giggles here again, this time sounding rather...forced. "...I just wanted to try and find Chiaki-san on my own, but I got lost soon after. I was wandering around for twenty minutes before I bumped into you."

...Aaaand now you feel that she isn't being honest with you.

Strange. She doesn't...well, when you touched her hands, you were trying to see if she was contracted, but you didn't feel the tell-tale tingling that all Magical Girls would exude upon the first few moments of physical contact.

But why is she lying now?

How do you react?

You decide not to bring it up right now. Not when things are going so smoothly. You'll just tell someone who can do something about it - most likely Sayaka herself, whenever she finally decides to come down and rescue you.

It's here, as you continue leading her through the Officio's winding walls to where Sakura Kyoko is recovering from her injuries, that you also decide to strike up conversation once more. Asking her about how it is being a popular idol.

Iori stares at you in blank surprise for a moment, before breaking out into a surprised smile. "Ah...! So you did recognize me after all, Midori-san. And here I was lamenting the fact that I'd fallen off the charts for so long that people can't recognize me anymore!" She giggles, a sublime sound borne of someone who sings for a living.

You shake your head, a similar smile curling your lips despite yourself. No, of course not, you did recognize her! You just wanted to make sure, after all. You didn't want to mistake her for a lookalike, and vice-versa!

"If you say so, Midori-san." Iori giggles into the back of her hand. "Well, to answer your question, it's...always been surreal, to a point? But you get used to the fame easily enough. After the honeymoon phase, it's all about getting ferried to one place and then another to do all these recordings, appearances, handshake events...and making sure you always, ALWAYS look like the package you're advertising." She smooths down her dress in seeming emphasis of this. "No matter if you're sick, or sleep-deprived, or mentally preoccupied by something else, you have to look the part."

Nothing you haven't heard of before, of course. You've watched enough documentaries about Japan's fascination with idols to know how they're really like. Still, there's something to be said about hearing it in person, delivered by an actual idol without a camera in sight.

You offer your commiserations, and she nods at you. "It can be rough sometimes, yes, but I think any work, even if you're passionate about it, can be a bit tough to keep up with." The brown-haired idol grins. "Although, I suppose I can't really talk, as I'm sure even my worst day can't compare to a Magical Girl's."

You find yourself smiling again, and leave it at that. This is...alright. It's not ideal, but things have not yet gone absolutely to hell yet. You may even get through today with your sanity intact.

After a few minutes' more of walking - and more small talk about her current projects as a Magical Girl - you finally arrive in sick bay, specifically right in front of Kyoko's recovery room. You excuse yourself briefly to gently and quietly knock on the door - and sure enough, the red-haired Eversor's voice comes through loud and clear. As if she'd never been so grievously injured that she needed an entirely new body.

"Door's open! Come on in!"

"Is that...?" Iori blinks at the voice, before breaking out into another smile. "That's Kyoko-san! It's been a while since we last talked...!" Her smile falls soon after, however. "Wait, if Kyoko-san's here, then that means something happened to her...?"

You shake your head wordlessly and usher the idol inside as soon as you get the door open. You step in a moment later, and see the Eversor in her hospital gown, sitting cross-legged upon her bed, a portable gaming system in her hands and empty boxes of snacks around her. She looks up the moment you close the door behind you, her face lighting up like it's Christmas morning. The one unpatched eye glowing with clear, obvious joy at the prospect of company.

"Oh, wow, it's you guys!" She greets the both of you, thumb jabbing down on the device's pause button. It looks like she's been playing something with...squids? Something like that, anyway. "Hah, when Sayaka-chan told me I was gonna get visitors, I wasn't expecting Midorin and Iori-chan!"

Y-yeah, well, you're here, you tell her as you smile awkwardly. You've always liked the Eversor, nearly as much as your sempai liked her, but her energy and warmth was often a bit too much to handle. Still, it wasn't as if she was trying to make you uncomfortable or anything - it was almost always the opposite, and you can't help but find charm in that.

"Kyoko-san, it's been an awfully long time!" Iori exclaims as she steps forward. "I'm happy to see you, but what happened? Why are you in here? Did you get into an accident, or...?"

The Eversor glances at you, before chuckling as she turns back to the idol. "Ahaha..! Well, not exactly an accident, if you get what I'm sayin'! But I'm fine now, really! Doctor's just keepin' me for a few days for physical therapy an' rehab, make sure I got everything back into working order, that kinda thing!"

"O-oh. I see." Iori seems to believe this easily enough, her smile coming back on. "Well, you do seem to be in high spirits, for someone stuck inside a hospital room. And eating unhealthily again, I see!" She picks up an empty box. "These snacks are all going to go straight to your thighs, Kyoko-san!"

"I-I'll just work it all off during training!" Kyoko protests. "'Sides, those are all just snacks, anyhow! I eat all the rabbit food the doc forces me to choke down, that should make up for it!"

"...It doesn't really work that way, Kyoko-san." Iori shakes her head mournfully, albeit with a playful grin this time. "But as I won't pretend to know how Magical Girls' metabolisms work. I'll just let you off with a warning then." A moment. "I will , however, have to tell Sayaka-san about this."

"What? Aw, man, that's cruel, Iori-chan!" The Eversor cries, falling back down onto the bed with a whumpf. "You're gonna get my knees wrecked for sure! Sayaka's gonna drag me to the gym and tell me to squat a metric ton for an hour, just to burn the calories away!"

Well. They seem to be getting along, with the complications from earlier glossed over the moment. You let them continue their catching up, with Kyoko regaling Iori of the things your sempai's been up to so far - at least, the stuff she can share. You've long figured out that Kyoko knew what she was doing, and regularly took advantage of the fact that a lot of people underestimated her. She wasn't stupid, she was just simple. Stark difference between each one.

It's only after a while that the conversation turns back to you. "Hey, Midorin." Kyoko's voice, bringing you back to the present. "How's the boss doing, anyway? I don't see her around."

The boss? Does she mean Kyuubey, or--

Oh. Sempai. She's using code words to ask questions about sempai without alerting Iori.

Hnh. Sayaka must not have told Kyoko, then. Urgh, she should have at least, but it probably slipped the Acting Warmaster's mind...

How do you respond?

Honestly, I kind of doubt that the 20th would use something as ridiculous as 2020 studios... or at least I'm hoping that Decu has better taste than that.

Still, being paranoid about the 20th is kinda pointless. From what I saw of them in the write-ups so far, the Spymaster is so skilled that we might as well ignore her and pretend she's always in the know somehow.

You watch Kyoko carefully as you give your reply, readying yourself to do something drastic just in case she takes your coded message in the worst way possible. You are, after all, telling her that her best friend - your sempai - is not doing all that well inside a Silent Room. Anyone would freak out over that, especially someone as...energetic, as emphatic as the red-haired Eversor.

The look of abject misery that overwhelms Kyoko's grin when she finally hears the news from you lasts all of a single heartbreaking moment. A moment gone in a blink, replaced with a less eager but just as natural-looking smile, but it was there nonetheless. And it's here that you realize that Kyoko knew, somehow.

She knew something was wrong when she didn't wake up with Sayaka beside her today, or with Chiaki visiting her. She'd just been trying to occupy herself, to convince herself that it was just her imagination, and all she needed to do was wait for your sempai to visit her. But instead she got you and Iori, as well as the damning confirmation that her best friend was indeed in trouble.

Look at you. Ruining days for everyone like it's no one's business. Maybe if you do enough, you can get a pink Magical Girl costume and pink twintails to go along with it.

"Your boss? The...the Venenum?" Iori glances between the both of you. "Oh no, do you have other friends who are also recovering? We should pay them a visit as well, then!"

"Eh?" Kyoko blinks her one good eye here, before hastily shaking her head. "A-ah, no, that ain't neccessary, Iori-chan! She'll be fine, our Venenum - that's what we call the medical staff here - are takin' good care of her. It won't do ta just visit her right out of the blue, there's procedures an' stuff and that takes a while. 'Specially if she's under observation."

"Really?" Iori's brow furrows here. "Well, if you're sure...I just thought it'd be nice to visit her, seeing as we're all here and everything..."

"She'll probably just be annoyed, along with the rest of the Venenum. Take it from me, Iori-chan." Kyoko reaches over and pats her hand, before turning towards you. Something strange and unreadable shining in her crimson eye.

And then--

+ Midorin? Hey, Midorin, can you hear me? +

It's...that's Kyoko. That's Kyoko pulsing to you.

You reply to the affirmative, doing your best not to show any outward sign that you're communicating with the one other person in the room through a crude form of telepathy. Telepathy that you're pretty sure would leave you with a migraine later, if the sudden tightening sensation between your eyes is anything to get concerned about.

+ Awesome. I wasn't sure if this was gonna work again, after what happened back in the op. + Kyoko grins at you, before saying something to Iori that you don't quite hear. + A-anyway, about Murderface...I kinda had a feeling something went wrong, but...+ She shakes her head. + She's gonna be alright, isn't she? Murderface is gonna be okay? +

How do you respond?

[]Yes. Sempai's going to be alright. I'm going to do everything I can to help her.

The odds of him listening in, right the fuck now, are pretty damn low.

Also, in this case, the risk should be worth it. The fact is that for the best chance of success, we NEED Kyouko, because she's our in with Sayaka. You decide to drop the reassurances and go directly for a pulsed infodump. Everything you know, everything you've learned about Chiaki's situation, gathered up into one barely-coherent ball of information and tossed her way. Hoping to hell that your own relative inexperience with pulsing doesn't jumble up everything and give the red-haired Eversor the completely wrong message.

It's not that you didn't want to reassure Kyoko, of course. If anything you feel horrible at piling more onto her plate, seeing as how she's got enough on hers already. But as it stands, she's one of the few people who actually cares what happens to your sempai. Enough that she deserves to know what's really going on, and if she can help at all.

Kyoko's one eye goes wide as your clumsily-organized message makes it through the tenuous connection between your minds, and she lets out what sounds like a groan of pain, her hand coming up to rest against the side of her head. The noise making Iori blink, and then immediately move to Kyoko's side, clearly concerned. Her mouth making familiar shapes, her words somehow muffled by the roar of blood pounding in your ears.

"I'm okay, I'm okay. Just...just a headache coming on, that's all. I'm alright." You hear Kyoko murmur through gritted teeth as she lies back on her bed, knocking a few of her empty snack boxes to the floor. "Probably because I haven't been sleepin' right. Anyway, nothing to worry about." She grins at Iori, before looking back up at you. Her one eye now completely devoid of fear, or horror, or hesitation. Just pure determination.

It'd save QB a hell lot of trouble. We can keep him as an ally but officially be gone or something. He won't have to worry about hiding us. Even if he might get worried about us being on the run, at least he won't take the fall for it. And unless we want to kill everyone in the meguca world, we just don't have to show the wings. Basically, the Incubators consider Homura to be an above-Walpurgisnact-level thread. Walpurgisnact requires mobilising EVERY OFFICIO ON EARTH to deal with it. Chiaki goes rogue, and you have all that plus the First Officio to fight off before doing anything.

Ain't gonna work.

>Your Incubator looks up at you before shaking his head. "The Akemi Homura I know of and chose not to tell you, Matsuda, is someone that my entire species - for lack of a better term - fears. A malevolent divinity that had very nearly wiped us and our civilization out in the seething, roiling tides of her own hatred." He pauses here for a moment, seemingly searching for the right expression to use. "A winged monster who hides under childrens' beds to prey upon them when they sleep, a cautionary tale used by parents to make their young behave."

>What? Like some sort of boogeyman?

>"Broadly, yes." Kyuubey nods. "The difference being that we know she's real, and when she returns - in the flesh, with carrion wings and in midnight clad, as you do now - we are tasked in using any and all resources in our disposal to enact revenge. Revenge for our world of origin, and those lives lost in her wrath."

>...But that means--

>"Yes." Kyuubey nods. "Once any of my brothers discover that you are now Akemi Homura reborn, Matsuda, we are undone. The rest will rally around that brother and strike with monumental force, here and now, to permanently remove you as a threat. And knowing how some of them are admirably thorough in their tasks, no doubt the entire Officio will also be murdered for the grave sin of harboring the Archenemy in its walls, and I will meet my end, executed via atmospheric immolation."

They clearly don't have this suspicion. They just have a plan what to do if it happens. They have no idea that we are Akemi Homura.

Yes, you can always imagine a "perfect" personality for the job, but lest be realistic: there is a very little chance that we will become that personality. I think is better to use what we have than start over with no guaranty of success

>>41244819
Why not?

We're fucking Satan. We could bring a few devoted people from our Officio and just go rogue with them. Who'd want to kill us? Who COULD kill us?

In the end, it's always been us or someone else powerful who's had our back. We haven't really had to use the fully capacity of our Officio to fight off an enemy. Sure, having helicopters is nice, but in the end, we don't need it to get the Golden Weapons.

After all, MGs that hold Golden Weapons tend to go corrupt anyways. Even if this isn't so, detaching ourself from the Ninth would be almost necessary to retrieve the hammer, in a way. One way of approaching it would be to just break in and take it somehow. If we were still associated with the Ninth at that point, that would give the Fourth a place to strike. We don't want that. Prevents an escalation of inter-incubator relations, too. And there'd be little reason for other brothers to help, since the incubators would just go "Oh, that's your problem."

Same applies to various other GWs.

This is implying they knew we were Satan. No one has any idea except for QB. And for reasons of self-preservation, he wouldn't tell anyone. Bring Midori/Wendy and we could hide the wings fine. No need to worry about a surprise visit from an incubator either. If the other incubators were suspicious, they'd already be looking into it.

>If what that Clara doll said is any indication, anybody with a Golden Weapon. Also Sayaka, Kyouko, and this world's Homura.
Sayaka won't kill us as long as we have JPop. Kyouko won't kill us.
And as long as we aren't shitface retarded, we can somehow grab the GWs with some minor trouble.

If we bring about the future that Malal foresaw, then yeah, we're a pretty big failure.
With Mami and Sayaka dead, Kyouko wanting to kill us, all of the Officios and Golden Weapon users united in killing us, Pinky watching us to see us die, and the Transcendent One ready to take control so that Pinky can kill her.

Because when it was pointed out that we were breaking promises we had just made, anons said that they didn't realize we were making a promise when they voted for the option, even though that's clearly what was being said. Just like if anons voted for a highly aggressive retort and didn't think that it would result in a highly aggressive and direct course of action, they obviously misinterpreted the vote.

What you say about the highly aggressive option is true. But, you have to accept that in real life, when someone insults another person aggresively that doesn´t he/she is going to fight, only that he/she wants to make clear how he/she despises the other person. In the get fucked case is the same. First, Midori release stress by unsulting, and then she can think with a straight head on how to initiate the fight. But as I have posted, Decu didn´t gave us that choice. Yes, as you say, is possible that he interpreted that that answer means a direct charge. The thing is that anons only voted what to respond, not how to initiate the fight. They weren´t voting about a fight, but about a verbal discussion

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 07/17/15(Fri)10:57:30 No.41279387 Archived

+ Just...just relax for now, Kyoko-san. + You pulse hurriedly, trying your best to calm the Eversor down before the situation got more out of control than it already was, with Iori obviously hovering between being worried and being confused. + I've got something planned, and I'll definitely need your help, but we can't discuss it right now. Not around Minase-san, and definitely not within Officio walls. + Taking care not to move too quickly, you make your way to Kyoko's bedside and place a calming hand on her shivering shoulder. + I promise we'll get sempai back. One way or another, we'll get her back. +

+ No matter what it takes. + You finish, blinking in surprise at your own conviction. Surprise at the sudden rise of hot determination swelling up in your chest, somehow reminding you of a young woman who fought as much with a sword as she did with a summoned sleuth of man-eating bears.

As soon as you pulse your promise does Kyoko finally seem to heed your plea, the Eversor growing still, the tension in her frame slowly but clearly melting away. She removes her hand from her one remaining eye, and the bloodshot orb that looks your way glistens with unshed tears of relief. Of gratefulness. Of dread momentarily calmed by the promise that yes, somehow things will turn out okay.

And it's here, despite yourself, despite the circumstances that brought all this together - you find yourself getting just a bit envious of your sempai, just like you did back at Siberia. While you're not quite that crazy about having someone obsess over you to the point that they'd forsaken both divinity and sanity with as much relish as they would probably consume someone's living, beating heart - you can definitely say with honesty that you do feel that traitorous pang of emotion biting deep at the sight of Kyoko.

>>41279387

To have a friend like the Eversor - someone who would react with such unrestrained, unflinching worry about you as soon as they confirmed that you were indeed in dire straits, and immediately demand to be at the forefront of any plan, no matter how insane, to help you - that isn't just the world granting you a boon.

It's the universe, taking one of its rare breaks from crapping on everyone else to give you a fighting chance against the miserable, regret-filled existence of life.

By the same token, though, it also meant that the universe had more than just crap roiling in its guts to dump on top of your head - it was simply making sure that you had just enough of a fighting chance to last through to the very end.

Still. It reminded you that you didn't...really have a friend like that. Yes, of course there's your sempai, you know full well that if she thought you were in distress at all, she'd be reducing the source of your grief into mere biological wreckage the moment she found it in her sights. But to have a friend that was that loyal, that gallant...it made you wonder, just like when you did upon discovering the timeline-spanning romance between a pink-haired goddess and your sempai's past selves, what she did to deserve someone like Kyoko.

Maybe she'll tell you, one day. Maybe you'll never find out. You hope you do, though.

"Should I...should I call the nurse? Kyoko-san, do you want me to...?" Iori's voice finally manages to float through the migraine sting of pulsing. "Midori-san, should I--"

"Nah. Don't...don't need 'em." The Eversor tiredly chimes from the bed, holding up a hand and waving it at Iori's direction. "S'fine. I'm fine. Just...'nother one of them headaches I keep getting when I worry too much." The outstretched arm flops down onto the bed as Kyoko grins. "Sorry. Can't really do the entertainin' host thing really well at the moment."

>>41279421

"Don't be silly, Kyoko-san. You don't need to entertain us, you're still recovering!" Iori chides the redhead, nudging her gently on the shoulder, before pulling out what looks like an embroidered napkin from her skirt pocket to wipe at Kyoko's sweat-bedewed forehead. "Just take it easy. The more you focus on recuperating, the faster you'll be out of there."

It's here, then, that the idol giggles. "It's funny. I've always thought that Magical Girls wouldn't need bed rest to recover from fatigue or injuries. As it turns out they still do, just like the rest of us."

"Sayaka doesn't," Kyoko volunteers, grinning. "But she's really somethin' else. She can grow stuff back in like a second if she's mad enough."

Iori stops, paling rather considerably at that. You can almost see the mental image of it involuntarily blossoming in her mind "I...I see. Well, I do hope I won't have to be around when she demonstrates that!"

"Aw, why not?" The red-haired Eversor laughs here. "It's really awesome! 'Specially how it sounds! Like, you hear the bone crunching as the joints force themselves together, like really big knuckles crackin', and--"

"K-Kyoko-san, please, you have to rest!" The idol insists, sweating now, a brittle smile set on her lips. "Maybe I really do have to call the nurse, you sound a bit delirious! Just give me a moment, and--"

Before Iori could carry out her throat, however, it's here that a knock issues from the door leading to the room, followed by the door itself being pushed open. Sayaka, in all her transformed, caped glory, stepping in - a shattered purple star pinned to her throat. Your sempai's Warmaster emblem.

"Alright, I know everyone's catching up with everyone, but let's not get carried away. There are other patients on this floor after all." The blue-haired girl says in a slightly admonishing tone as she steps forward. Nodding at you curtly, then smiling at Iori, before finally rounding on the redhead on the bed. Clucking her tongue at the amount of empty snack boxes strewn all over. "...Kyoko, I know I told you to have whatever you want since you're re-acclimatizing, but I didn't say go fucking crazy with the junk food." Sayaka bends down to pick one up off of the floor, before gently knocking it against the other Eversor's forehead - a sigh leaving her lips. "Whatever happened to taking it easy, idiot?"

"But it's only just a couple of boxes!" Kyoko whines, just as you see her reach out one hand towards the Officio's now-acting warmaster. Without even pausing, without a hint of hesitation or thought to the other people inside the room, Sayaka immediately takes that hand, lacing her gloved fingers through Kyoko's before bending down to place a kiss on the redhead's forehead. "'Sides, the doctor said I need the calories to jump-start my immune system!"

"...No, you need vitamins, not calories. And sugar is not a vitamin." Sayaka replies, shaking her head, before looking up at both you and Iori with a slightly embarrassed grin. "Sorry, Hanegawa, Iori. I didn't make you two wait too long, did I?"

"No, of course not, Sayaka-san." Iori shakes her head, smiling. You reply to the affirmative as well, and the look that the blue-haired Eversor gives you is clue enough that she's...well, not exactly in the mood to joke around. In fact, you can tell that this tense, curt treatment is the best she can do under the circumstances. The stress of being in such a position coming off of her in palpable waves.

"...Anyway. Hanegawa, can you pick up the boxes and stash them on the table there? I'll have housekeeping take care of it later, but I'd like to have Kyoko have a clean bed to rest in. One that doesn't look like a NEET's bedroom floor, at least." Sayaka nods at you, at the same moment that Kyoko groans in protest. "What?! Sayaka-chan, no! She doesn't need to do that, I can pick them up myself--"

"You're supposed to be resting." Another whap to the head with the empty snack box, and the redhead flinches. "No more snacks, no more games, just focus on getting better. You can watch all the TV you like, but that's it." The blue-haired Warmaster tosses the box to you, before making her way to the door. "I'll be back later, I'm taking Iori-san to see Murderface. Try to behave until then."

"Ngh...alright," Kyoko grumbles, nibbling on the hem of her blanket as Iori makes to follow the departing Magical Girl out. Giving you one last look of gratefulness as she does so.

As the door closes behind the idol, and her footsteps - along with Sayaka's - has receded to silence, it's here that the both of you finally let out a sigh of relief. Kyoko's is a bit more labored, having been in the middle of pulling herself up to a sitting position the moment the other Eversor showed her back.

"Normies." Kyoko shakes her head. "Can't really talk freely with 'em around, can ya? I mean, it's not really any secret about what we are and how we work, but..."

It's a bit of a hassle to deal with them knowing and getting into trouble by interfering, you finish for her. It's also here that you start to pick up the boxes that Kyoko had left all over the place. "Aw, jeez, not you too, Midorin! I told ya, you don't need to do it!"

Acting Warmaster's orders, you remind her with a smile. Besides, you don't want Sayaka getting mad at you anyway. Not with what you're planning.

"...Yeah." Kyoko falls silent here, her one eye pensive. "I...okay, I know we can't really talk about this here, but I just hafta know, and I'm really tired of pulsin'. What's your plan, Midorin? Just give me the...the barebones version of it. I just need to know."

It seems that Kyoko wants to know about your plan. Probably wants to make sure that you have a concrete idea of what to do.

Ok, anons, I am glad that Kyoko is willing to help us with Chiaki situation, but let´s consider what we are proposing: we are asking her to act at the back and hide important information from her girlfriend (wich means distrust in their relationship), and what´s more, her actual warmaster (wich can be ultimately considered a betrayal to the officio). Also, we are asking her to STEAL to her girlfriend and her warmaster an object as important as her ID card. Imagine what would happen if Sayaka discovers: she would feel bretayed on all levels, and as acting warmaster she should be obliged to punish Kyoko accordingly to her crime (and if we consider that it could be considered betrayal, she could be forced into excuting Kyoko).

Most likely, things will not go that bad if everything is discovered (Kyoko will possibly end up in a Silent Room for a long time instead of excuted), but that doesn´t change the fact that Kyouko and Sayaka will end up in a very bad position. And I am sure that if Kyoko is interrogated, she will say that it was all her plan, saving us in the process. And let´s not forget that Enishi can end in a similar situation.

It´s true that this is the best way to save Chaiki, but man, we are putting so many people on the precipice…

Anyone else that feels a little like shit?

Even though Sayaka has access to the Vault, QB more likely than not has an alarm set for when anyone enters it, since no one except Chiaki and himself should be going in there.
Any time that Vault gets opened when the only person who is cleared to use its contents is in a Silent Room should trigger an alert to QB who will ask Sayaka why she entered the Vault when she can't even touch its contents without getting corrupted.

Eh, I dunno. Truthfully, I would think that other people would/should ask why we think the DEagle would help in the first place considering that Chiaki is majorly "ill" and theres no reason to think that just getting her favorite toys would help with her current condition. Certainly not the gun.

I mean OOC we know it probably would help because of the three stooges. Hopefully they would be willing to help fix Chiakis brain (Braids atleast would). And the three stooges would probably have administrator access.

However I don't think Chiaki has ever told Midori about the three stooges, so Midori really has no reason to think the gun will help beyond Manukes word does she? And explaining to say Sayaka or QB "A familiar of a witch told me to do it!" is unlikely to go well. Heck, it really should not go well with Kyoko

Assuming that we have a good, rational and justifiable explanation for why we think the DEagle will help, I could actually see it being possible to convince Sayaka to try it. Do we?

One correction. We're not asking for Sayaka's ID cart. The GW vault has an access card, that belongs to Chiaki, and which Sayaka currently holds until Chiaki can return to the helm. The card is Chiaki's not Sayaka's.

That said, Sayaka also owes Midori a favor, and also promised to help smuggle stuff to Chiaki, so odds are that she'd be on board with this plan, or at least willing to look the other way if approached right.

So things aren't that bad for Kyouko really.

Again, Midori has seen a similar thing happen in Siberia when the Grief Bomb went off and Chiaki's memories/psyche was fragmented.

And when Midori dived into the Barrier, certain items and places were used by the fragments to help themselves.
Hanegawa's Ramen for a sanctuary.
Weapons that Girl A and Chiaki were fond of using.

These examples to show that what is happening now can likely be helped by using items to focus Chiaki's fragments towards coming together.

You look around the room before you answer Kyoko's question, your eyes raking the ceiling and its corners - trying to check for surveillance cameras, or anywhere one could be hidden in. You don't find any, but that's hardly a consolation: if someone like Misaka can make a huge sentient robot like Tiny Pete walk around and just be a complete and total juggernaut, she can easily make a small camera the size of a pin, with a thousand megapixels and clear audio capturing quality or something.

Geh, you really should've asked Enishi to teach you that trick she did earlier. Then again, something like that might have taken you too long to learn. And besides, using magic right now might disrupt some of the more delicate equipment in this particular part of the Officio building - that'll just attract unwanted attention. You can't run that risk, not right now.

Heaving a sigh, you turn back to Kyoko and answer her question. That you have a handful of plans - one of which involves acquiring your sempai's Golden Desert Eagle and then getting it to her.

"...And?" Kyoko prompts after a long, awkward silence between the both of you, her one eye wide and staring. "After ya get her that thing, what happens next?"

You look at Kyoko and shake your head. That's...that's it, you tell her. There's nothing else to the plan other than that. You have it on good authority that whatever's happening to Chiaki, it'll stop the moment she gets her gun back, and everything'll be fixed.

The red-haired Eversor looks at you, before crossing her arms, frowning. "...Arright, I realize that I'm not exactly the smartest knife in the drawer here, Midorin, but even I can smell something fishy with that kinda plan." She shakes her head, her long untied mass of red hair swaying with the movement, cascading down her back in rich crimson waves. "Just get the gun to Murderface and that's it? Everything's fixed? Everything's back to the way it was?"

You nod here, feeling more and more uncertain of the plan yourself. But, well, Manuke did tell you about it, and...it didn't really feel that the doll was lying about it. You didn't read deceit in its words, even though as a living doll it was practically unreadable.

No. No, it HAS to work. It makes sense. The Golden Desert Eagle was...it was meant for your sempai. She was meant to wield it to the very end. Somehow, it'll get her back to the way she was, once she gets it again.

"Are we forgettin' that that gun - and the other golden shit she's been collecting - is the reason why she's been going nuts?" Kyoko continues. "And then there's getting into the vault in the first place! And that vault's crazy secure, only Murderface's card can access it, not to mention all the freakin' cameras--"

Well, that was what you were going to ask next, you say, gently cutting her off. If...well, you know it's not right to ask Kyoko of it, but if she ever gets the chance, perhaps she could...recover it from Sayaka somehow?

"..." Kyoko looks at you in complete and utter silence, before looking up to the ceiling. "That's...that's a really tall order, Midorin. I mean...yeah, she's actin' Warmaster an' everything, and I'd do anything for Murderface, but..."

A sigh leaves her lips, hissed through gritted teeth, just as one hand reaches up to cover her one eye once more. "...Okay. Okay, I gotcha. Murderface's access card. I know where Sayaka keeps her important stuff on her, so that'll be relatively easy to lift. Just...gotta make sure to lock the door before I do it." Kyoko's cheeks turn a bright crimson here. "Yeah. Alright. I can do that. Sure. Murderface needs it." She adds in low, quiet tones, as if reminding herself why.

You find yourself smiling here, before blinking and then shaking your head. It's...it's not entirely set in stone, you remind her as quickly as you can. You still have to talk to Wendy to decide on which plan you're going to pull off, after balancing all the pros and cons. If you're lucky, something will happen that will let you not have Kyoko steal from Sayaka. ...You're not that cruel, after all.

"...Yeah, alright. I hope so too." You refrain from smiling at how Kyoko's trying to hide how relieved she is about that news. "But if nothing does happen and we gotta go through with it, just tell me in advance, okay? It's gonna take me one whole day at least to get something like that."

Of course. That's perfectly fair.

"Okay." Kyoko lets out another sigh, before reaching up to rake her fingers through her hair. "Man, you do know that we're going to land in a heap of razor blades and broken glass, ass first, if we get caught? If it fucks up somehow?"

You're fully aware of that, yes, you nod. But you're hoping that saving your sempai's life - the Warmaster's life- will make that short-term concern insignificant, if not nonconsequential. If they have to haul you off to Officio jail, so be it - but at least you'll die having fought for who you love rather than just sitting idly by and doing nothing.

...Wait. You stop in your tracks as another idea hits you. What about if you got Sayaka into it too, instead of just Kyoko? Yeah, sure, the rapport between your sempai and Sayaka will never be able to top that of your sempai and Kyoko, but...

"Honestly, I dunno." The Eversor shakes her head. "I...I guess I can try talkin her into it, but I'm not really happy with my own chances there. I mean, Sayaka-chan doesn't hate Murderface as much anymore, but she's the kinda person to really be strict against the rules, so..." She shrugs, a helpless look at her face. "Mind, I'm not sayin it's off the table, just...it's gonna take a bit to do that. And if I do that then I can't steal the access card, you know?"

You nod. So it's just one or the other. Fine. You just need to pick when the time comes.

But still, Kyoko shouldn't do anything until you tell her to. Until then, she should just rest easy for now and wait for your call.

In any case, that should be everything you need from her. You bid the Eversor goodbye with a hug, before leaving her to begin the recovery process anew as you leave the sick bay wing.

Now you have to meet up with Wendy, get her updated on what happened and finalize a plan.

You should call her to arrange a meeting.

Where do you want to meet her? It has to be somewhere safe.

The cafeteria has the advantage of the noise, but it also can be too risky (we all know that if you focus in one conversation, even in an enviroment with noise, you can pick details of that conversation). Outside means that we can be followed. In our quarters we have the absolute security that we´re alone

Meeting outside is potentially suspicious, especially since people know that we have reason to hate each other. The cafeteria would have been a good idea, however, this one is full of MGs, some of which may or may not be of the Callidus rank, and thus prone to snooping... and again, Wendy and Midori hanging out together might draw attention.

The personal quarters is best, since Wendy is likely skilled enough to get there without anyone noticing, since she's a Callidus herself after all.

You pull out your smartphone. Instead of calling Wendy - and allowing anybody else to overhear you - you instead quickly tap out a text message to her. Telling her to meet somewhere outside the Officio, to regroup and reassess the situation. Come up with a plan. Maybe get lunch too. You direct her to a family restaurant that you've gone to once before. A family restaurant that served western food.

...Come to think of it, you never did get to eat there, did you? Just some tea you barely touched. Because...because of a fan you decided on a whim to meet up with. A fan that you'd been trading emails for a while now. And she seemed really nice, if a bit rough around the edges, when the both of you met. You wonder if she's there now--

You shake your head, jolting yourself back into the present. No, no! There's no time for that at all! You need to focus on your sempai! You immediately send the message, hoping that even without the name of the restaurant Wendy would still be able to tell which family restaurant you meant. After a few moments, you get your answer, in the form of a one-letter reply:

>K.

No clarifications, no confirmations, no nothing. Just one single letter, with the rest blank white space.

Right. Fine. That'll do.

Even though it's one of the things you absolutely detest the most, that'll...that'll suffice. You'll stay quiet for now.

If she's not there by the time you arrive though, you're calling her up and screaming at her in full blast.

Who does that? Really, who does that? Not even a complete sentence!

Sempai, how in the world did you meet someone like her again...?

You arrive at the family restaurant easily enough - despite the lunch rush, the elevators weren't as jam-packed and crowded as they usually were, and the crowd streaming in and out of the lobby entrances helped make you blend in. Just to be sure, you threw on a bit of an illusion - anyone looking at your face then would have found your features very slightly blurred, not enough to make them think that there was something fishy going on but just enough to make them want to rub their eyes or blink. By the time they looked again you'd already be long gone.

You cancel the illusion just as you step into the restaurant itself, and true enough, Wendy's there, sitting in the same exact booth that you and Dreamy - the fan you met up with - squeezed into when you decided to get some lunch together. Brooding over what looks like an absolute monster of a burger - literally two small hunks of bread sandwiching a thick, greasy wad of ground beef. The mismatch was so huge that you can't even see the pickles, or the lettuce, or the tomato. Just bread and beef, that's it.

Oh, and of course a tall glass of soda, and what looks like a large platter of greasy fries. That's...well, that's a Western lunch, all right. Strange, though, she hasn't started...?

"Was waiting for you," She grumbles as you finally approach and squeeze into the seat opposite. "Order something, you look like you're about to fucking collapse." The American narrows her copper eyes at you. "Did you even have breakfast to begin with? Or did you just start running around without even so much as a fucking sandwich?"

...It wasn't like you had any choice in the matter, you shoot back. You got woken up because of that...that emergency, and it's been non-stop ever since! This is probably the only time you could actually stop to think about stuff other than what's happening...!

"Christ. Alright, fine." Wendy gestures to the waitress, who'd coincidentally just finished taking the order of the next table. "She'll have what I'm having. ...Yeah, all of it."

What?! Wait, she can't mean that...! You won't be able to finish even half!

"Then eat whatever you can and we'll leave the leftovers, Christ." Wendy nods at the waitress just as she leaves, probably to bring those orders to reality. "You're not going to do anyone any good if you fuck around with your health, especially at this juncture."

...Urgh. And you were hoping to watch your diet this week, too...

Anyway. No time to cry over...overdone, artery-clogging burgers, now. You have to get your sempai's escape plan figured out as soon as possible. Manuke did reassure you that time wasn't completely of the essence, but something tells you that you shouldn't take too long. Otherwise, you may not have a sempai at all anymore.

So it's while you wait for your food - and Wendy picking off fries one by one from her platter - that you go over the three plans you have so far. The seer, the gun, and the escape. All three have their merits, and all of them have large, glaring obstacles that you no doubt will take some doing to overcome. And as attractive as busting Chiaki out - where do you go next? Who do you turn to?

You also go over the people who have volunteered to assist. Enishi, with her distraction for Heartcatch Squad. Kyoko, with her way into the Golden Vault, either through stealing the keycard in Sayaka's possession, or bringing the Acting Warmaster over to her side. Sayaka, too, with the favor she owes you, but you're a bit hesitant on calling it in so early right after...well, practically blackmailing her for it.

"You managed to squeeze out a favor from MICKEY?" Wendy very nearly spits out the fry she'd been chewing. "That's...wow, that's something else. How the fuck did you manage that, Green?"

You have done nothing but action star, explain jokes, and tripfag since you got here.

I don't know if you are legitimately this ignorant, or if this is all an elaborate troll attempt.

Please stop attempting to communicate with the locals when you don't know the language. It is painful to watch, and even worse to have to see persist. I am amazed that no one yet has taken pity on you long enough to explain that you are attempting to exist in an environment that actively dislikes and attempts to filter everything you have embodied up until this point.

Eh? It wasn't really anything special, though, you tell her. Just...you taking advantage of a situation when it called for it. There was this visitor that snuck into the Callidus floor, end--

"...HOld up. A civvie snuck into the Officio? In broad daylight?" Wendy's eyes go wide here. 'Jesus, either somebody that's stupid, or somebody's just that good of a Callidus." A chuckle. "So who is it? Who's the visitor?"

You tell her, and she laughs again. Loud and harsh.

"...Jesus, really? A fucking idol? That's...wow. I thought the fuckin' security in the Ninth was going to be good. Hell, give me some time and we'll probably won't have to rely on so many people just to get Kong out."

You glower at her, before shaking your head. No, she wasn't a Callidus - she didn't feel like one, anyway - so maybe she did sneak off and then got lost along the way. It was just coincidence that you bumped into each other.

"Right." Wendy shakes her head. "Guess you still have to learn about how Callidus really are, but that's fine. We'll figure something out." It's here that your food finally arrives - a clear carbon copy of the meal your fellow Callidus ordered. "Now dig in, just finish what you can.

Now it's your turn to grumble, but you do so anyway, Wendy following suit a moment later. It's...honestly not that bad, that is if you ignore all the grease.

"...So, besides all that, any idea what we're going with?" Wendy asks, having just swallowed a bite of her ridiculous burger. "The plans, I mean. Which one are we gonna go for and leave the rest to scrap?"

...Hm. You're not sure if it's just the indigestion - your stomach rebelling against such unhealthy food - but you can tell that Wendy's hiding something. Or at least waiting for the right moment to say it.

How do you proceed?

[]Make a decision on which plan to go with right now.

Your posts stand out a lot because your writing style is completely different from the norm (one which persists across the entirety of 4chan).
You use a tripcode, even though you have no reason to use one because you have nothing to offer/contribute to MGNQ that requires a verifyable identity across posts, nevermind across entire threads.

You piss people off when you use a tripcode without the reason stated above. There's a reason why 4chan is an anonymous imageboard and not a regular forum.

You seem ignorant of the general atmosphere of 4chan as a whole. I suggest you lurk moar, so that you also might improve at picking up on social context.

Try as you might, you can't seem to lift the entire burger to take a bite out of it. It's not that it's too heavy to lift, although it does seem to be sporting some serious heft - but the fact is that it seems to want to fall apart, beef patty and everything, if you ever so much as hold it wrong. So you start eating it piecemeal instead - tearing off chunks of bread and beef with your fingers, pinching them together and then eating them. Sure, you're getting greasy fingers out of the deal, but it's still somewhat tasty and palatable.

What isn't palatable is how Wendy seems to be holding something back, and you know it's not her opinion on how wrongfully you're eating your hamburger that she paid for. So you tell her to spit it out. If it's got anything to do with your sempai's escape, then you want to know about it. You're not going to decide until every option is explored thoroughly.

"...Yeah, yeah." Wendy glowers at you, before taking a long, petulant sip from her soda. A few moments more, and she puts the drink down, the cup hitting the table surface with a tell-tale empty thunk.

"...I know a seer we could use. Think she can get Chiaki out of there without too much of a hassle."

You blink at this. A seer? Does...does she mean Haruka, or Oriko? Because you highly doubt they'd be in a hurry to get your sempai out of there, and--

"No, no, for fuck's sake, listen." The American growls here. "I said it's a seer we can use. That implies they're not fucking useless at their job, not like those two."

...Yuma would have had something to say about that, definitely. But instead of letting loose that remark, you simply urge Wendy to continue. To tell you more about this seer.

The brown-haired Callidus sitting in front of you lets out a sigh, as if she can't believe she's doing this, before speaking once more.

"...Old friend of mine, Annie May Springfield." Wendy somewhat stumbles over the name, but after that the rest follows smoothly. "She's been dabbling in occult shit like this since...I guess before I met her. Trained beside her for years. She used to work as one of our in-house exorcists, along with her sister. Former Equerry of the Eighth. ...She, uh...The little doll was talking about somebody that can walk the Akashic Realm, right? That's...kind of her deal. And she's pretty good at what she does."

You blink at this, downing a gulpful of your Diet Coke to wash down the meat you've been forcibly chewing these past few minutes. Someone...who can walk the Akashic Realm? That sounds...well, pretty handy, if a bit crazy.

Also, that's another angle you didn't think about. Exorcism. Granted, you've never seen one in action, but you've heard how it works with...well, complicated cases like these. While you've got no proof, it could be just what your sempai needs. It doesn't involve the Golden Weapons, or being busted out - hell, you can probably package it nice and clean for the Incubator to allow it. Whether if it works or it doesn't, it'll let you have access to your sempai, and that's...sort of good, right?

Just as you open your mouth to ask more about this Annie May, Wendy immediately volunteers. What she says next isn't...well. It isn't what you expected.

"...She's the High Priestess of the Golden Land. Kinda crazy. A little fucked up. She'll probably go along with anything that'll make Pinkbitch Blendermouth happy, though, and I figure getting her favorite little fucktoy back falls under that. Wouldn't be hard to set up a meeting, either."

Did it really? All we learned was that yes, collecting the Golden Weapons like we were planning to do after the immediate missions (Big Shell, Oriko/Ahriman) were finished, is the way to advance the plot.
If not for that, we could have avoided this entire stint in Regalia and instead worked on finding the next Golden Weapon user.

Yes we got new powers, but they have stipulations that if anyone sees us using them then we get our friends killed as well as inviting a complete loss of control.

fat girls

>>41284730
It's kind of a case by case thing. Generally speaking magical girls are so much more active that you really have to overeat to be fat, or just be really unlucky.

It seems to be more common in Callidus, though, probably because they do a lot more sneaking and a lot less running around. Or chubby girls are just more likely to make Callidus wishes.

Misled Chiaki away from what?
All we learned was that Malal wanted us to collect the Golden Weapons without becoming the kind of bitch that would behave like the TTO.
Which is mostly what the players want.
Saying she would have misled us means that she would have misled us towards what we wanted and away from things that won't get us Golden Weapons or letting the TTO take us over.

Wouldn't being fat or out of shape be counter-productive to Callidus work though? When your body and profession are mostly supported by magic you can basically get away with some extra pounds. You probably won't snag any sexy ab-licking Eversor waifus that way, but turning invisible, for example, or trapping your enemies in an illusion aren't really affected by weight.

I mean, I'd say the girls with nothing else to back it up probably get culled pretty quickly, but it's probably not as big a deal as you'd think.

The thing is, being chubby does not have to mean not being in shape. Meguca bodies are already heavily enhanced by nature even without a ton of extra effort put into them, and any agent REALLY worth their salt probably A) puts the extra effort in, B) crosstrains for a more varied skillset, or C) is extremely competent re:

contingencies and backups.

And I think putting in that kind of work means they deserve that extra snickers bar from the candy machine.

Point.

Different question then. Way back when, Midori implied that her particular branch of illusions rely heavily on people's expectations.

Does that mean that she can get into a fight with an opponent that knows that they're stronger than her, illusion them into thinking they killed her or are killing her, and then proceed to kill or disable them before they can react to the reality of the situation?

MAGICAL GIRL NOIR QUEST
THE DEATH OF CHIAKI MATSUDA

☐ Magical Girl Noir Quest Deculture 07/20/15(Mon)08:33:40 No.41344170 Archived

You shake your head and refuse as politely as you can. Alright, you were already a bit iffy on the exorcism thing - you're not sure if it'll even work here, with the kind of issues your sempai is dealing with - but a crazy leader of a Pinky-worshipping cult who can 'walk' the Akashic Realm? If that doesn't sound shady, then you don't know what does! And you really, REALLY don't want to get Pinky involved in this more than she already is!

Wendy frowns here. "...Look. You just said you wanted to explore every option we got, and thoroughly. Literally not even five minutes ago, Green. Well, this is one of them, and how is it thorough if you're just gonna ignore one of them because you thought it sounded 'shady'?"

The American shakes her head. "Yeah, alright, I admit I didn't exactly do her any favors here, I know how I described her as - but she's not...bad. She's fucked up, a little loopy, but she isn't some dimestore psychopath who fucking crushes puppies underneath her heel for a giggle. She actually gives a shit, especially about the people who ask her for help."

You blink at Wendy here, somewhat surprised at Wendy's sudden, animated defense of this High Priestess of the Golden Land. This is...new. Something you haven't seen from Wendy before, the American Callidus responding with clear, obvous emotions - the real deal, rather than with their apathetic, sleep-deprived versions.

...Well, Manuke DID specify that someone who could interact with the Akashic Realm would help, so there's that, but...

The brown-haired Callidus stares at you sullenly for a couple of moments, before sighing. "...I owe Annie a lot. A whole lot. Probably more than I can ever pay back. And fuck me, I trust her with my life. ...With Kong's, too, if it came to that. "

Another sigh leaves her lips, before she turns back towards you. "Look, I get...not wanting to get any deeper in this cult shit, but as far as I can guess she seems like a way better choice for actually getting something done than either of those other faggots."

Wendy shrugs. "Anyway, like I said, it'd be easy to set a meeting with her. And it's just a meeting, for fuck's sake. You don't like it? Just say no, and then leave. Simple as that. We go back to the drawing board."

It seems that Wendy really trusts this Annie May person.

How do you react?

Involving an equerry of the 8th here is calling for disaster. The situation is enough complicated already. Pinky is ok with Chiaki transformation because she thinks it will create a massacre. And let's not forget that is possible that involving the cult will make Malal's vision a reality >trusting Wendy, or not, is no different than trusting any other character in the quest based on what we, or the.character we're playing with, knows.

There is absolutely a major difference between making a choice based on what our currect PC knows and what Anons can/should know. Meta-gaming changes everything.

Consider the following hypothetical: In one of the canon write-ups, like those of Wendy, she might meet a character who is shown to be about as reliable as a personified coin toss. But if you follow only the main quest, the only thing you hear is that this person is for example "slightly energetic", if you even hear anything about them in the main quest at all.

If we, as anons, have to make a choice in the MAIN QUEST, based on information in a write-up which ALMOST NOBODY HAS READ REGARDLESS OF CANON STATUS then how is it in any way fair if this comes back to bite us in the ass later? "Oops, should've read that write-up you might not even have known about". It doesn't matter that Decu has said "Those stories are canon" because few MGNQ readers have even glanced at ANY of the write-ups.

Nearly all of those fuck-ups did not happen in the main quest threads, therefor most of the readers haven't seen them, therefor the impact this knowledge has on present and future choices should be minimal.

Nghh. As loathe as you are to ask someone from the outside from help, it...well, it actually does sound like a decent option, and one worth exploring. Sure, Wendy's character reference for this Annie May Springfield isn't the best, and being the High Priestess of a Pinky-worshipping cult doesn't help, but it does seem like she really does trust her, to the point that she's actually defending their reputation.

And from your limited experience with the blunt, no-nonsense Callidus, she doesn't seem the type to praise anyone freely, nor readily consider herself indebted to anyone. So that's probably a really good thing, as far as this Annie person's credibility is concerned.

...Hell, it's actually looking to be a bit less risky than what you've been originally planning, you think, biting idly into your thumbnail as you consider it. Having an outsider attend to your sempai - provided you can ensure that she wouldn't blab about Chiaki's state to anyone else - definitely seems a lot less hairier than breaking into a secured vault, stealing a Golden Weapon from said vault, and then breaking into a heavily-guarded Silent Room.

At least the worst that can happen here is that you'd get refused by Kyuubey when you pitch it to him - while in the other option, you'd be getting off lightly if you were only excommunicated or thrown into a Silent Room forever.

Not that that option's off the table already, of course. If you don't like what this Annie person has to say or if anything feels off about her, you're not even going to bother. You're not going to let anyone else get their hands - or their designs - on your sempai. Not when she's this vulnerable.

"...Fine." You say at last, looking directly at Wendy. "You're right. It's not going to be thorough if I ignore an option like this." You pause here before nodding. "Please set up a meeting with Miss...um, Springfield, was it?...at the soonest possible time."

Wendy nods, pulling out her smartphone, in a rather smooth gesture disturbingly reminiscient of someone drawing a knife from a sheathe hidden in an inside pocket. "Sure, I can do that--"

"But I want to make it clear here, I'm not asking for her help just yet." You quickly add, cutting the American Callidus off. Wendy's impassive face briefly twisting into a scowl. "I want to ask her some questions first, to see if she can actually help Chiaki or not, or if she knows anything we don't know about Chiaki's situation. If I think she's on the level, then I'll ask her for help right then. If not--"

"...Then we both walk out of there and do what we originally planned on doing. I got it." Wendy grumbles as she quickly keys in a message into her phone. A small beeping noise signifying that the message itself had been successfully sent. "Fuck's sake, Green, you're getting just as twitchy as Kong is about shit sometimes. You ever think about cutting down on the coffee?"

It's your sempai's life on the line here, you explain to her after a moment, flashing her frown back at her. Of course you're going to be "twitchy". Why wouldn't you be? And no, you don't really drink coffee all that much. You have enough keeping you up at night as it is.

"..." Wendy stares at you for a few sullenly-silent seconds before shaking her head. "...Nevermind. Sent the message, and I already got the notification that she's reading it. We should be getting a reply in a little while, and--" The Callidus blinks as a jarringly-loud OP of a particular after-dark OVA blares from her phone's speakers.

You understand, you quickly say, turning to the other occupants of the restaurant and smiling apologetically at them. Just that...well...

"...Well, what?" Wendy asks, suddenly on edge. "Stop trailing off before you finish your sentences, Jesus Christ. What the fuck is it, Green?"

You shake your head again, smiling fully as you turn towards her. ...Just that you weren't expecting Wendy to be a Miracle Midori x Murder Mayumi fan, that's all, you explain to her, feeling a sort of strange, weird pride swell in your chest.

"...That's..." Your sempai's ex reddens even further, before shaking her head. "...Shut up, alright? I just like it for the story, that's it. Rest of it I just skip over. I'm...I'm not a fucking pervert."

Right. That's what they all say, you reply, or at least think about replying. There's really no need to bait Wendy into losing her temper, you're trying to help your sempai, after all. Still, the idea that your girlfriend's ex is watching your stuff, welll...you can't help but get tickled over that.

But anyway, that's for another time. Did she get a reply, or what?

"...Yeah, matter of fact I did." Wendy says after a moment, seemingly grateful that you're not pushing the issue. "...She says we can meet her at one of our safehouses near here in...half an hour or so." At your raised eyebrow at the word 'safehouse', the Callidus clears her throat before explaining.

"...We have a few around Mitakihara that we've been going back and forth from ever since the Prophet thing went ass-upwards. You know, just in case they tried to hit us again, or go for the High Priestess directly." She stares at her smartphone's screen again, and this time you see her brow furrow in slight confusion.

"...Huh. I haven't really been to this safehouse before, but it's pretty nearby. Near that bar Kong likes to drink at, anyway - practically across the road, just next to Hanegawa's."

[3/4]

What? That's...it's THAT close? Your parents have been living next door to a Pinky cultist safe house?!

Wendy winces at that. "...You know, I'm all for calling a duck a duck, but try not to call it a cult when we're there, alright? She's really sensitive about that kind of shit. And I'm not saying that because she's going to go crazy and kill you for it or something, but it's just good manners. Alright?"

Al...alright, you say, still a bit stunned at this revelation. ...How long have they had it as a safehouse?

"Dunno. Probably not that long, if I didn't even know about it. Maybe last week, or whatever." The Callidus shakes her head. "I did hear about Annie approaching a shopowner and asking if she could work there part-time along with a few girls. Probably said yes, and then got convinced into renting out a couple of their rooms for us. Works in our favor and theirs - we get a safehouse, they get our money and Magical Girl protection."

Ah. That makes sense, at least.

"We can go whenever you want, then." Wendy nods as she puts her smartphone back and picks up her burger once more. "Or if you wanna go back to Headquarters first or something, that's fine. Annie isn't a stickler for punctuality much, but she bitches us out if we're late for sermons."

What do you do?

You'll go to the meeting, sure, but only after a quick detour back to headquarters first. You want to pick something up to bring along, as well as freshen up a bit. After all, it's not everyday you get to meet a spiritual leader of sorts, right? Even if they are the High Priestess of a cult.

"Religious sect. Not cult." Wendy replies dourly after polishing off her burger. "...Alright, let's meet you outside the main lobby in thirty minutes, then. I'll call ahead and say we're going to run a bit late, but it's probably not going to matter much. She's probably grabbin' lunch at the moment too, and she takes a while to eat."

That's just fine. You don't plan on taking too long getting ready anyway.

Just as you get up to leave - with half of your lunch uneaten on your plate - it's here that Wendy calls your name, making you stop in your tracks.

"Green?"

Yes? What is it?

There's a very slight and telling pause here as you turn to face the American Callidus. Something unreadable in her eyes as she looks you over. When she finally replies, "...Bring something to protect yourself with, alright?"

Protect yourself? Well, you were already planning on doing so, but...why? Is she expecting trouble during this meeting?

Your sempai's brown-haired ex shakes her head. "...No. But it's generally a good idea. More than ever now, right?" She taps her thigh, and you hear the clink of something metallic there. "Something subtle, something you can conceal easily. Doesn't even have to be a knife or a gun, just a tool you can use to get yourself out of trouble quickly."

You'll...keep it in mind, then. You thank Wendy, before leaving the restaurant as quickly as you can. Making your way towards the Ninth Officio Headquarters, your lips set in a determined line.

Hold on, sempai. Help is on the way.

"...Alright. Just...alright." Wendy throws up her hands in exasperation. Thirty minutes had elapsed since you saw each other last, with you freshly showered and freshened up. "I know I fucking told you to get something to protect yourself, Green. I remember that. Alright?"

Right. Of course. That was before you left the family restaurant. You remember it as clear as day.

"Alright." Wendy repeats. "And I told you that whatever it is, it didn't have to be a knife or a gun. Because there's lots of other stuff out there you can protect yourself with. Like...something to crack someone's skull with. A stick. One of those collapsing truncheons, those are always fun." She gestures behind you. "I didn't fucking mean bring an entire walking weapons platform, holy SHIT."

She is, of course, referring Tiny Pete. The nine-foot tall behemoth looming over the both of you in all his freshly-repainted, just-repaired glory. The bristling gunbarrels that had infested his form during the Prophet operation removed, his original armament restored: a large, double-barreled box with a pistol grip mag-locked to his thigh, and a thunder hammer slung onto his back. His tusked helm glaring down and facing forward with blazing eyeslits of hellish red, with the skulls rattling on the rack planted on his back.

[REPORTING FOR ARMED ESCORT DUTY] The giant intones, its voice a deep gravelly rockslide digitized through a harsh amplified speaker. [AWAITING ORDERS]

Tiny Pete isn't a weapons platform, you protest. He's...well, he's a friend of your sempai! And he's also a part of the Officio, same as you or Wendy! It's not his fault he's a nine-foot, two-ton wall of walking metal and hate!

"...Look, I..." Wendy begins, trying to tear her eyes away from Tiny Pete, and managing only to succeed at the third try. "...I get it. I get it, alright? You still think that the Church is a bunch of crazy cultists. Alright. I get that. But even if we really were that fucked up - and we're not - do you think we're going to fucking start something here? Just next door to the goddamn Ninth, who helped us with the Prophet?" The Callidus looks about ready to tear her hair out, here. "This is just going to be a meeting, it doesn't fucking warrant bringing this thing over--"

It does, you tell her. And he's coming along. That's final.

Yes, you don't really think the Church is going to start something in their safehouse, sure. Not when it's all but spitting distance between it and the actual Officio whose jurisdiction they're in.

But if you've learned anything from your sempai, it's that you need to stop meeting other people on their terms. You need to restore the balance somehow, make them as uneasy as you felt. This way, no one's truly vulnerable, because everyone is. And what better way to do that than with a two-ton monstrosity of armor, spikes and skulls? One that's obedient to you and only you, thanks to a russian kid who seems to at least not hate you so much anymore?

...Misaka nearly didn't let you borrow Tiny Pete, however. In fact, she asked you quite a lot of questions, when you asked if she could lend you the armored giant for a few hours. After five or so minutes of her calling you every variation of 'broccolihead' that she knew, she finally relented, saying that she needed a stress test for Tiny Pete's new knee servos, and this was convenient. But of course, you still had to answer what you needed him for.

Your response? That it was for an inter-officio reunion. Tiny Pete's presence was for 'in case things something goes wrong'. ...Technically the truth, and not an out and out lie.

She seemed alright with that, and let you leave with her giant robot buddy. But before you could do so - with Tiny Pete stomping across the floor after you - she asks you the question that you hoped wouldn't come up. Even though you knew it was going to.

"Is Big Sister Murderface going to visit Misaka soon?" The brown-haired Russian genius had looked up at you with clear and frank expectation in her eyes. "Misaka is missing Big Sister Murderface greatly, says Misaka in a lonely yet hopeful voice!"

How did you respond to Misaka?

[]Reassure her. "Very soon. She's just busy with very important work at the moment."

[]Be honest with her, as much as you can right now. "Big Sister Murderface is a bit tired so she's resting up for a while, but as soon as she's better, the first thing she'll do is visit Misaka-chan, alright?"
